THE WEATHER

Taking advantage of the fact that the Pirates will not play at home today, Forecaster Ridgway last night decided that he would attempt to cool the superheated atmosphere with a few showers today and tomorrow. He will also turn loose the light to fresh and variable winds to assist in this cooling process. Yesterday was very warm, the maximum temperature being 87 and the minimum 58 degrees. The sun rose clear at 4:47 a. m. but set cloudy at 7:34 p. m., withal it was a long, sweltering day. The forecast for Pittsburgh today, according to the officials at Washington, is:

OKU BUSY AT PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Said to Have Captured One Inner Fort.

LOSSES WERE GREAT

The Raid of Skrydloff's Squadron Caused Sinking of Five Ships of Mikado.

ENGLISH VESSEL IS TAKEN

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

Chefoo, June 19.—News reaches here today that Gen. Oku has captured one of the inner forts of Port Arthur, losing 1,000 men in the engagement. The report comes from Chinese sources and has not been confirmed.

The lines about the beleaguered fortress have been drawn tighter than ever and junks are not permitted to ply south of Dalny on the east and Kinchau on the west. It is said that the landing of troops and big guns on the lower part of the Kwantung peninsula has practically ceased and this is taken to mean that the entire force to be devoted to the capture of Port Arthur is now with Oku.

On sea, the blockade is kept up just as vigorously. Many wounded have been brought into Dalny and the booming of heavy guns in the direction of Port Arthur is continuous, according to vessels coming in which have skirted the coast.

The raid of the Vladivostok squadron will compel the Japanese to hurry the attack on Port Arthur unless Skrydloff has been intercepted on his return to port, which is not regarded as probable.

Assault Must Come Soon.

With Port Arthur in the hands of the Japanese, Togo could devote his entire attention to Skrydloff, in which event the occupation of the Russian admiral would be gone. It is therefore the opinion that the final attack on Port Arthur is close at hand.

TOKYO, June 19.—(5 p. m.)—The remarkable raid of the Russian Vladivostok squadron evidently is over. The squadron disappeared yesterday off Cape Hanashi, steering to the north, and it has not been reported since. It is assumed to be returning to Vladivostok.

The raiding Russians captured the British steamer Allanton, laden with coal bound south from the island of Yezo, and sent her to Vladivostok with a prize crew.

The transports Sado, Hitschi and Izumi were the only ones overhauled by the Russians, Japan had 13 transports in and near the Strait of Korea the morning the Sado and the Hitschi were caught, and she was fortunate that only the three ships mentioned were overtaken by the enemy.

It is impossible to get complete facts concerning the sinking of the Hitschi. She evidently failed to stop when signaled to do so by the Russian vessel. The claim is made that Capt. Campbell, the English master of the Hitschi, refused to stop and planned to ram the Russian, but this is denied. It is said that the Japanese officers on board the Hitschi declined to surrender and required Capt. Campbell to keep his ship going. The assertion that the Russians fired upon the lifeboats in which men were escaping from the Japanese transport has been fully substantiated.

The Yawata and the Ansei, two sailing ships, were sunk by the Russians on Thursday between Ko island and Okushiri island, off the west coast of Yezo and north of the Tsugaru strait. Thirty-seven survivors reached Esashi on Thursday afternoon. This makes a total of five Japanese ships sunk or destroyed by the Russian raiders.

The Izumi Sunk.

The Japanese transport Izumi, which was reported missing a few days ago, was sunk by the Vladivostok fleet off Oshima island last Wednesday morning, northwest of the western entrance of Tsugaru strait.

The Izumi was retiring to Japan and carrying 108 passengers. The crew took to the boats when the Russian fleet was sighted. The armored cruiser Gromoboi signaled for the boats to approach. They complied and all were taken on board and confined between decks over night. Thursday morning the non-combatants were released and sent aboard the Japanese vessel Unko, which brought them to Maizuru.

The Russian vessels are reported to have sailed in the direction of Hokkaido.

DOMINATING PERSONALITY OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT THE LEADING FEATURE, WITH SOME CHAFING OVER HIS DICTATING THAT CORTELYOU SHALL BE CHAIRMAN

Party Sentiment Is a Unit for His Nomination, Nevertheless.

FAIRBANKS TO WIN

SPEAKER TO GET BIG OVATION

By HENRY J. FORD.
(Staff Correspondent.)
[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Chicago, June 19.—The leading feature of the convention is the dominating personality of President Roosevelt. Next in prominence are signs of chafing under the pressure of that personality. The delegates feel that they are in fact delegates commissioned for the special purpose of nominating President Roosevelt. All agree that party sentiment everywhere is practically an enthusiastic unit upon that point. There is no open anti-Roosevelt sentiment. The faith which the plain people repose in his courage and ability is admitted to be the party's largest asset in this campaign.

But besides nominating President Roosevelt there are various party matters to which the convention will have to attend and regarding some of these there is friction. The most important is the question of the chairmanship of the national committee. If one were to take literally all that is said about this matter one might think that a serious breach between President Roosevelt and leading party managers is impending. The very bitterness of the language used, however, suggests the irritation of conscious weakness. There is undoubtedly in influential quarters a strong feeling of repugnance to the president's selection of Secretary Cortelyou as the campaign manager and at present very free expression is being given to that feeling, but it seems to be evaporating in talk.

Nobody Dare Oppose Him.

It might almost be said of Cortelyou as it was said of President Roosevelt himself in the political circles during the formative stage of his candidacy—nobody wants him, but nobody will dare to oppose him. Like most epigrams this is not wholly true. Mr. Cortelyou has the powerful support of Treasurer Bliss, who in himself refusing the national chairmanship recommended Cortelyou. The story industriously circulated against Cortelyou that he was originally a Cleveland Democrat has been thoroughly disapproved, but it still does duty among the objections urged against him. The real objecuon is from the party managers who do not want control of the party organization to go into the hands of an outsider. They are aided by the feeling of a good many people that Mr. Cortelyou is too inexperienced in party management for such important responsibilities. But all accounts agree that the president is bent upon the selection of Mr. Cortelyou and he has pa[illegible]age on his side.

No later than last Wedne[illegible]he president went over the whole [illegible] with one of his friends, describ[illegible] complications which presented [illegible]selves in the case of every one whose name was considered and setting forth his belief that the best solution had been reached in selecting Cortelyou and his determination to abide by that choice. He reiterated that determination when consulted by telegraph regarding a compromise suggested by Gov. Franklin Murphy of New Jersey.

Proposition is Weak.

This was that the national committee should organize by the election of a chairman and secretary and that the president should then select the chairman of the executive committee, who would have charge of the campaign. Senator Scott of West Virginia submitted the proposition to the president and received in reply a telegram which is described as showing a full set of teeth. The proposition is regarded as a weak one, as it surrenders the argument as to party risk in this campaign and makes simply a demand for control of the party organization as the price of party harmony.

There was a conference at 5 o'clock this afternoon, lasting over an hour, of members of the national committee and others opposed to the election of Mr. Cortelyou. The situation was talked over in a general way, but no positive action of any kind was decided upon.

ALL KEYSTONE MEN WITH PENROSE

Pennsylvania Delegation to Caucus at Chicago This Morning.

HARMONY IS THE WATCHWORD

By WALTER J. CHRISTY.
Staff Correspondent.
[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Chicago, June 19.—Nearly all of the Pennsylvania delegates have arrived in Chicago. They are ready to follow the leadership of Senator Boies Penrose. From present indications that lead will cause them to vote for Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana for vice president.

The Keystone delegates are especially interested in the national chairmanship. They believe that Senator Penrose is the man to lead the party to victory this fall. He has had schooling in practical politics which fits him to take charge of the contest. Every Pennsylvanian here is shouting for him, but they do not want to be understood as being antagonistic to President Roosevelt. The farthest they go is to say that they believe that he is exercising bad judgment in the selection of Cortelyou and hope that in the end Penrose will be chosen.

There are quite a number of delegates who would like to have an opportunity to vote for Speaker Cannon for vice president, but none of the 68 representatives from Pennsylvania in the convention is inclined to fly the track, if it is the opinion of the leaders that Fairbanks is the man to nominate. It should not be understood that there is any lack of harmony on this question.

Gov. Pennypacker is about the only Pennsylvania delegate who has not reached Chicago. He will be in tomorrow morning. It is quite probable that he will be named on one of the committees of the convention. It may be that he will be selected to represent the state on the committee that notifies President Roosevelt of his nomination.

There are three or four hundred Pennsylvanians in the city tonight. Early in the day 150 came from Philadelphia. They were headed by Insurance Commissioner Durham and Mayor Weaver. There is much comment tonight among Quaker City men over the fact that Durham and Weaver marched arm in arm at the head

BOOM FOR HITT RESUSCITATED

Still, Impression Remains That Fairbanks Will Have Second Place on Ticket.

LODGE TO SIT IN COUNCILS

By L. W. STRAYER.
(Staff Correspondent.)
[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Chicago, June 19.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts arrived here today and was welcomed in a manner becoming the personal representative of the president. It is the general supposition that he brought in his baggage the national platform all written out and ready for the adoption of the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention. It was also believed that he brought with him final instructions and advice from President Roosevelt concerning matters upon which the convention will pass.

These popular impressions, together with the important position in the councils of the party which Mr. Lodge occupies because of his wisdom and experience, accounted for the respect and deference with which his advent in the convention city was marked. But Mr. Lodge had no communications to make to the public on the important matters with which his name has been connected. He would not discuss the platform nor would he admit that he had that document written.

If he brings any "last word" from the president he will deliver it only to those ears for whom it was intended. He would not discuss the vice presidential matter, but, soon after he was comfortably settled in his room at the Auditorium Annex, he went into conference with the leaders and became one of the busy group that had the affairs of the convention to wrestle with.

Arouses Uncle Joe's "Ire."

But whether he would or not, Mr. Lodge was speedily dragged into the contest over the vice presidential nomination. When "Uncle Joe" Cannon arrived here and found what Odell and Sheldon of New York were doing to resurrect his boom for second place on the ticket, the speaker indulged in some of the picturesque language that is so expressive and which is never reported verbatim in the newspapers. He was anything but pleased, and while he would not make a statement for publication, yet he let his friends know that his position on this question has not changed. He does not want the nomination and absolutely refuses to accept it even if an attempt is made to force it upon him. "You can say that the convention will adjourn without a candidate for vice president before Speaker Cannon will permit his name to go upon the ticket," said a friend of the speaker this evening.

Whether it was with the idea of sidetracking their talk of Cannon or whether it was a bona-fide boom, the Illinois delegation this afternoon injected some saline solution into the Hitt campaign. They held a conference to size up the situation and Senator Cullom reported that after a talk with Senator Lodge he could assure the delegation that Mr. Lodge personally felt very friendly toward the Hitt movement. This was not so definite as it might have been, but it was considered encouraging.

Massachusetts Might Aid.

Mr. Cullom intimated that Hitt would probably get some votes from Massachusetts if his friends put up a good fight. The California delegation is reported to have sent word that if the Hitt people could make a good showing they might depend upon some aid from the Pacific slope. A message was sent back to them

PRESIDENT WILL NOT INTERFERE

Determined to Express No Preference for Running Mate—A Caucus for Hitt.

LITTLE TALK OF THE PLATFORM

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

Chicago, June 19.—Several personal representatives of the president who arrived today made an emphatic declaration that the president was positive in his determination to express no preference regarding the selection of his running mate. Both Senator Lodge and Secretary Root said this to all the delegates to the Republican national convention, who approached them on the subject. Speaking for themselves, the close friends of the president say they do not doubt that Mr. Fairbanks would be acceptable to Mr. Roosevelt, but they are not willing that the president's name should be dragged in to assist the Indiana senator's nomination. Through an envoy from several far northwest delegations who called on the president several days ago and in their behalf expressed a wish to support the man whom the president preferred, the president has sent word that while he appreciates the compliment, he will leave this entirely to the convention. Senator McCumber of North Dakota has come out for Senator Fairbanks and thinks sentiment in the northwest is crystallizing on the Indiana man. The effort is being made by Senator Fairbanks' more enthusiastic supporters to have an Alabama delegate nominate him.

Senator Allison said tonight that the Iowa delegation had not as yet discussed the question of the vice presidency, but that they would hold a meeting tomorrow to decide upon what action they will take. He would not state his own choice. Senator Kean of New Jersey, however, was outspoken in his support of Fairbanks.

Illinois Caucuses for Hitt.

Illinois has decided to make an active aggressive campaign for Hitt for vice president. A caucus was held this afternoon in the state headquarters and a formal plan of campaign in the interest of the Illinois congressman was adopted. After a discussion between the leading men of the delegation it was arranged that Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois should present the name of Mr. Hitt to the convention, and seconding speeches will be arranged for by at least two delegates, one from the middle Mississippi valley and the other probably from New York. After the adjournment of the caucus it was announced by some of the Illinois men that the seconding speeches would be delivered by Senator Dolliver of Iowa and someone yet to be selected. The senator was out of the city today visiting friends and could not be seen, but members of the Iowa delegation scouted the idea that he would speak for Mr. Hitt. According to them he had received and had not accepted invitations to speak for the nomination of Senator Fairbanks and George W. Welster of Nebraska, and under the circumstances it was not at all probable that he would second the nomination of Mr. Hitt. Moreover, there is a decided sentiment among the Iowa men in favor of Fairbanks, although a number of them are in favor of Hitt.

Michigan for Fairbanks.

The Michigan delegates after learning of the statements made after the Illinois caucus declared that they were in favor of Fairbanks and not of Hitt.

Senator Cullom of Illinois said after the caucus: "There are many delegates in Illinois and in other states also, who do not favor the attitude taken by Senator

ADMINISTRATION FAVORS CANNON

So Understood, but Fairbanks Will Likely Be Named—No Place for Him.

OTHERS FOR SECOND PLACE

By CHARLES E. LITTLEFIELD.
Congressman from Maine.
(Copyright, 1904, by New York Herald Co.)

Chicago, June 19.—Thus far the ants convention gathering has been characterized by an entire absence of excitement or anything that approximates enthusiasm. There are no contests sufficiently general or active in the character, either as to candidates or platform, to excite any enthusiasm. The vice presidential situation has so far been the occasion of general inquiries as to who the candidates are, what is being said, and especially what has been said by Senator Fairbanks. The senator arrived on the scene Friday morning. Saturday afternoon he stated that if the nomination was tendered him, he would accept, thus placing himself unreservedly in the hands of his friends.

He is fortunate in having a wife, who is beautiful, attractive, accomplished and popular. She would be a distinct and positive addition, from a social standpoint, to any administration.

No Place for Fairbanks.

If he leaves the senatorship for the vice presidency, there will necessarily be some changes of alignment, and he would inevitably, to a large degree, lose that close and intimate touch with the active men in his party, which is so essential to the preservation of personal influence and control of an organization. There is certainly no good reason why an intelligent and ambitious man should leave this vantage ground that he has been years in creating, for a position that is largely ornamental in its character and whose only active duties consist in courteously presiding over a great body, of which he was formerly a part, when it happens to be in session.

In the absence of a definite and decided understanding with reference to the candidacy of Senator Fairbanks, the Illinois friends of Mr. Hitt have been very quietly but diligently pressing his candi-

PHIPPS AT CLUB; WIFE AT HOME

Attorneys for Both Sides in Pittsburgh Considering a Compromise.

FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. Phipps Says She Is Determined to Get Possession of Her Children.

STATEMENT OF HER ATTORNEY

To effect a compromise in the divorce proceedings instituted by Lawrence C. Phipps against his wife, both he and Mrs. Phipps, with their attorneys, are in Pittsburgh in conference. Mr. Phipps has not yet met his wife, and his attorney, Gerald Hughes of Denver, said last night that no agreement has been reached.

Mrs. Phipps, accompanied by her attorney, Judge Platt Rodgers, whose home is in Denver, arrived here Friday evening from New York, and went direct to "Grandview," the magnificent home of her husband, off Wilkins avenue.

Mr. Phipps arrived from Denver with his attorney Saturday morning, and is stopping at the Duquesne club, where Judge Rodgers is also staying. A lengthy meeting was held Saturday at the club and yesterday Attorney Rodgers spent several hours with Mrs. Phipps.

Fight for the Children.

The fight centers over the possession of the two children, both of whom were taken away by Mr. Phipps from the Hotel Netherland in New York on June 3. They are now in Denver, carefully guarded.

Mrs. Phipps was seen at "Grandview" last evening about 8 o'clock and seemed very cheerful over the prospect of an amicable settlement.

"I fully expect to get possession of my children," she said in a very determined way.

She was asked if she meant by legal process or by mutual consent. To this she would not reply.

"I came on from New York Friday night with my attorney and am here for the purpose of talking over matters. But, really, I know very little about what is being done. I understand that Mr. Phipps is on his way from Denver to New York, but I do not expect to see him. Our attorneys are attending to everything."

Didn't Seem to Expect Him.

She was asked if Mr. Phipps would come to "Grandview" during his visit to Pittsburgh, and she expressed some surprise that he would stop in Pittsburgh.

"Let's see," she said smilingly, "if he left Denver Friday, as the papers said, he will not get here until Monday morning."

Regarding the divorce proceedings, Mrs. Phipps would have nothing to say. She was asked if she would go to Denver to answer the charges. Her reply was "If that is his home, I shall."

"Will you be here for some time?" she was asked.

"My plans are unsettled," she replied.

Mrs. Phipps then hinted that she had come on only upon the suggestion of her attorney.

When seen last evening Mrs. Phipps was seated on the broad open piazza which overlooks Fifth avenue. With her was an elderly lady, who is supposed to be her mother, Mrs. Chandler. She seemed entirely at home, and from the appearance of the house it is evident that she has assumed full control of the servants.

Residence Valued at $1,000,000.

The property, which is valued close to $1,000,000, was given Mrs. Phipps by her husband shortly after it was built, about two and a half years ago. In the proceedings begun by Mr. Phipps, he is endeavoring to stop payment on certain valuable bonds and stocks and wrest from her possession the control of Grandview. Under what arrangement, therefore, Mrs. Phipps is now occupying the residence could not be ascertained.

One friendly with Mr. Phipps said last night that every means is being taken to keep husband and wife apart. Before making this statement, he was asked if Mr. and Mrs. Phipps had met. His reply was short and to the point:

"You haven't heard of any explosions, have you?"

Since arriving here Mr. Phipps has seen few people. He is said to have called on ex-Judge James H. Reed of the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & Beal, which is representing Mr. Phipps' interests as well as the Denver attor[illegible]

PARKER, CLEVELAND, OLNEY--ALL BARRED, SAYS BRYAN

Nebraska Seer Declares That Platform and Candidate Indorsed by Democrats at St. Louis Will Not Suit New Yorkers.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—William J. Bryan arrived in this city tonight to aid in the movement in this city against the nomination of Chief Judge Parker in St. Louis next month. He went direct to the Hoffman house. With him was Milton F. Dunlap, William R. Hearst's campaign manager in Illinois, who has just captured the Illinois delegation to the national convention for Mr. Hearst.

Mr. Bryan will leave the city early tomorrow morning for New Haven to look after his interests in the Bennet will contest. He will return to the city, however, in time to dine at the City club before going to Cooper Union at 8 o'clock to make his anti-Parker speech.

He said he did not expect to see Charles F. Murphy or any other leader of the anti-Parker movement while in the city. Questioned as to the general situation, he said:

"The men who are opposed to Judge Parker's nomination will be in control in St. Louis. They will nominate the candidate and prepare the platform, and it will not be the New York platform, or the New York candidate."

He added that he did not care to go into detail in discussion of candidates or the contents of the platform. "I have already laid down certain fundamental principles as to the reason for not nominating one or two of the men most prominently mentioned for the place in the east," he added. "Olney, Cleveland and Parker all come within this class."

SECRETARY LOEB CARRIES THE NEWS

CHICAGO, June 19.—(Special.)—William Loeb, secretary to the president, stopped over here today for a few hours on his way back to Washington from a vacation trip to the Yellowstone. When the news of Mr. Loeb's presence was spread abroad there was some excitement among the delegates, it being concluded that he was the bearer of important dispatches from the White House to the generals in the field, but the excitement soon subsided and Mr. Loeb left for Washington bearing important information that he had gleaned from his brief stay here. He will be able to give the president a very clear idea of the feeling on some matters, including the national chairmanship.

Mr. Remmy, who was 45 years of age, was taken to the hospital five weeks ago suffering from liver trouble. Last night he felt decidedly better and requested that he be taken home. Two physicians accompanied him in the carriage and four blocks away from his house he complained of feeling worse. When the carriage reached the house he was dead. His wife Anna, son Frank, mother, Mrs. Sophia Remmy, brother Carl and sisters Mrs. Louis Hoof and Mrs. Lena Snyder, the survivors, were all awaiting him at the door.

Deceased had lived on Duquesne Heights for 17 years and was well known throughout the county.

...ELS STORY OF GREAT FIGHT

Japanese General's Report Shows That Russians Held Advantage at Outset.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE MIKADO

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

Tokyo, June 19 (3 p. m.)—Gen. Oku, the victor of the battle of Nanshan hill, on May 26, fought and won the battle of Telissu (Vafangow, according to the Russian designation) on June 15.

There is a strong similarity between the two fights. At Telissu the Japanese had to drive the Russians from two hills, while at Nanshan the enemy occupied one hill. The Russian position at Telissu was superior to that of the Japanese and equaled the advantage of the Japanese in having a larger force.

The Russian position extended from east to west and across the narrow valley through which run the Foo Chou river and the railway. From their positions on the right and left in the high hills which flank this valley, Gen. Oku drove the Russians down into the valley. The Japanese general carried first the enemy's right and then his left. The fight at the left of his line was the most desperate of the day. The Russians held this position with desparate determination, and only yielded when they were almost completely enveloped. The field had been disputed all day and when the Japanese reached it 800 of the enemy's dead were found there.

Marched in Three Columns.

Gen. Oku started from a line marked by Pulandien and the Tassa river on June 13. His right column moved along the Tassa river, his main column along the railroad and his left column by a road leading through Wu-Chia-Tun, Su-Chuan-Kou and Tahoai. The Japanese cavalry started from Pitsewo over a road leading through Shunseo and the small bodies of Russians opposing this advance were brushed away.

The left column reached Nan-Chia-Ling on June 14, and the main or middle column and the right column, keeping in touch with each other, reached a line between Chiachiatun and Taping-Ku, seven and a half miles south of Telissu, the same day.

The Russian forces then held a line between Ta Fang Shen and Lung Wang Tiao. The entire Japanese line advanced and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese artillery opened fire. The Russians had 98 guns and they replied with spirit until darkness put an end to the artillery duel.

During the night of the 14th the Japanese right column seized a hill between Tsen Chio Tun and Weng Chiang Tung and the middle column occupied a hill to the west of Taping Ku.

Battle Opened on the 15th.

When dawn of the 15th broke the field of battle was obscured by fog, but the artillery opened early. A portion of the Japanese middle column advanced to the north side of a bend in the Foo Chou river. Here these men were greatly exposed to the enemy's fire, but a force of infantry and artillery was hurried forward and relieved them. At half past 8 o'clock, this relieving force seized a point to the west of Weng Chiang Tung, and, in co-operation with the middle column, drove the Russians from Ta Fang Shen. The Russian batteries posted at Lung Wan Shan and Lung Wan Tiao poured a heavy fire into these forces, but in spite of this shelling the middle column and the men who were sent forward to relieve the force at the bend in the Foo Chou river climbed the heights ahead of them and quickly mastered the situation.

In the meantime, the Japanese right was suffering. The Russian left had been reinforced until their numbers were greater than the opposing Japanese. Gen. Oku was twice forced to order up the infantry reserves. The Russians made a series of desperate counter attacks, and when the situation was most critical the Japanese cavalry swung around the Russian left and struck the enemy on the flank.

Russians Forced to Flee.

At this time additional Russian reinforcements had arrived and the Russians held their position with dogged determination. Their front and both flanks were under fire. They then broke and fled. The Japanese cavalry pursued the enemy for a short time, but the roughness of the country made it necessary soon to abandon the pursuit.

The Japanese left succeeded in ambushing 400 Russian infantrymen who were discovered retiring toward Wu Chia Tun. They sent two companies of infantry and one battery of artillery to a hill east of Hong Chia Tun and the Russians were completely trapped. Many of the enemy at this point were killed or wounded.

In his report, Gen. Oku says the Russians began the fight with 25 battalions of infantry 17 squadrons of cavalry and 98 guns. They were reinforced several times, but the number of reinforcements is not known.

The Russian casualties are not known with exactitude. The Japanese right found and buried part of the enemy's dead. Seven Russian officers and 300 men were taken prisoners.

Japan Lost 900 Men.

The Japanese casualties reported up to noon on June 15 amounted to about 900 men, including eight officers killed and 14 wounded. Gen. Oku concluded his report modestly and loyally with these words:

"The success in carrying superior positions and routing the enemy was due to the influence of the reigning emperor."

OKU BUSY AT PORT ARTHUR

Izumi, which was sunk by the Russian squadron off Oshima on the morning of June 15, have arrived at Hakata. Twenty-two other survivors have landed at Maizuru.

The Japanese steamer Maiki was fired on by the Russians on June 15, but she escaped to Tsu island.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 19.—A dispatch from Mukden says that according to trustworthy advices received there an entire infantry regiment with its commander was sunk in the transports Hitachi and Sado.

The same dispatch says that according to Chinese statements attacks made by the Japanese on Port Arthur have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch, dated June 19, from Vice Admiral Skrydloff:

"On June 15 our cruiser devision encountered, in the Strait of Korea, a Japanese transport steaming from the south in the direction of the Japanese coast, which was visible on the horizon. The vessel proved to be the Izumi with troops on board.

"On the expiration of the time given those on board to lower boats and leave the ship, permission to do which was taken advantage of by part of the crew, the transport was sunk by our guns.

"Shortly afterward two more troopships were sighted to the southeast. They proved to be the Hitachi and the Sado, the former with troops and the latter carrying coolies, horses and a railway plant. The transports refused to surrender and at the end of the period granted those on board to take to the boats, the two vessels were sunk by torpedoes and shells.

Railway Plant Lost.

"The losses on the three transports, the tonnage of which aggregated about 15,000 tons, consisted of a portion of the troops and crews, a large quantity of war material and the railway plant.

"On June 16 our squadron met the British steamer Allanton, which was proceeding south with a cargo of coal from the port of Mourorun, Island of Hokkaido (the administrative name of the Japanese island of Yezzo). The lack of clearness in her papers and the irregularity of her log excited suspicion concerning the neutrality of her cargo. The steamer, therefore, was sent to Vladivostok in charge of a detachment of soldiers, commanded by Licut. Pitroff. She has arrived at Vladivostok where a prize court will consider her case."

Vice Admiral Skrydloff's message to the emperor from Vladivostok in which he details the operations of the Vladivostok squadron indicates that he has accounted for at least three of the Japanese transports besides a suspected collier. The message does not indicate the present whereabout of the squadron.

The fact that the collier was sent to Vladivostok under a prize crew might indicate that the news of the operations of the squadron was brought there by her and that the cruisers are still at sea.

The destruction of an aggregate of 15,000 tons of shipping, besides troops and crews and a valuable cargo of supplies is considered here as being a good showing for the raid made by the cruisers. It is thought that it will have a moral effect and will besides necessarily divert a considerable section of Vice Admiral Togo's fleet in an attempt either to round up the Vladivostok squadron or to protect the line of sea transport concerning which the Japanese until recently felt so secure.

LIAO YANG, June 19.—For the first time since the beginning of the war Gen. Kuropatkin has taken personal direction of the operations, and in consequence of his having assumed the offensive, results very different from those following recent events are anticipated.

The naval attaches have abandoned their plan to visit Port Arthur and are going to Vladivostok. The military attaches have left for the southward in anticipation of important developments.

Pursuit Was Insistent.

The Japanese continued to press the Russian forces returning from the battle of Vafangow on the night of June 16. They had remained at Vafangow all day and at night persistently pushed forward and tried to get round the Russian right wing which had borne the brunt of such heavy fighting the previous day.

A terrific thunderstorm burst at night rendering the roads almost impassable. They were had for the Russians and equally so for the Japanese, who were unable to overlap the Russian right. The Russians, therefore were enabled to retire gradually to the north.

It is stated here that Gen. Kuroki with the main force of the Japanese is at Sui-Yen. It is believed he intends uniting with the force advancing from the south and make a combined attach on Haicheng.

Further details of the fighting on June 15 show that the Russian advance on the Japanese position, when it was hoped that Lieut. Gen. Baron Stakelberg would drive back Gen. Nodzu's army, was a most brilliant affair. Soon after dawn the Japanese were discovered in strong force, on a hill north of Dyalwo. The infantry was well intrenched and supported by artillery. The Russian left was thrown forward with reserves to clear the hill.

They had a little over a mile of open country to cross, their only cover being two small hills and two shallow valleys. The Japanese concentrated a deadly fire as soon as the Russians reached the open. The Russians formed in open order and rushed from point to point, taking advantage of every depression in the ground, dropping and firing, then advancing again, until they gained a hill where they halted for a breathing space.

Over the hill the Japanese threw shrapnel which burst with deadly effect. Some squadrons had every officer killed and half their men wounded. In spite of the terrible punishment inflicted one regiment gained the hill where the Japanese were entrenched. The sixth company of the Third regiment got to within 20 paces of the Japanese intrenchments. They lost all their officers and half of the men. Captain Maclean was the last to fall. He was shot through the stomach.

The men lay panting under the Japanese trenches and out of range of their fire. The Japanese raised themselves over the trenches and fired, the Russians greeting the hail of shots with chaff and the Japanese, angry at their inability to dislodge the attackers, threw stones at them.

Fought With Stones.

The battle then became a hand-to-hand fight with stones and gun butts, and the remainder of the Russians, taking advantage of this diversion, gained the shelter of a neighboring ravine, but were unable to hold the position in the face of the rain of shells and shrapnel concentrated there by the Japanese batteries. The Japanese heavy guns silenced the artillery supporting the Russian attack. Thirteen Russian guns were smashed to atoms and their horses killed. A majority of their gunners were killed or wounded. The guns were useless to the Japanese, as they were literally shot to pieces before they were abandoned. The remainder of the artillery retired to Vafangow.

The Japanese at this moment delivered their main attack. A whole division was thrown against the Russian center and two divisions around the right flank. The hard pressed right held out until 11 o'clock in the morning, when two regiments rushed up to its assistance. The whole force then advanced, cheering and actually rolled back the Japanese advance, but Gen. Nodzu poured in fresh troops, regiment after regiment. The Russian commander saw that he was being enveloped and rallied his reserves and retired in order.

The Russians burned the storehouses at Vafangow and retired at 5 o'clock and the position was occupied by the Japanese at 6.

The Russian losses total 3,000 as near as can be ascertained. It is reported that the Japanese killed many wounded Russians, partly because of their hatred of the Cossacks and also because of their desire not to be burdened with prisoners. Some Russians who were close to the Japanese position declare that many of the enemy were tall and were totally different in appearance to the Japanese themselves.

ALL KEYSTONE MEN WITH PENROSE

of the Leeds club when it arrived at the Auditorium this morning. There was supposed to be a chilliness between the leaders of Philadelphia and the mayor of that city, but the exhibition of friendship today has caused the gossips to believe that all is harmony.

Late this evening the train bearing the delegates from all parts of Pennsylvania arrived. A notable figure in the party was Frank Reeder, who has been in retirement in Pennsylvania politics since the Pennypacker convention. He is a delegate from Northampton county and is in perfect accord with the leadership of Senator Penrose.

Major Alex McDowell of Sharon, chief clerk of the national house of representatives, arrived this morning, accompanied by Col. H. Kasson, sergeant-at-arms of the house, and O. D. Bleakley of Franklin, one of the national delegates-at-large from Pennsylvania. Maj. McDowell is a delegate from the Sibley congressional district. He says that there will be no lack of harmony in the work of the convention and that he is ready to help along the program mapped out by the Pennsylvania leaders. Mr. Bleakley is of the same mind. He is also anxious to see Penrose made chairman of the national committee.

Col. Samuel Harden Church and D. L. Gillespie, two of the delegates from Allegheny county, would like to have an opportunity to vote for Speaker Cannon for vice president. They are also enthusiastice in the belief that Penrose should be put in charge of the campaign.

Ex-Auditor General Hardenbergh, a delegate from Wayne county, would like to see a stampede to Cannon. He is of the opinion that he would bring more strength to the ticket than would the nomination of Fairbanks.

Senator W. H. Andrews of New Mexico late of Pennsylvania, is at the headquarters today eager to do anything to help along the candidacy of Penrose for national chairman. He is also interested in again having the party declare in favor of statehood for its territory. He had been assured by Senator Penrose and a number of national leaders that the plank will be inserted.

"The party could not afford to overlook the statehood plank," said Senator Andrews. "It would furnish ammunition for the Democrats. If Senator Quay were living, he would be here insisting that the plank be put in."

Senator Andrews believes that Fairbanks will be the candidate for vice president. Four years ago Senators Quay and Andrews had much to do with turning the tide of the Philadelphia convention toward Roosevelt for second place on the ticket with McKinley. Senator Fairbanks was then expected to land the nomination. Andrews says that he cannot see where there is much in the Cannon boom.

Ex-Postmaster General Smith of Philadelphia says tonight that he believes Senator Fairbanks will be the nominee for vice president. Senator Fairbanks devoted a good deal of time today meeting Pennsylvania delegates but he gave no intimation that he was seeking the nomination.

Col. W. R. Andrews opened the Pennsylvania headquarters today. Pictures of Senator Quay and his successor, Senator Knox, will be placed in the hall tomorrow. The caucus of the state delegates will be held at 9 o'clock Monday night.

It has been decided that Congressman Bingham of Philadelphia, will represent Pennsylvania on the committee on rules and David Lane will be named on the committee on credentials. There is a probability that the caucus will indorse the candidacy of Fairbanks.

This afternoon the new freight tunnels were inspected by a party of Pennsylvanians. Among the number were Senator Penrose, Senator Flinn, George T. Oliver, Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia, Speaker Walton, Senator Patton, ex-Senator Weller, Ralph Flinn, Thomas G. McClure, Sheriff Dickson, Francis L. Robbins, D. L. Gillespie, Fred W. Edwards and Charles Kiser. They made a tour of over 20 miles in length and think well of the project.

When the Ohio delegates caucus tomorrow afternoon Gov. Herrick and George B. Cox will be in control of the situation. There are rumors tonight that when Senator Dick arrives in the morning, he will try to get the place in the national committee which Herrick believes is certain to come to him.

The slate tonight is Cox for chairman of the delegation, Herrick for national committeeman, Senator Foraker on the resolutions committee, and the place on credentials committee in doubt. Harry M. Daugherty is mentioned, but it is understood that he does not want to serve, owing to the several contests which will come up from Ohio.

In the national committee these contests were settled to the liking of Gov. Herrick, the Foraker men being ousted. Tonight some of the anti-Dick men wanted to give the position on the credentials committee to Dick for the purpose of embarrassing him. He would be between two fires, Herrick with the state patronage on one side and Foraker with the national plums on the other. The belief is that Dick will dodge. There is little talk about the vice presidency, but the delegates generally are inclined toward Fairbanks.

ROOSEVELT DOMINATES: CORTELYOU, CHAIRMAN

The opposition still continues, however, and it is claimed that as delegations arrive it is strengthened. It is not believed that it will go further than strong representations to the president against the selection of Cortelyou, and that evidently the matter will be adjusted without open conflict.

The matter starts special interest among the Pennsylvania delegates, as it is believed that if for any reason Cortelyou should be dropped the choice would fall upon Senator Penrose. The indications are, however, that the administration program will not be changed in any respect.

In fact the agitation is having the result of showing the overwhelming strength of the Roosevelt movement. As soon as any maneuver develops an anti-Roosevelt quality it runs up against trouble in every direction. The antagonism to Cortelyou appears to be producing a reaction in his favor that will carry him through by the unanimous action of the committee, including the members who have been endeavoring to sidetrack him. The fact is recalled that there was the same sort of feeling excited among the old party managers when Mr. Hanna was first selected as national chairman. He was then simply a Cleveland business man and got the position purely through the choice of Maj. McKinley insisting upon the appointment of the man of his own choice. President Roosevelt is simply exercising the privilege enjoyed by his predecessors.

Contests in Delegations.

Apart from the contest over this matter there is nothing to ripple the surface of events save the usual contests inside the various state delegations for convention honors. In some of the delegations there are brisk contests over state representation in the various convention committees, but from the national point of view these matters are unimportant. The only state where the party situation is occasioning real anxiety is in Wisconsin, where there is a very ugly party snarl to be straightened out before the electoral ticket can be insured against serious injury from the factional war in that state.

Apart from the national chairmanship the leading topic of discussion is the vice presidency. The opinion prevails among the well informed that Senator Fairbanks will be nominated, but the plain fact of the situation is that no candidate who has been named has struck fire with the people and that the talk of drafting Speaker Cannon grows in volume and intensity. Many predictions are heard that Speaker Cannon will receive a great ovation from the convention and that there will be a stampede to him among the delegates. It is possible to defeat the working of political calculation in this talk of a stampede. There are a number of senators who would like to see Mr. Cannon in some place where he would not be so much in their way as in the speaker's case. The way in which he forced the senate to back down on the river and harbor bill is not forgotten.

Considered a Kick Upstairs.

Then, too, many friends of the administration would welcome his candidacy on the presidential ticket from the popular strength it would bring also because Speaker Cannon is not thought to be in as great sympathy with the administration views upon currency reform as would be desirable. There is good reason for thinking that Speaker Cannon himself understands that his boom for the vice presidency is in the nature of a kick upstairs, and he does not propose to let any body of men treat him in that way. As permanent chairman of the convention he will be in a position to interfere with effect if any stampede is effected, so that the opinion prevails that Fairbanks will be the man after all. While he does not excite enthusiasm he is strong, safe and capable and will wear well during the campaign.

The Coliseum, where the convention opens on Tuesday, is something over a mile south of the Auditorium hotel, which is the political focus. It is in Wabash avenue, the second avenue from the lake front, and is convenient of access. The building is rather larger than one of our exposition buildings and is a handsome, castellated structure of stone and brick, the main entrance of which is flanked by towers. Lying lengthwise to a broad avenue it has five capacious portals for delegates, with still another for employes. The convention arrangements all show thorough system and good management. Chicago is swallowing the convention crowds without any signs of indigestion. Hotel and restaurant service is as good as usual and there are no complaints of exactions. The weather is perfect and delegates are finding their stay very enjoyable.

CAVALRY REGIMENT TO BE ORGANIZED AT GETTYSBURG

NEW CASTLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—Troop F, the cavalry company recently organized in this city under the auspices of the Pennsylvania National Guard, will become an integral part of a cavalry regiment which will be organized at Gettysburg, this summer. It will consist of Troop F, the First and Second City troops of Philadelphia and three other cavalry companies of the state.

that the Illinois delegates were going into the fight in earnest and respectfully solicited the California vote for Hitt. Graham Stewart, national committeeman from Illinois, was delegated to get out and hustle and see what encouragement he could get. He did so and reported later that things were looking up. Delegates from several western states had promised to get into the Hitt band wagon. The report was received with enthusiasm and Mr. Stewart was commissioned to go further and develop all the support he could.

Senator Cullom, when asked if this movement was not merely a courtesy to Mr. Cannon by switching the limelight from him to Mr. Hitt, put in a solemn disclaimer. He averred with all seriousness that this was a bona-fide boom for Representative Hitt, with a union label gummed on the lining. He said it was standing upon its own legs and had no reference whatever to any other booms now in progress or likely to be started. As to Mr. Hitt's prospects, well, of course, Mr. Cullom would not like to make any predictions. His friends would do their best for him.

Fairbanks' Supporters Confident.

And while "Uncle Joe" Cannon sat in his room and smoked and ruminated and while the Hitt boomers were out scouting for votes, Fairbanks of Indiana, tall, dignified and unruffled, walked about the lobby of the Annex receiving congratulations and good wishes. If he really wants the nomination for vice president, he does not seem to be worrying over any of the other booms. His supporters went about today with an air of supreme confidence that showed no weakening.

Col. Dan Ramsdell and Congressman Hemenway smiled when told of the resuscitation of the Hitt boom. They didn't care, for they felt sure that Fairbanks would be nominated. And there is no reason apparent, after a careful canvass of the situation, why the prediction that Fairbanks will win should be changed. The best guessers and the most experienced Republicans here believe that the Indiana senator will be the nominee, although there are many who criticise him for the policy of silence he has adopted. They believe that he should speak out any say whether he wants the place or not.

A few men were found in the hotel lobbies wearing buttons on their lapels which announced that James B. Reynolds is a candidate for vice president. Mr. Reynolds is from Massachusetts and is secretary of the Republican state committee. Some of his friends have indorsed him for second place on the ticket and to prove their good will, they have invested in a bunch of buttons, which they are passing out among their friends.

Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota is determined to have his tariff plank placed in the national platform. The text of it is as follows:

"We recommend an early readjustment of the rates of the duty in existing tariff schedules to meet the requirements of changed and changing business conditions, and internal interests of our commerce relations with other countries."

When asked today what course he would follow, Senator Hansbrough said: "I will be a member of the resolutions committee and will offer this plank which I believe meets the situation. I presume that someone will have a copy of the platform already written and it is my idea that this declaration of mine can be added to it, without in any way injuring what he has written. The Massachusetts state platform is all right, but I think the paragraph I have written meets the situation frankly."

"If your plank is not accepted by the committee will you take it into the convention?" was asked.

"I cannot answer that at this time. It will depend upon circumstances," he said.

Not Strong Enough for Cummins.

Gov. Cummins of Iowa, the originator and promoter of the Iowa idea, heard that Senator Hansbrough had such a plank ready to offer to the resolutions committee, and he lost no time in inveigling the senator to his room and asking the privilege of reading it. When he had done this, he apparently lost interest in the matter as the plank was not strong enough to be classed with the Iowa idea. Senator Allison of Iowa also heard about the Hansbrough plank and was given the opportunity to read it.

"Well, that is not so bad as it might be," he remarked. There is little fear of the Iowa delegation making any trouble in the convention over the tariff question. The state convention adopted the strongest kind of "stand pat" resolution, and it is certain that the conservatives will be able to control the delegation. Gov. Cummins, who still clings to his "revision" ideas, will not be a member of the resolutions committee, and therefore will not be in a position to make any trouble there.

P. & O. Steamer Ashore.

MELBOURNE, June 19.—The peninsula and oriental liner Australia, inward bound, struck on the rocks at Point Nepean (at the eastern entrance to Port Phillip bay, Victoria) at 2 o'clock this morning. The bottom of the vessel was stove in and it is feared that she will be a total loss. The passengers and crew were safely landed.

ADMINISTRATION FAVORS CANNON

dacy, although some of them concede that if Fairbanks is a formal candidate they do not expect Mr. Hitt to be in the running.

Gov. Odell and Senator Depew of New York arrived Saturday afternoon and immediately began a vigorous propaganda for the nomination of Speaker Cannon. It is understood that the administration favors Cannon, and he would undoubtedly add vigor and strength to the ticket, and at the same time successfully appeal to the conservative element, which, it is feared, may be inclined to be lukewarm. There are a number of other gentlemen of standing and prominence who have been suggested in connection with the nomination.

Senator S. B. Elkins, the able, urbane, gentlemanly and wealthy senator from West Virginia, has his delegation instructed for him. His candidacy would probably be looked upon as more serious in its character were it not for the fact that his colleague in the senate, who is national committeeman from his state, has formed the opinion that Senator Fairbanks would add strength to the ticket, and, therefore, ought to be nominated, and is not backward in coming forward with that opinion.

Vans Sant Receptive Candidate.

Gov. Vansant of Minnesota is said to be a receptive candidate. Senator Dolliver has received honorable mention, although not so serious and vigorous mention as in 1900. He is not understood to have any serious apprehension of a stroke of vice presidential lightning. Mr. Springer of Colorado also has an instructed delegation behind him. If he is presented to the convention by the silver-tongued Senator Walcott of his state, he will have a right to feel certain that his candidacy, so far as the presentation speeches are doncerned, will reach the oratorical high water mark. John L. Webster of Omaha, is the candidate of Nebraska and has the local support of his state.

Any of these men would undoubtedly make good vice presidents. The indications at present, however, now all point to the nomination of Senator Fairbanks.

CANNON SAYS HE WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE

He Feels That His Sphere of Usefulness Is in the House.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, June 19.—In view of a threatened revival of the movement to nominate Speaker Cannon for the vice presidency, charged this time to the New York delegation, Mr. Cannon tonight authorized the following statement:

"After mature consideration, having in view the great compliment that the vice presidential nomination would be to any citizen, yet I am speaker of the house of representatives and have been a member of that body for nearly 30 years. I feel that my sphere of usefulness, if I have any, is in connection with the house. About a week after the close of the late session of congress, at the request of friends and perhaps others, I gave out an interview on this subject. This was done after full consideration and I stand by that interview, which stated in substance that I considered the speakership the second highest office under the government, and if the house was Republican, I hoped to succeed myself, and if not to cheerfully do duty on the minority."

Mr. Cannon concluded his interview with the statement that he was not a candidate for the vice presidency, that he would not at any future time be a candidate and would not under any conditions accept the nomination.

PHIPPS AT THE CLUB: HIS WIFE AT HOME

Judge Reed denied last night that he had taken any part in the conference or, at least, he said that he did not know if an understanding had been reached.

Details of Proposed Compromise.

The suit for divorce was filed by Mr. Phipps in a Denver court shortly upon his arrival at that city after his sensational coup in New York when, with the aid of detectives, he gained possession of his daughters, Helen and Dorothy. Infidelity is the main charge. A. H. McKee of Pittsburgh and a first cousin of Mrs. Phipps, and Dr. Thomas Gallagher of Denver, formerly physician for the Phipps family, were named as co-respondents.

While it cannot be verified, it is rumored that Mr. Phipps is now suing for peace and is willing to reach a compromise, provided Mrs. Phipps will agree to certain stipulations. He is said to be firm in standing out for the custody of his daughters, while Mrs. Phipps is equally as determined to get final possession of the children. A conference was at least agreed upon, and after two days' discussion it is understood that Mr. Phipps delivered an ultimatum last evening. What this was cannot be learned. The ultimatum was communicated to Mrs. Phipps shortly before 9 o'clock, and she is declared to have indignantly refused. She was prevailed upon, however, to consider the proposition and convey her wishes this morning, when the conference will be resumed.

Judge Rodgers' Statement.

Judge Rodgers was seen at the Duquesne club shortly after his return. He was inclined to think that a compromise could not be reached.

"I do not know," he said, "how the matter will turn out, and can, therefore, say nothing definite. I will remain here tomorrow, but I do not want to stay any longer than possible and will cut my visit short."

Referring to the complaint entered by Mr. Phipps in Denver charging infidelity on the part of his wife, Mr. Rodgers said:

"We have not as yet answered that complaint, but, of course, under the law we still have ample time to do so. Whether or not we will file a cross-complaint in the event of the case going to trial, I am not prepared to say at this time, nor can I at the present time state anything regarding the conference we are having, as it would not be expedient. However, I am determined to cut my stay just as short as I possibly can, and am anxious to get away at the earliest possible hour."

Whether this urgency was occasioned by any turn the case had taken Mr. Rodgers refused to state. His conversation carried the inference that the terms of peace as offered him by counsel for Mr. Phipps were not entirely to his satisfaction.

Railroader Expected to Die.

I. G. Flannagan, the railroader who was taken to the West Penn hospital about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning from Butler Junction, is still unconscious and little hope is entertained for his recovery. He was injured in an accident on the West Penn railroad at that place. His skull is fractured.

Janvier Le Duc Is Dead.

MILWAUKEE, June 19.—Janvier Le Duc, for many years a prominent member and officer of the New York produce exchange and for the last few years engaged in business in Milwaukee, died here today. Mr. Le Duc was a native of Montreal, Canada.

PRESIDENT WILL NOT INTERFER

Fairbanks, and prefer that the place should go to a man who will show a little more appreciation of it. Illinois has a good man in Hitt, and rather than let the thing slide to Senator Fairbanks in an aimless sort of way, we have decided to push the fight for Hitt as strongly as possible."

Another meeting of the Illinois delegation is scheduled for tomorrow when the chairmanship question will be settled. Both Senator Cullom and Gov. Yates are aspirants for this honor.

The Missouri delegation which opened headquarters this afternoon, announced that Maj. William Warner of Kansas City will present the name of Cyrus P. Walbridge of Kansas City as a candidate. The Missourians who have had quite a contest among themselves over selection of a national committeeman, have practically adjusted their differences and the selection of T. J. Akins is practically conceded.

Although all the members of the Kentucky delegation had not arrived tonight, John W. Yerkes, commissioner of internal revenue, and one of the delegates from that state, said that while no formal meeting had been held a majority of them were favorable to the nomination of Senator Fairbanks for second place.

The present position of the New York delegation with respect to the vice presidency was stated tonight by Senator Depew. At first he said the delegates thought it would be "a picturesque thing" to nominate Cannon, but inasmuch as the speaker would not have it and Senator Fairbanks will, they will, he said, vote for Fairbanks. With one exception the New Hampshire delegation is for Fairbanks. Senator Burnham expressed confidence in the ability of the remaining members to bring over the anti-Fairbanks delegates.

The mass of delegates apparently are giving comparatively little thought to the platform. The prevailing opinion is that the wishes of the president should be largely consulted on that point, and the impression goes to the extent of believing that he has indicated his views to his particular friends. That Senator Lodge has drawn up the principal resolutions of the platform is generally conceded and all doubt as to whether he would be chairman of the committee on resolutions has been dispelled by the notification, which Acting Chairman Payne has given the senator, that he will be recognized to make the motion for the appointment of the platform committee.

Opposed to Revision.

There is some sentiment favorable to a declaration looking to revision, but the "stand patters" holding their position with a tenacity that indicates a determination to oppose such a move. Senator Kean of New Jersey is a good example of this class. "I see no reason for a change in our present policy," he said, "and I am very much opposed to any move in that direction. My opinion is that we should let conditions alone."

"Will there be a pronouncement on reciprocity?" he was asked, but in reply the senator would only express his desire that there should not be. This he did in vigorous language saying that the let-well-enough-alone policy should prevail in that direction. "As to the Iowa idea," he said, "speaking of the tariff generally, Iowa herself has already taken care of that."

The National Manufacturers association is planning to make a strong fight against the insertion in the platform of any plank calling for or declaring in favor of the adoption of an eight-hour day or any declaration against the writ of injunction as applied to labor disputes.

Eighteen members of the association, several of whom belong to the executive committee, are expected to arrive by tomorrow morning to watch over the interests of the association.

The Iowa delegation has determined upon J. W. Blythe of Burlington as the representative of the Hawkeye State on the resolutions committee. The delegation will hold its caucus tomorrow night. The selection of Mr. Blythe, who is the counsel for the Burlington railroad, is opposed to the Gov. Cummins faction, and prohibits absolutely the introduction by the Iowa delegation of a plank supporting either tariff amendment or a reciprocity agreement. It puts the Hawkeye delegation within the ranks of the "stand patters." Gov. Cummins, it is said, stands with Senator Dolliver in bowing to the inevitable, but his closest friends say that in the event of a minority report in favor of something like the "Iowa idea," he would support it.

NEW BRIGHTON BOY IS FATALLY HURT BY TRAIN

NEW CASTLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—William Walsh, 17 years old, whose home is in New Brighton, was probably fatally injured at New Castle Junction this afternoon, under the wheels of a Pittsburgh & Lake Erie freight train. He was riding on the freight when he lost his hold and dropped upon the tracks. His skull was fractured and his right hand was so badly mangled that it had to be amputated.

No Collision of Destroyers.

LONDON, June 19.—The report in a dispatch to the Paris Temps from Ajaccio, Corsica, that during the night of June 16 the British torpedo boat destroyer, Bat collided there with the destroyer Stag and sank in deep water is untrue. A dispatch from Malta says that the destroyers Bat and Stag arrived there today. The destroyers belong to the squadron of Rear Admiral Walker. No confirmation has reached the admiralty of the report that two British torpedo boat destroyers collided off Porto Torres, Island of Sardinia, on the night of June 16, and that one of the destroyers sank, her crew being saved.

Californian Clergyman Coming.

Announcement was made in the Second Presbyterian church, Wilkinsburg, yesterday that the Rev. John A. Marquis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Redlands, Cal., will visit Wilkinsburg, July 4, remaining two weeks, before deciding whether he will accept the call extended to him by the First church of Wilkinsburg.

Fell Off the Running Board.

Hubert Biff, aged 16, of Harrison street, Pittsburgh, fell from the running board of an East street car yesterday afternoon near Chateau street, Allegheny. His right leg was broken and he is thought to be injured internally. He was taken to the Allegheny General hospital.

Summer Furniture

Summer is made pleasant and delightful if the home is given the appearance of coolness and comfort.

Prairie grass or reed furniture has the double advantage of being the correct thing for the porch and for any room in the house The designs in this class of furniture are peculiarly effective this season.

The dark green shade of prairie grass is particularly pretty, and the styles in which the designer has constructed the various pieces are decidedly artistic. Prairie grass will stand the hardest kind of service and always look well.

There are other materials in porch furniture, and in chairs, settees and swings there is a great variety from which to make a selection.

This is the largest furniture house in the world, and in all departments the various lines are extensive. And prices are always an inducement at

GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE FOREIGNER

Timekeeper on Work Train Was Killed While Rescuing Laborer.

MAN AND BOY DROWNED

Gilbert J. Nolan, aged 26, of Versailles, a timekeeper for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, lost his life at Demmler early yesterday morning while trying to save a foreigner. The foreigner was a laborer on board a work train, and in stepping from one car to another missed his footing, and was sliding off when Nolan ran along the cars to his assistance. Nolan grabbed at the laborer and slipped himself falling under the wheels. Both legs were cut off. He died soon after being taken to the McKeesport hospital. The foreigner escaped unhurt.

The body of a man, supposed to be Gaetano Zingoni, was found in the Monongahela river at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the Smithfield street bridge. It rose to the surface immediately after a steamboat passed. In the pockets were found several letters addressed to Zingoni at 46 Washington street and 210 St. Andrews street. The body had evidently been in the water several days. There was a bruise over the left eye and a bleeding wound in the scalp.

Robert Brogan, aged 16, a schoolboy, whose parents live at 1321 Adams street, Allegheny, was drowned while bathing in the Ohio river at the foot of Rebecca street last evening. He and two other boys were diving from a coal float and Brogan could swim but little. Two men on the steamboat Harry P. Jones recovered his body an hour after he drowned.

Frances Davis, aged 36, the negress who was shot Friday night at her boarding house, 628 Independence street, West End, by William A. Jackson, a discarded negro lover, died at the South Side hospital yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock. The woman was shot four times—in the abdomen, side and through both thighs. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over another negro who is said to have been the most favored suitor of the Davis woman. She stabbed Jackson with a fork and the latter shot her. Jackson was arrested soon after the shooting, and Harry and Herman Carter, Harry Jones and Mabel Gray, all negroes, are in custody as witnesses.

Carrington Vann, aged 64, a negro, died at 8 o'clock last night of old age and exhaustion. He had been sick six weeks and collapsed yesterday afternoon at his home, 48 Enoch street.

CLOSED SPEAKEASIES.

County Officers Find Liquor Being Sold in Shanty Boats.

County Detective Robert G. Robinson and six officers made a patrol of the territory along the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers yesterday and closed up several speakeasies and drove a number of gamblers out of Aspinwall. The proprietors of the speakeasies will be brought to the county jail this morning and charges will be preferred against them.

During last week a number of complaints were lodged with the district attorney about men selling liquor and beer in shanty boats up the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers. Detective Robinson engaged six constables to make an investigation of these complaints, and he went to look into the conditions at Aspinwall. The constables found a number of speakeasies up the Allegheny river and one on the Monongahela river.

The men were locked up in borough station houses last night and will be brought to the city this morning. A number of gamblers were working the shell game in Aspinwall, but when Detective Robinson came on the scene they ceased their operations and disappeared. Detective Robinson has trouble approaching these men, as they have lookouts stationed at the street car lines, and as soon as the county detective makes his appearance they learn of it.

TEACHERS' AGITATION SPREADS

Woman Delegate Reports That Earnest Appeals Were Made in the East.

Mrs. J. Ludewig Koethen, Jr., the delegate appointed by Miss Kate C. MacKnight to represent the federated clubs of Pennsylvania, at the recent conference of the Eastern Educational association in Philadelphia, reports that during the conference several very earnest appeals were made for better salaries for teachers.

It was shown that the standard for teachers is constantly being raised, as the vital importance of the training of the children to the welfare of the state becomes more generally recognized.

WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE BEGINS COMMENCEMENT

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., June 19.—The closing exercises of the 211th session of William and Mary college began today with the baccalaureate sermon, preached by the Rev. Oliver Johnson of South Carolina. The two literary societies, the Phoenix and the Philomathean, will hold their annual celebrations on Monday and Tuesday respectively. The anniversary address before the students of the college, as also the alumni celebration and banquet, will be on Wednesday; the award of diplomas, medals and scholarships on Thursday.

School Children on an Outing.

The pupils of the Wilmerding borough public schools will hold their annual outing at Idlewild park tomorrow. Three trains will carry the pupils from the two school buildings, together with their parents and friends. The merchants will close their places of business and the Westinghouse Airbrake works at Wilmerding will also close.

AN AMERICAN PRODUCT

Scores Another Great Victory in Germany.

Prof. Dr. Lintner, director of the "Scientific Station for the Brewing Industry of Bavaria at Munich," upon analyzing "Pilsner Urquell," the beers of the "Buergerliches Brauhaus" of Pilsen, Bohemia, and "Annheuser-Busch's Budweiser," under date of May 17, 1904, makes the following statement, sworn to before Dr. Fundter, royal notary, and certified by the Hon. James H. Werman, United States consul-general at Munich, Bavaria:

"Upon subjecting the several beers to a careful analysis I find that the 'Budweiser Beer,' submitted by the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, Saint Louis, United States of America, is very similar, in all its characteristics, to the finest and best Pilsener beers. It is effervescent, clear and sparkling, has a beautiful creamy foam and is possessed of a pure, wholesome taste and an exquisite hop flavor. Its keeping qualities by far exceed those of the Pilsener beers, resulting from the use of the very best materials in brewing, and the thorough maturity of the product. The analysis further shows that no acids or other preservatives have been used in its production, and as a result of my examination I pronounce 'Budweiser' a well matured bottled beer of the highest quality."

This acknowledgement, coming as it does from the recognized headquarters of the brewing industry of the old world, must be a great source of gratification and is a merited compliment to the Anheuser-Busch people for their unceasing efforts to produce the finest beer that can be made.

Hospital Exclusively for Incurable Patients

The Hickey Hospital for Incurables, at Fennelton, Butler county, erected by the Very Rev. Father Hickey, pastor of St. Thomas' Catholic congregation at Braddock, was dedicated yesterday and opened for patients. The building and 100 acres of land were donated by Father Hickey to the nuns of the St. Francis order who have charge of St. Francis hospital in this city.

The building is a frame structure of two stories and mansard roof. It contains 20 rooms for patients beside the offices, chapel, dining room and kitchen. The hospital is in a grove of trees on top of a hill which commands a view for miles. The building was blessed by Father Hickey and a number of other priests, nuns and laymen attended the exercises. The Rev. Father J. C. Connolly, formerly of Carnegie, has been appointed chaplain.

THEY WILL SEND AID IF IT IS ASKED FOR

German Societies Only Waiting for a Request for Financial Help from St. Mark's.

A number of German societies held regular meetings yesterday, and, although in most of them the conversation turned on the disaster that afflicted the parish of St. Mark's, New York, by the burning of the steamboat General Slocum, only one society took any action; but it was generally understood that should a request for financial help be sent out the Germans of Pittsburgh and Allegheny would respond liberally.

Henry Lissfelt, president of the South Side Odd Fellows liedertafel, explained the situation. He said: "There is no doubt that if the German societies actually knew that there was distress in St. Mark's parish, and that the community needed relief and would accept it, they would hold meetings and vote aid. But we do not know whether the people will accept aid from strangers. It is a wealthy parish, and it might decline to receive aid, preferring to take care of its own distressed people. If the people of St. Mark's should send out an appeal for aid, I feel convinced that every German society in this vicinity would contribute money."

The liedertafel held a meeting in its hall, at South Eighteenth street and Larkins alley, and a resolution was adopted pledging the organization to send liberal aid to New York in case it should be asked for.

BOARDED WRONG TRAIN.

Traveling Salesman Lands in Ft. Wayne Wtihout Hat or Baggage.

When traveling several hundred miles on a railroad it is refreshing to step off the train at terminal points and take a walking exercise up and down the station platform. Those accustomed to traveling always arrange to relieve the monotony of the trip by this method. John Bruce, a representative of a New York firm, always took exercise at terminal points while the train was being made up for the continuation of the journey. However, an experience of last week changed his mind, and hereafter he will be content with looking out of the car window for fresh air and strolling up and down the aisle of the car for exercise.

Bruce learned his lesson in Pittsburgh. He boarded the Cincinnati car at Philadelphia, having been sent to Cincinnati by the firm. On the baggage car were all his samples and necessary wearing apparel. When the train rolled into the station, took a stroll. Five minutes after his train left for Cincinnati, to make matters worse, he boarded the wrong train and landed in Ft. Wayne without even his hat.

Since the new schedule was put into effect the Cincinnati car is removed from the regular through train and attached to a new train which starts from Pittsburgh.

Bruce did not know of this change until he was some distance down the Ft. Wayne road. By this time his hat and baggage was speeding along the Pan-handle. He had to telegraph to New York for financial assistance to get to Cincinnati.

ALLEGHENY HAS LIGHT.

Private Corporation Furnishes Incandescent Power—Arcs in Operation Tomorrow.

The fire that damaged the Allegheny City light plant Saturday night was not so serious as at first reported, and by tomorrow night the entire city will be lighted as usual. Most of the damage was done to the building and had it not been for the pouring of water into the electrical machinery the light plant would have been little impaired. The loss amounts to $10,000 and is partly covered by insurance.

The Pennsylvania Light, Heat & Power Company yesterday had gangs of men at work connecting the public buildings, engine houses and police stations with their light plant and before nightfall all the incandescent lights of the city were burning as usual. The repairs at the light plant yesterday put into operation most of the arc lights in the downtown sections of the city. The outlying districts will have light by Tuesday night, according to Superintendent Alex Gray.

The origin of the fire has not yet been determined.

ODD FELLOWS' JUBILEE.

McKeesport Bluecher Lodge Will Celebrate This Week.

Bluecher Lodge, No. 506, I. O. O. F., in McKeesport, will celebrate on June 27 its golden jubilee, the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the lodge. It is the oldest German Odd Fellows' lodge in the Monongahela valley and it has but two surviving charter members, Peter Dersam and Adam Schuetz, to whom gold medals will be given.

The celebration will open with a parade, 120 lodges of Allegheny county having been invited to take part. In the evening there will be a supper, concert, reception and dance in Turner hall.

Killian Heist will be chief marshal of the parade; Peter Haag, assistant chief marshal; William Schmidt, adjutant, and George Speidel, chief of staff.

Hymn Books Cost Dearly.

There were 16 prisoners before Magistrate Kirby at the Penn avenue station yesterday morning. Otto Starzer, who was arrested as a suspicious person was fined $100. Starzer was arrested on Saturday at Penn avenue and Fifteenth street. He had a number of hymn books and could not give a good account of himself.

CROATS FEAST IN LIGHTED VAULT

Subterranean Wine Room in Depths of Troy Hill Is Handsomely Furnished.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND MUSIC

In the cool depths of a subterranean vault, 200 feet below the summit of Troy hill, and almost 100 feet back from the main entrance, the Allegheny police yesterday afternoon came upon a party of Croats listening to music and drinking the red wines of Hungary. Seated upon big benches and in comfortable chairs, the convivialists were enjoying an experience novel to them since their immigration. From the vaulted ceiling hung electric lamps, softly shaded, and from another cavern, farther back in the hill, blew cooling breezes. On a long bar stood 10 barrels of Hungarian wine, while on small tables, around which the men sat, stood bottles of the red juice of the grape. Smoking their native pipes and singing to the accompaniment of a Croat orchestra, the merrymakers were rudely interrupted by the appearance of Detectives Ehrhardt, King and Speer and Policeman Schmeider. Samuel Gerbin, the proprietor, and 22 visitors were taken to Central station.

Several weeks ago, it is said, Gerbin came to this city from Philadelphia. He has been living in the Croatian colony in East Ohio street. Almost immediately after his arrival he commenced work in the vault used as a cooling vault for beer when the old Hyde brewery was in existence.

Lighted by Electricity.

The place is constructed entirely of stone. This was thoroughly scrubbed and a system of electric wiring was installed. Heavy rugs were put on the stone floor and suitable furniture was bought. Then Gerbin informed his fellow countrymen that he had secured a license and was about to open a club for the Croats of the city. The opening was being celebrated yesterday when the police interfered.

The old vault is almost directly under the Catholic chapel of St. Anthony, over which Father Mollinger presided years ago. Its entrance is through 1234 East Ohio street, descending a long, gradual incline and through a tunnel, brilliantly lighted, the police entered this unique retreat. Inside were sounds of mirth and music, while beyond the mouth of the sloped entrance not a sound issued to disturb the people living in the vicinity. The wildest din could never have been heard in Ohio street, and the police say the place was the most admirably suited for its purpose that they have ever seen.

When the police entered and the Croats were told they were under arrest, there was great confusion, several of the visitors rushed at Gerbin and threw him to the floor, where he was being severely beaten when the officers stopped the assault. Threats of revenge were made against him by all in the room, and had it not been for the vigilance of the officers Gerbin would have been assaulted during the ride to the lockup.

Deceived by Gerbin.

It developed at the station that Gerbin had assured the members of the Croat colony that he had secured a license for his wine room, and no fear of police interference need be anticipated. It required some persuasion to convince them of this, however, as the Croats in Allegheny are law-abiding. The blandishments of the smooth Gerbin won their confidence and led to their arrest. For this he was assaulted and for the same cause he will probably have to answer to his offended companions when he has satisfied the justice of the police court. The arrest of the party caused intense excitement in the Croat quarter.

Later in the afternoon large numbers of Croats from Pittsburgh went to Allegheny to visit the new resort, upon the invitation of Gerbin. When they found the place closed, and were told of the proceedings they had so fortunately missed, their indignation was extreme. Crowds of them swarmed about city hall and by 6 o'clock most of the prisoners were out on the pavement among their friends, excitedly expressing their opinions of their recreant countryman. Their release was secured by their friends, who appeared with large rolls of money. But not one was there who would give a penny to obtain the freedom of Gerbin.

Railroad Clerks Elect Officers.

The Pittsburgh branch National Association of Railway Postal Clerks held their regular annual meeting and election of officers for the year commencing July 1, Saturday night and elected the following officers: President, W. W. Bishop, Solon, O.; vice president, C. H. Block, Erie, Pa.; secretary and treasurer, F. W. Auworth, Pittsburgh. The following were elected to the executive committee: L. F. Eagan, New Castle; J. B. Work, Erie, and E. D. Millen, Greensburg. The delegates to the Division convention to be held in New York, July 26, are W. H. Hogue, Grove City; J. A. Davidson, Erie; H. S. Gretlinger, Lancaster; E. K. Rudy, Pittsburgh; A. L. Rankin, Blairsville and A. D. Gunther, Hartford, W. Va.

Charged With Taking Change.

Charles Parker of Soho street, was fined $50 by Magistrate Negley at the Oakland station yesterday morning. Parker entered the butcher shop of Henry Wertz 2424 Fifth avenue late Saturday night and while the proprietor's attention was attracted to another part of the store stole the cash drawer containing about $5 in change.

SCHENLEY RACE COURSE MAY SOON BE IMPROVED

Bigelow Determined to Make Changes Without Appropriation—Crowds Were Large.

It is reported that Director Bigelow will begin the improvement of the Schenley race course without an ordinance appropriating the money having been passed by councils. George W. Burke, superintendent of parks, who, it is said, will do the work, could not be seen yesterday. The amount required for the undertaking is about $15,000. At present the track is bean-shaped, and it is proposed to remove the curvature, making the course a perfect oval. A new grandstand may also be built.

Superintendent Burke is now getting the city parks in shape for the Fourth of July. It is anticipated that the attendance at the parks on the national holiday will measure up to former years, except for the crowds that have been attracted by labor carnivals and the visit of President Roosevelt two years ago. Many mowers are now at work keeping the grass down on the lawns and picnic grounds.

The weather yesterday was a little warm to bring many persons to the parks, and the attendance was not what it was the previous Sunday. The zoo, as usual, was a favorite spot for families. The organ recitals and Music Hall and the museum had the usual audiences.

The opening religious services in the parks were held last evening in West park, Allegheny, and in Highland park. In Allegheny music was rendered by the Braddock Library band, while popular hymns were sung by the congregation. The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young spoke. At Highland park the service was similar and both were largely attended.

KIRK IS IN CHARGE.

Entertainment for Relief of Gen. Slocum Is an Assured Success.

Arrangements have all been completed for the repetition by the Pittsburgh lodge, No. 11, B. P. O. E. minstrels at the Nixon theater next Friday evening for the benefit of the sufferers of the General Slocum disaster in New York. The Pittsburgh lodge of Elks was the first organizations in the country to offer assistance and it is expected that a reasonably large sum will be realized for the sufferers through their offer. The minstrel performance which was first given at the Nixon last Thursday and was without exception one of the best performances ever given in Pittsburgh.

The gross receipts realized by the performance Friday night will be turned over in their entirety to Mayor Hays, who will forward them to the proper persons in New York. The use of the theater has been donated by Manager Samuel F. Nixon. Resident Manager Thomas B. Kirk of the Nixon is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

SHOT FRIEND IN A JOKE.

Harvey McGeorge Wounds Silas Coleman With Small Revolver.

While joking with some friends, Harvey McGeorge shot and slightly injured Silas Coleman, aged 49, of 2929 Smallman street, last night shortly after 7 o'clock. Both men are negroes, Coleman is in the West Penn hospital and McGeorge has disappeared.

McGeorge is 28 years old and is six feet four inches in height, weighing about 230 pounds. There were a number of negroes gathered at 2 Parks row. McGeorge was the wit of the party and had been joking with his companions.

"I will take Pheobe and burn you," he said to Coleman.

With this he pulled out a 22-caliber revolver and pointed it at Coleman. The weapon was discharged by accident and the bullet entered Coleman's left thigh. McGeorge became frightened and fled.

PROMINENT NEGROES HERE.

Dr. W. H. Heard and Bishops Canner and Berrick Preached Yesterday.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Heard of Atlanta, Ga., secretary of the preacher's aid society of the A. M. E. church and former minister and consul general of the United States to Liberia, Africa, spoke yesterday morning at St. Paul's A. M. E. church, South Side, in the afternoon in the Wylie Avenue A. M. E. church and in the evening in the Euclid Avenue A. M. E. church. Bishop B. T. Canner of Philadelphia, and Bishop W. B. Berrick of New York, officiated at services in the Wylie Avenue A. M. E. church, of which the Rev. I. S. Lee is pastor, yesterday morning. After a sermon by Bishop Canner, Bishop Berrick offered prayer for the victims and sufferers of the Slocum disaster.

CLERGY COMES TO AID OF TEACHERS

Dr. Arundel Pleads for Higher Salaries for Public School Instructors.

ADVANCES STRONG ARGUMENT

A strong plea for higher salaries for public school teachers was made by the Rev. Dr. A. W. Arundel rector of Trinity Episcopal church, in his sermon yesterday morning. His text was First Corinthians x:15: "I speak as to wise men. Judge ye what I say." He said:

This address is designed as a small contribution to the organized endeavor now being made in Pittsburgh to secure larger salaries for our public school teachers. This movement has already excited widespread interest. The conviction is growing that this tardy movement, if it be successful, will result sooner or later in raising the standard and efficiency of our public schools and therefore be a permanent contribution to the highest interests of our community. There was a time not very long ago when an apology would have been needed for the discussion of the subject from the pulpit on Sunday morning. It used to be thought that religion was an "other-worldly" sort of thing and to be kept sacred from so-called secular contact, and that the church was an institution existing chiefly to deliver people from divine wrath and to save souls in the other world.

But a higher, holier thought of religion and of the church is leavening the minds of men. Religion is an endeavor to get into right relations with God and into right relations with our fellow men, and therefore religion vitally concerns our salvation in this world or any other.

The church is the institution for the promotion of these right relations in its members and the spread of the contagion of this kind of life in the community. This is what the true church stands for and the only thing it stands for. Altogether it has to do with the whole field of human endeavor.

Ancient Prejudice Exists.

But the discussion of this question is at a disadvantage in some quarters and for this reason—that for the most part our public school teachers are women. The influence of an old-time prejudice lingers. We all know that down through the ages disadvantages and disabilities and injustices have been heaped upon women, and most of them have had their origin in the idea that woman is man's inferior. At any rate the history and literature of the world bear witness to the prevalence of the superstition concerning woman's inferiority. The greatest Greek tragedian only voices the spirit of the age when he says: "Better a thousand women should perish than one man should cease to see the light."

The pre-Christian morality of Socrates, Plato and Aristotle knew nothing but contempt for women, and the degraded polygamy and easy divorce of the Jewish system was no real improvement upon paganism.

The pathetic story of the gradual emancipation of woman is too familiar to need repetition. Yet, in spite of all that has slowly resulted for women in the 2,000 years of Christian history, she still lingers under the age-long shadow. And so it happens that any discussion involving the question of women's pay is at a disadvantage. "Just a lot of women." How often the phrase still passes masculine lips: "Only a woman!"

Not long since an extensively signed petition against certain disgusting cruelties in connection with vivisection came under the eye of a distinguished surgeon. "Why," said he contemptuously, as he glanced down the list, "they are only women." The reply he got was complete and suggestive: "You might have said the same at Calvary." And that was true, for

"Not She, with traitorous lips her Saviour stung;
Not She, who betrayed Him with unholy tongue;
She, who the apostles shrank, could danger brave,
Last at the cross and earliest at the grave."

I know that the functions of the sexes are diverse; that the fields of enterprise are only open to men, but the idea that woman is man's inferior is an exploded heresy.

In most of our congregations there are two women to every man—the proportion is probably greater than that—but the reason often given for this is not the true one, viz., because women do less thinking.

Women Not Inferior.

The church has not fewer men than women because women are superstitious and men are wise. That might have been argued in the dark ages, but not now, not in the last decade and a half during which a woman outstripped all competitors in mathematical examinations, as at Cambridge university; in legal examinations, as at the Sorbonne in Paris, and in classical examinations, as at Harvard.

Colleges for women are multiplying and the doors are thronged. The standard of scholarship is as high at Wellesley and Vassar and Smith as at Harvard and Yale and in the professions. Some people seem to think that all this sort of thing interferes with marriage and the home. Perhaps it does. The first influence may be to diminish marriage, a long purse and empty head. The second influence will be to stimulate men to be worthy of those whom they would win. In the long run all the scientific and professional and literary education of women will do as much for the men as for themselves.

In general ability it goes without saying that in the expected line of love woman is many superior. Love is greater than faith, greater than hope; and woman is the high priestess of this immortal gift. The Bible throws no higher analogy of love on earth. "As love for me," said one, "was wonderful, passing the love of woman." Love—no mere sentiment, but an activity, and its peculiar form of activity is self-sacrifice.

Fought Over Chop Suey.

Magistrate Samuel Abernathy disposed of 27 cases at Allegheny Central station yesterday morning. Late Saturday night Sam Lee and Sam Lun, who run a Chinese restaurant at 8 East Ledock street got into a fight with four customers and all were locked up. They had trouble over the payment for some chop suey. Sam Lee was fined $5 and the rest were discharged. Charles Farden of Grand avenue, was fined $10 for raising a disturbance on a Western avenus car.

Monday, June 20, 1904.

IN our page of news Saturday we grew quite enthusiastic over today's Millinery Sale, stating that it was the big feature of this Monday. That is true. But at the same time we did not wish it to be understood as saying this Millinery Sale overwhelmed all other sales. There are many divisions of the store which come forward today with remarkable money-saving opportunities. Among them is the Silk division of main floor, West, wherein is offered

75c Printed Satin Foulards for 38c Yd.

This is a new lot of silks purchased late last week, arriving at the store on Saturday afternoon, and first ready this morning. In the lot are some 4,000 yards. These Foulards are in the pretty messaline finish now so highly favored; there are eighteen different patterns in blue grounds alone over which are printed many beautiful contrasting designs. There are also brown and green grounds in a number of choice printings. We daresay no woman can point to the time when she had such silks offered her for the price of 38c.

At 68c a yard we will have on sale today 85c and $1.00 grades of fancy Taffeta, Louisines and Satin Messalines, in checks, stripes, embroidered and chine effects.

At 45c a yard there will be Tussah Ponges in its natural color, selling regularly for 65c a yard. It is 23 inches wide and is just the proper material for waists and shirtwaist suits.

A Short Piece Occasion in Dress Goods

1,000 Skirt and Dress Lengths Ready Today.

Embodied in the following is what we call a very remarkable presentment. It is the most agreeable fifty-cent offer that we have made in a long time.

The Offer in Colored Dress Goods.

Some have enough for a skirt, others ample material for the making of a dress. Here's the price—

| | |
|---|---|
| $1.00 a yard English Mohairs | All 50c Yd. |
| $1.00 Fancy Striped Suiting | |
| $1.00 French Voiles | |
| $1.25 Silk and Wool Crepe Barege | |

This lot of long and short pieces of Summer Dress Woolens represents the best styles and colors in exclusive materials.

The Offer in Black Dress Goods.

This is really a sale extraordinary. The black materials are fine Summer weaves, and they will be priced:

| | |
|---|---|
| $1.50 Fancy Black Panama | All 50c Yd. |
| $1.25 Black Barette Cloth, 44-inch | |
| $1.00 Black French Voile, 44-inch | |
| .88 Black Twine Voile, 44-inch | |
| $1.00 Black Batiste, 40-inch | |

The foregoing Summer Blacks are all-wool textures, and the batiste is a mixture of silk and wool.

New Nottingham Curtains for Clean Cut Reductions.

Last week a manufacturer tempted us with a lot of fine Nottingham Curtains, together with several numbers in Point d'Araby Curtains. His price was so considerate that we took the Curtains off-hand. Today they are ready in the fourth floor (West), Lace Curtain Department, and we think every woman who attends this sale will be agreeably surprised both as regards the beauty and the fineness of the goods. The prices as reduced are given herewith:

$2.00 Curtains for $1.00 the pair.
$2.25 Curtains for $1.50 the pair.
$2.50 Curtains for $1.65 the pair.
$3.00 Curtains for $2.00 the pair.
$3.75 Curtains for $2.50 the pair.
$4.75 Curtains for $3.25 the pair.
$7.00 Curtains for $4.50 the pair.

Linen Suitings From Belgium, 28c a Yd.

It Cost More Than That to Land Them.

That is to say the importer had to pay much more than our retail price of 28c to get them from the New York Custom House—as a matter of fact their counterparts sold in this country for 60c a yard. The importer having more than he could carry offered us 3,000 yards at a price which enables us to put them into customers' hands for the insignificant little bit of money, 28c. The most wanted of any Summer dress material now on the market. The embodiment of all that is neat for seaside and mountain wear.

White grounds with a dash here and there of color. The width is 28 inches.

The earlier this morning in Fifth Street aisle, West, the better.

Boys' Suits Much Below Regular Prices.

The reduced prices affect the summer woolens and the wash suits. On some the saving is about 33 per cent, on others as much as 50 per cent. Needless to remind you that we handle none but the best. They are all knee-trouser suits, but there's much variety as to style.

$3.50 for $5.00 and $6.00 suits—choice from single-breasted, double-breasted and Norfolk styles. Splendidly made suits these, very dressy.

$5.00 for $7.50, $10.00 and $12.00 suits. These are late styles in imported Scotch Cheviot with unlined coat and bloomer trousers.

$1.00 for $1.50 and $1.75 Wash Suits, Sailor and Russian styles. Sizes 2½ to 10 years. We'll not attempt a description, simply ask you to see them if you've boys around this age.

If parents would like to provide their boys with overcoats we have some for $2.50 which formerly sold for $5.00 and $6.00. Light and dark colors. That's an investment.

Monday, June 20, 1904.

The Gazette desires to call the attention of those of its readers who contemplate summer trips to the announcements of the many summer resort hotels published on page 12 of this issue.

"Crocodile tears" is a phrase that instantly occurs to one in reading that, among telegrams of condolence received by President Roosevelt on the Slocum disaster, is one from the sultan of Turkey. It is a moving spectacle, indeed, to see the tender-hearted Abdul Hamid turn away from his 15 Armenian villages laid waste, and the 2,000 of their population slain by his hired butchers, to pen his sympathy over New York's disaster.

With its usual enterprise The Gazette has a corps of staff correspondents at Chicago to supplement the Associated Press and The Gazette's exhaustive special service in covering the Republican national convention. Readers of The Gazette are thus given the fullest possible news reports, unbiased and accurate, of the events preceding the convention and will get all of the news of the convention itself. In short, readers of The Gazette are served with all of the news worth having all of the time.

It is reported the train robbers who held up the Northern Pacific express in Montana a few days ago, secured not less than $10,000 for their pains, after murdering the faithful engineer. This recalls the spasmodic, but ill-sustained practice of various railroads to send armed guards on treasure trains. The amount of booty secured by the robbers in this one instance would probably pay wages for a year to guards for every express train on the Northern Pacific road. It is not a year since another robbery was perpetrated near the same place as that of last week, in which another engineer was killed and a large amount of plunder secured. It would be cheaper for the road to employ guards and much better, for train robbing would soon become a lost art. A dead train robber is good and in that condition is harmless.

Robbery of the Cheswick postoffice comes as a reminder that the gangs are at work again after a period of comparative quiet. There was some ground for hope that the gang broken up at DuBois awhile ago might have been one of those that formerly operated in this section, but if so there must be another left in this vicinity. It is hardly creditable to our officers, either that they make less progress in coping with this class of marauders than our country neighbors. The failure of the district attorney to secure the county detectives he requested puts an additional duty upon the city police to prevent the safe-crackers from operating in the suburbs and finding asylum in the cities. The Cheswick case is but one of many during the past few months that bear the ear marks of professionalism, and point toward the cities as the rendezvous of the perpetrators.

Certain of our Democratic contemporaries continue to discuss the selection of Attorney General Knox to be United States senator as a "surrender to the trusts." Of course they know there has been no surrender of anything or to anybody, but they think the phrase euphonious and hope to fool the people by it. They shouted, when Mr. Knox was appointed attorney general, that it was a "surrender of the administration to the trusts." Now, since Attorney General Knox has done more than two Democratic administrations to enforce the laws against illegal combinations, they howl that it is a "surrender to the trusts," when he is about to resign from the cabinet. They will be disappointed again. This time they naturally expect it, but they hope the "surrender" slogan may prove "a good enough Morgan for this campaign," and after that they care nothing. Senator Knox will prove as effective in the public interest as Attorney General Knox.

While no formal protest has been made, there are charges by the Russians that their dead, in the battle of Vafangow, were mutilated. It is alleged in a second report that some wounded Russian soldiers were hacked and stabbed to death after they had fallen in battle. It is also averred that the military attaches of the United States, Italy and Spain were called to certify to the alleged violation of the rules of civilized warfare. A peculiar feature of this report is that it declares the mutilation was precisely like that practiced by the Turks in the war with Russia. It is probable that barbarism is not wholly dead among the Japanese. They might be guilty of infraction of the rules in some cases. But it is a fact that they have been particularly humane in their treatment of their prisoners. They have been merciful when they might have been savage. So it is quite as likely that the Russians mutilated their own dead as that the Japanese did it. The fact that the mutilation was the same as practiced by the Turks is suggestive of this idea, for the Russians had seen that barbarous method and the Japanese probably never did. The peculiar barbarity is the crushing of the knees by the gunstock. At any rate there is no reason to believe that inhumanity has any official sanction in the Japanese army any more than that violation of the Japanese flag is officially sanctioned by Russia.

The National Convention.

In the Republican national convention which meets tomorrow there are not many points to be settled. President Roosevelt will be unanimously nominated for president. The national chairmanship will go to George B. Cortelyou, who is the president's choice for the place. There is some uncertainty about the nominee for vice president, but the drift is unmistakably toward Senator Fairbanks. If that gentleman would but say the word that matter would be settled quickly. The chief point of interest is thus the platform of principles. Even in that matter there can be little to surprise. The leading issues will be the same that have rallied the party for many years.

Unquestionably the platform will declare for a continuance of the protective principle of the tariff, for on that principle the party has won the popular confidence. There is some question as to whether there may be a promise of revision of the schedules. If any revision is proposed it will be with full reference to the underlying principle. There will be no abandonment of the position that protection is necessary, or that to it the people owe the marvelous industrial progress of their country. It is this the Republican party has always stood for. It is not wedded to any schedule or set of schedules. It has changed tariffs and may change them again, but always with full protection to cover the difference between wages here and abroad. It may reasonably be expected that the convention will indorse the proposition to have a tariff commission in connection with the department of commerce and labor. That is the only business way to handle this matter and it will do more, probably, to limit disturbance of business than any other method.

Considerable interest will be shown by the public in the "trust" plank, for, of course, there will be a plank on that subject. This, it may be expected, will follow the policy of the administration, as exemplified during the past two years. Regulation, without "running amuck," may safely be assumed to be the keynote. We believe that is the sentiment of the American people, that the big corporations should be brought under control by the government but not harassed in a way to injure legitimate investment or to prevent progress. It is easy to talk about "busting" the "trusts," but no reasonable man wants anything of that kind to be done. They can be regulated to prevent injury to other people, and that everyone does want done. The problem of how to do it is not easy. But the present administration has made a good beginning and the convention can do no less than to indorse that work and encourage its continuance.

For the remainder there is not much to be guessed at. The administration and its record will be indorsed, as it deserves to be, and the campaign will turn largely upon that record as an issue. Already the Democrats have made it plain they intend to challenge some of the president's acts, and the Republican voters are ready to meet them on that ground. It is good ground, because the president has been guided by justice and has ranged himself on the side of justice.

An Empty Prophecy.

The days of the war correspondent are numbered, prophesies George Kennan, the famous Siberian traveler, writing to the Outlook from Tokyo. With the multiplication of facilities for rapidly transmitting news, he argues, the man at the front, with notebook and pencil, is now as dangerous to armies as a spy. What he discloses this morning of Japan's intended plans, for example, may be flashed to Russia by tonight. Therefore, in all wise military campaigns in the future, Mr. Kennan concludes, the foreign correspondent must sink to an insignificant factor, scarce worthy of mentioning. Such a war as that of Japan's, he asserts, is waged to preserve a nation, not to make news, therefore he approves the rigid censorship which the mikado's government exercises over the correspondents now on the field, and the determination not to permit them to know what is going on at the front.

If Mr. Kennan—who, by the way, was one of the stay-behinds in Tokyo when his letter was written—designed an artful way to worm himself into the good graces of the Japanese military authorities, his letter is a clever piece of work, but no one need take his prophecy seriously. The business of the war correspondent is not to give away military plans, even though he should discover them, but simply to send home the news of what has transpired. If he is a newspaper man of good sense and proper training, he probably knows what to withhold from publication as well as the censor, especially when it comes down to a question of holding his job. As long as war makes news he will be on hand to write it up, and the special value of his work will lie not in that he essays the role of a spy or a prophet, but that he conveys an intelligent and vivid narrative of events that take place. So he does that the public is quite ready to release him from secret service work, even if his story should happen to come along two or three days late.

Kuropatkin's Aggressive.

Reports that Gen. Kuropatkin is moving south with a very large force indicates his intention to give battle to the Japanese at Hai-Cheng or beyond. But whether he is simply following the design for which Gen. Stakelberg was sent south—that of creating a diversion from Port Arthur—or to extricate Stakelberg from an embarrassing position, or believes he has force enough to crush the Japanese on the peninsula, remains to be seen. It is intimated in various quarters that his movement is in response to appeals from St. Petersburg, where some sort of diversion is deemed necessary to sustain Russian prestige or credit, but it is more likely from the desire to save Stakelberg's force from complete extermination.

Whatever the motive of Gen. Kuropatkin's advance to the south, it is sure to precipitate heavier fighting than has yet been seen in Manchuria, and it may prove the decisive point in the war. Supposing that Gen. Kuropatkin's force is fairly matched in numbers with the Japanese troops to be met in that direction, it is a hazardous undertaking. At least one of Gen. Kuroki's columns is advancing along the Ai-ho river road and is almost within striking distance of the Manchurian railroad at Liao-Yang or Mukden, whichever may be chosen. The strength of that column is not known beyond the fact that it has been able to drive Russian garrisons of from 300 to 500 men from important points along the road, and the reasonable assumption that Gen. Kuroki would not send so far into the interior a column not well able to meet serious opposition. Beside this, Gen. Kuroki has another column approaching the railroad toward Hai-Cheng that is in position to strike Gen. Kuropatkin's right flank when he meets the forces of Gen. Oku and Gen. Nodzu advancing from the south. Unless Gen. Kuropatkin has a larger force than has been supposed, the available Japanese armies will outnumber him, beside being superior in artillery.

It is one of the mysteries of Russian policy why Gen. Kuropatkin should, at this time, abandon his persistent plan of acting on the defensive, leaving his fortified position at Liao-Yang to join battle on even terms of position with the enemy. Either he has been spurred to this course by urging from St. Petersburg, or there is some element in the situation not seen from the outside. The threatened uprising of the Tartars is not a sufficient explanation. Gen. Dessino's interview gives the impression that an uprising of the Tartars will be used as an excuse for involving other nations in the war if Russian defeats continue uninterruptedly, and it is not impossible the present movement is intended, if unsuccessful, to lead to general complications that may save Russia from the humiliation of complete and decisive defeat by Japan alone. Yet the simplest explanation is that the Japanese are completely enveloping the routed Stakelberg and the commander-in-chief is taking a heroic and desperate chance to rescue him, at considerable peril to himself.

We Are the Americans.

Secretary Hay's order according to which the term "American" will succeed that of the "United States" in official designations of our embassies and consulates is a change for the better. There are a number of countries known as the United States, but there is only one United States of America. So far as the name goes United States embassy would do just as well for the United States of Colombia as for these United States. The proper adjective for us is the word American.

From time to time the right of citizens of the United States to use the term American as a distinctive title is questioned. The Canadians, for instance, argue that they are just as much Americans as we are and so likewise may argue the Mexicans, Brazilians and other inhabitants of American countries. But in every such case they have a distinctive title based upon the proper name of their country. The term American has this place with us and there is no term that can take its place. Our full national title is the United States of America. The only short term that can be extracted from this is American. It would certainly be very uncouth for us to attempt to call ourselves Unitedados or Statesians, but American is all right both in sound and significance.

If envious critics think it implies the claim that in all America we are the people, even justification for that is not lacking, but as a matter of fact no such implication is made. American in this sense is simply a word meaning of, or relating to, the United States of America.

They must be rigid Sabbatarians in Findlay, O., when a coroner's jury could bring in a verdict that "the victims came to their death by being employed on Sunday in the torpedo department of the Lake Shore Novelty Company's works."

"Just as our troops were beginning to successfully envelop the enemy's right flank," says Gen. Stakelberg. But what can one expect of a general who splits the infinitive?

The law is a slippery business anyhow, so it is befitting that a greased pole contest should be down on the program of the Allegheny attorneys' picnic.

What show is there for clean politics in Maryland when three men by the name of Mudd are running for congress in one of her districts?

How'd Colorado like it if Kansas were to deport "Sockless" Simpson, "Whiskers" Peffer and Carrie Nation to her?

If the shereef of Wazzen is going to act as intermediary in that Raisuli affair, we'd like to examine his writ first.

On the other hand, these be the halcyon commencement days when the thermometer begins to take its degrees.

No one can accuse the Democratic party of lack of patriotism. It died for its country seven years ago.

A California girl is delighting Bayreuth by dancing to Wagner's music. Sort of a St. Vitus stunt, probably.

Boozona Sokup, a Croatian immigrant, is awaiting inspection at Ellis island when he sobers up.

What a tartar Raisuli would have caught if he had captured the Boy Orator of the Platte instead!

Talked of in Gotham

By GEORGE C. JENKS.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—In every church in the city today touching reference was made to the General Slocum disaster. Sympathy was expressed for the grief-stricken relatives of the women and children who were burned or drowned in that awful half-hour last Wednesday, and then the pastor tried to extract what lesson he could from the calamity. There is no denying that, as a rule, the effort was obviously perfunctory. Particularly is this true of one minister whose church is in the zone of the bereaved families on the East Side. It seemed that the speaker realized how useless it would be to preach patience to a man who had lost his wife and five children at one swoop, as was the case in more than one instance. There was no service in St. Mark's church. Christian fortitude there might be, and is, but some time must elapse before the consolations of religion will have their full weight. In other churches the discourse was general in character, and carried the warning of life's insecurity, which was naturally suggested by the taking off of more than a thousand persons in the heyday of life and youth. Whatever the line of admonition, it was listened to with an intensity that was almost painful. The period for a religious revival seems to be here, and the horror in the East river will be an impressive text for some time to come. Clergymen of all denominations took it up this morning. Protestant, Roman Catholic, Jewish, Greek and the many other churches which exist in this great cosmopolitan center, all devoted part of the time of service to recognition of the sorrow which had come to their neighbors in the thrifty German quarter around Tompkins square. In time of grief brotherly affection is nowhere more in evidence than in temples of worship. The words of sympathy from hundreds of pulpits this morning was the natural expression of popular feeling.

Will Still Be Old Coney.

There does not seem much likelihood of Coney Island changing its name to "Surf City." To many hundreds of thousands of people Coney Island is a place of joy, and its name is so integral a part of it that the idea of calling it anything else sounds like sacrilege. There is a Surf avenue at Coney, and a handsome thoroughfare it is. But down on the beach is Coney Island, and no one wants it to be anything else, except a few people who think that the whole place will not be able to shake off its old reputation for ribaldry unless it is called something else. The same thing was said about the Bowery a few years ago, at the time the great Broadway of the East Side began to shake off its excrescences of tough "joints" and thieves' kitchens. But the old Boweryites, with the honor of the street at heart, opposed it, and it remains the Bowery, with no prospect of its ever being anything else. The Coney Island agitation to become Surf City will doubtless end in the same way.

Pleasure Boats Still in Favor.

There were numerous boat excursions today. Although there is no doubt that many persons who would have gone to the seashore and other resorts by steamer refrained from doing so on account of the General Slocum fire, the boats were all pretty well patronized. There were not the crowds that are ordinarily seen on a bright Sunday, but many more were aboard than seemed likely from the general trend of expressed opinion last Wednesday. People soon forget.

Roaring Trade in By-Places.

How valuable is business space in Manhattan is exemplified in the number of little cubby-holes wherein venders of small articles stow themselves, paying goodly-sized rentals for their "stores." Take Fourteenth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, for instance. On the north side of the thoroughfare there is a row of old-fashioned brownstone houses that were private residences not long ago. Today they are all devoted to business from top to bottom. The basements are stores, and so are the floors just above the street. The peculiar evidence of the commercial value of the location, however, is in the fact that underneath each flight of stone steps leading to what used to be the big front door of the private home, is a store, with a show window, all complete. There is hardly room for two customers and the proprietor, with the space occupied by the stock, but the rent charged is as much as one would pay for a regular store in a less busy neighborhood. There is a cigar store, a delicatessen establishment and a stationer under these flights of steps, and all seem to be doing a roaring trade. Nothing in the way of space goes to waste in Fourteenth street.

Treasure From the Death Swirl.

It is not hard to believe that the total amount of money and property found on the bodies of the dead in the General Slocum calamity will aggregate $300,000, as has been said. On the body of one woman the coroner found $60,000 in money and valuables. The guests of that church excursion were a thrifty people, and few of them trusted banks or safe deposit vaults.

Flowers for Their Epitaphs.

One of the pretty charities of New York is the Flower guild. It is an organization of women which provides flowers for sick people who cannot afford to buy them, as well as for funerals. The flowers come from the gardens and conservatories of wealthy people along the Hudson river and elsewhere near the city, and many tons are distributed yearly. The guild has determined to decorate the graves of the unidentified victims of the General Slocum fire, when the final interment takes plate at the Lutheran cemetery at Middle Village.

Sops to Cerberus.

Janitors are such an important factor in the domestic life of Manhattan that it is a matter of general interest that prizes are to be offered for excellence in janitor work. A similar function was held last year, with the result of much better service from the autocrats of the basement in many parts of the city. The East Side Janitors' association is at the back of the competition for the prizes, and it reports that much good has come from its efforts to improve the work of janitors. There was plenty of room for improvement, as many an unhappy flat-dweller can testify.

Park Lakes Too Deep.

It is so seldom that a fatal accident occurs at the Central park lake, that the drowning of a boy there on Friday has attracted general attention. A few years ago there was a strong agitation on the subject of making all the ornamental waters in parks in Greater New York of a uniform shallowness, so that drowning would be practically impossible. If anyone should happen to fall in. The discussion died away and nothing was done. It is possible that it will be revived now. There is a popular sentiment that three feet of water is enough at the deepest part of any ornamental lake.

Pittsburgher's Play for Pittsburgh.

James Forbes' successful one-act comedy, "The Chorus Lady," is about to be produced in London at one of the big music halls. The talented young Pittsburgher has sold the English and continental rights to his playlet through Elizabeth Marbury. He tells me "The Chorus Lady" will soon be seen in Pittsburgh.

The Quiet Observer

By ERASMUS WILSON.

What a glorious world this would be if everything was all right. Haven't you thought so many a time?

For some it is all right as it is, but not for some others; and if it were made all right for these it would not be right for those. See?

Just here the philosopher breaks in with the observation that the world is all right as it is, and if there is anything wrong it is the fellow who is making the fuss.

Philosophy reads well and is nice to listen to, but somehow or other those who read and those who hear are apt to balk when the time comes to make practical use of it.

And it is a good deal the same with religion, there being but very few people who will not say it is a good thing, and stand up for it, too, until called upon to make practical use of it in their lives.

You may regard yourself as being a good friend of religion and still not be on really friendly terms—that is, not on reciprocal terms—you doing as much for religion as you expect religion to do for you.

Who is it that does not hope to be buried with some sort of religious rites, or who does not depend upon religious influence to some way help him in the world to come? It is the hope of rest and peace hereafter that robs death of its great terror, and that same hope is buoyed up by religion.

Philosophy teaches that to be effective religion must be reciprocal, the same as friendship.

* * * * *

The trouble with folks generally is that they can't get it through their heads and into their hearts that whatever is, is right.

The philosopher, however, will tell you that Pope was right, quite right, in saying that:

"In spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,
One truth is clear, Whatever is, is right."

Some prefer the manner and form in which Dryden presents the same truth: "Whatever is, is in its causes just."

But, after all, it is six of one and a half-dozen of the other, since all must agree that nothing exists, or occurs, or happens, without a good and sufficient cause.

And when we have gone so far as to concede all this, along comes the philosopher with a little proposition to the effect that everyone will get what is coming to him, sure.

This is a hard proposition at first, but when we recall the fact that it is one of the greater propositions in our religion, and one of the plainer teachings of nature, and altogether in accord with logic and with reason, we simply give up the argument and go a-fishing, or tackle something that is not liable to undo us; or, rather, to do us.

* * * * *

We all have our troubles, or that which we call troubles. They may not be, and as a rule they are not, worthy to be called such, but we don't want philosophers coming around telling us that without these life would be one long monotonous spell of existing, merely existing.

You may have had a doctor tell you that the big, angry, painful boil that was making you so very miserable, was worth as many dollars as you have fingers; and you know what you thought of him at the time, which same we are apt to think of the philosopher who is ever striving to help us to see the good there is in things that don't look good, nor feel good at the time.

And were we to listen more attentively and follow him more closely, we might be led to see that much of that which we have been regarding as unmerited trouble was the very best thing for us—a blessing unrecognized, yet none the less a blessing, if in nothing else than it took some of the self-conceit out of us, or tended to make us more careful.

Of course, these are more or less hard to bear, but wasn't it so with the spankings you used to get? And can you expect less of Mother Nature than of your natural mother? You are still a child, only a little larger grown, and still being educated and disciplined for a higher life, just as your mother trained and disciplined you for the present life.

Take troubles seriously but not sadly and despairingly, for they do not kill.

* * * * *

You may feel, or even believe, that you have about all the trouble there is, but there are others who can easily put you out.

Maybe you have thought you had written something a good deal more readable than some things you had seen in print, and on the strength of your feeling you sent your stuff to publishers only to have it returned, or thrown away.

This strikes a youngster as real trouble, and he is apt to take it pretty hard. But the harder he takes it the more trouble he will have. He must get it well into his head that the publisher knows what he wants, or thinks he does, which amounts to the same thing as far as the writer is concerned.

In such cases the correct plan is to send the stuff to another publisher, and write another bunch for the one who refused it, being certain to write something different. And then keep at it, for the writer who allows two or three dozen refusals to knock him out, or even to discourage him, stands a poor show of finishing among the good ones.

Mr. Quiet Observer:—The poem, "What Is Charity?" as printed in Saturday's Gazette, is not quite accurate.

The writer has some very old copies of the Somerset Whig and in the issue of October 29, 1818, the poem is printed, an accurate copy of which is herewith enclosed. The punctuation is also as then printed.

Cobb's spelling book, which dates back to 1835, also contains the poem. The title is the same, but the author's name is not given. The punctuation varies from the older copy, but the words are the same.

Somerset, Pa. W. H. WELFLEY.

"'Tis not to pause, when at my door,
A shivering brother stands;
To ask the cause that made him poor,
Or why he help demands.

"'Tis not to spurn that brother's prayer,
For faults he once had known;
'Tis not to leave him in despair,
And say that I have none.

The voice of Charity is kind—
She thinketh nothing wrong;
To every fault she seemeth blind,
Nor vaunteth with her tongue.

In Penitence she placeth faith—
Hope smileth at her door;
Relieveth first—then softly saith,
"Go brother, sin no more!"

Policeman's Picnic

THE STROLLER.

The evening rush hour was over and Fifth avenue had taken on that semi-deserted appearance just preceding the twilight. Cornerman Patrick Mangan, the big blue-coated figure who directs traffic at Fifth avenue and Wood street, had relaxed his watchfulness and stood conversing with a friend.

"It's been awfully quiet around here today so far as anything unusual is concerned," the officer was saying, but just then his attention was attracted by two little figures beside the Farmers bank building. Under one of the Wood street windows stood a couple of boys, neither of whom could have been over 7 years of age. One of them was trying to boost the other up to the window ledge so that he could look into the place.

"I think they must be bank robbers," laughed Mangan, as he started across the street. The two little dirty-faced, bare-footed tots had given up their attempts to reach the window ledge and started along toward Fifth avenue. At the corner stood two handsomely gowned women.

"Aren't they just too cute for anything," exclaimed one of the women, as she reached in her purse and gave the boys each a penny. She had just started to interrogate them when Mangan reached the corner. Judging from appearances that the little ones were lost he stepped up and, placing a hand on each, he said:

"I think I'll run you both in for flirtin' on the public streets."

Everyone laughed except the boys, who were just at the age when they look upon a policeman as something to be regarded with great terror. They were so frightened that they couldn't even cry. There was considerable parleying between the youngsters and the "cop," during which the latter was compelled to get down on one knee so that he could look into the chubby, little dirt-begrimed faces and better assure them that he meant no harm. When asked where they lived one of them pointed toward the Monongahela river.

"Come along then and we'll see if you are givin' me the blarney," laughed Mangan, and with a tot holding tightly to either trousers leg at about the height of the knee, the officer started along Wood street.

"Nice lady give me a penny," confided the tot on the right.

"Yes an' its a fine help you'll be to your mother a-running after other women like you are."

"I'm going to buy some candy with my cent," retorted the little one on the right.

"Don't tell me anything like that," laughed Mangan, "it's chop suey you'll be spending the money for."

Quite a number of people had become interested in the oddly matched trio, and several walked along just to overhear the conversation between the big officer and his diminutive charges. The boys, growing bolder since they had become such friends with the "cop," decided upon an inspection of the shop windows. As a result Mangan had to pick them up, one under each arm, and the fairy tales he told about some of the window displays would have done credit to an Aesop.

When they tired of this Mangan permitted them to take turn about carrying his mace and so great was each tot's desire to possess the coveted stick that it was with some difficulty order was preserved. Thus the little procession slowly worked its way to Wood street.

"Do you know where you live now," asked Mangan, and in reply one boy pointed east and the other north. They were so interested in getting hold of the mace that they couldn't even remember their names.

"Ah, but you're a bad pair, breaking the peace of the city, and I guess I'll have to pinch you," said Mangan, looking around at the score or more of men and women who had gathered.

"Who are they?" asked a kindly looking woman in the crowd.

"Sure, I don't know, except one of them says he's a baker and the other shoes horses for a living," answered Mangan, with his face beaming. By keeping up a running fire of comment and banter he succeeded in finally getting the little ones to the matron's department at police headquarters. He then had some trouble in leaving them, as both insisted on his playing "horsey."

"It was as good as a day in the country," confided the big officer when he finally got back to his post.

An hour later two distracted mothers called at police headquarters and claimed the little runaways.

It was just a little touch of nature enlivened with the homely wit of a big-hearted Irish policeman, but it interested many people and sent them on their respective ways feeling better for having seen and heard.

* * * * *

How many people recognize in the professional pallbearer with his immaculate linen, frock coat, silk hat and white gloves, who is seen at most of the large funerals, the policeman who the night before was patrolling his beats in blue uniform and shining brass buttons? The sad-faced, somber-looking men who carry the caskets in no way resemble the jovial, sauntering patrolmen, but nevertheless, that is who they are. It is only in recent years that the professional pallbearer has come into vogue, and it must be said that the innovation is an entire success. Before his advent it was the duty of the deceased's intimate friends to bear him to the grave, and this was in no wise a pleasant duty. The professional pallbearer was the solution.

At the beginning the undertakers had considerable difficulty securing proper men for the work. A professional pallbearer must be a large, strong, careful and dignified person. To overcome this difficulty the funeral directors hit upon the scheme of employing policemen for the work. They selected men who answered all the requirements and listed their names. As the funeral services are always held during the day the policemen were necessarily selected from the night patrol.

Such satisfactory inducements were offered to these men that they agreed to respond whenever called upon. A careful course of instruction was then given them. They were taught the different funeral services so that no hitch might occur at the church or grave, were thoroughly coached in deportment and "appearance." When this was done the squad was taken to a tailor where the proper clothing was made for them.

So efficient and carefully trained are these men and so properly attired that they are in constant demand at the large funerals.

RICE AND VALOR.

The Japanese Teach Beef-Eating Soldiers of World a New Lesson.

The Japanese have proved themselves to be as valorous and stubborn fighters as there have ever been in the world. Their diet has not changed or varied any for centuries, and consists of not much more than rice and a little dried fish. It is hard to believe that a people so fed could do heroic deeds; but they have proved themselves sturdy heroes, and so some very set dietetic opinions in Europe and America must be discarded.

The poets have sung of the roast beef of merry old England, and attributed the glorious and repeated victories which the British jackies and redcoats have gained in every land to the generous quantities of beef which they grew up on. In the United States also we are inclined to assign our marvelous successes in peace and war to the vigor and courage which supposedly come from a liberal meat diet. The biggest feeders are the best fighters and workers, is one of the cardinal doctrines of all who have a northern European origin. Americans are especially extravagant at table, while the American soldier is so inclined to grumble about his grub that the commissary has become the most difficult and cumbersome department in the army. Our strikers invariably talk about the empty dinner pail, and it is empty to them unless it is half-full of chicken, pork, mutton or beef.

But we now have a living illustration of the fact that man does not live and fight by meat alone. He may live on almost a strict vegetable or cereal diet and yet be strong, healthy, prosperous and capable of the highest intellectual development. If the price of beef becomes too high for the poor in this country it does not mean that they are doomed to degeneration. Our future as a nation does not depend entirely upon the beef trust. When one article of food passes out of the reach of the poor there is always another available in this broad land of ours, and even if we are reduced to only an occasional taste of meat, in spite of that we now have the example of Japan to show that our bravery and vigor may still remain.—Kansas City Journal.

The Death Roll

Mrs. B. F. Woodburn.

Mrs. B. F. Woodburn, wife of the Rev. Dr. B. F. Woodburn, pastor of the Sandusky Street Baptist church, Allegheny, died at her home in Perrysville avenue, yesterday. Mrs. Woodburn, who was formerly Miss Margaret Shouse, was born in Pittsburgh on October 4, 1836, and shortly after removed to Shousetown, where her father, Samuel Shouse, was a prominent shipbuilder. Here Mr. Woodburn, who was then a steamboat clerk, married her in 1854. They were to have celebrated their golden wedding in September. Shortly after Mr. Woodburn studied for, and later entered, the ministry, preaching for a time at Mt. Pleasant and for the past 35 years has been pastor of the Sandusky Street Baptist church. Mrs. Woodburn was prominent in church work and for many years was president of the Children's Aid society of Pittsburgh, a member of the Allegheny General Hospital Aid society and active in other religious and charitable organizations. Six sons and two daughters, together with her husband, survive. Dr. Samuel S. Woodburn of Allegheny, who was a candidate for mayor of Allegheny on the Republican ticket against Mayor Wyman, is one of the sons. Mrs. C. B. Aylesworth, wife of the treasurer of the Oakland Savings and Trust Company, and Mrs. J. T. Mead of Warren, O., are the daughters. Funeral services will be held in the Sandusky Street Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment will be made in Sewickley cemetery.

John Wallace.

John Wallace died yesterday at his home, 1845 Bluff street. He was 81 years old. Mr. Wallace's great-grandfather, Robert Wallace, came to America from Ireland in 1752, settled first near Baltimore and then went to Westmoreland county, Pa. Robert's son, John, took up a farm on Peters creek, near the line between Washington and Allegheny counties, where his son, Jacob A. Wallace, was born. Jacob bought a farm in Snowden township, this county, and there John Wallace, who has just died, was born. Mr. Wallace was a farmer until 10 years ago, when he retired and moved to Pittsburgh. In 1835 he married Miss Margaret Horning. In 1859 he organized the Jefferson guards, the oldest but one militia volunteer company in the state. When the war broke out he offered the services of the company to the state, but there were so many companies ahead of them that they could not be accepted as a company. Until a few days ago Mr. Wallace was in fair health, but died of heart failure, superinduced by asthma. He is survived by a son, John Milo Wallace of Snowden township, and a daughter, Mrs. F. T. Batchelor. Funeral services will be held at the house at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow and at 2 p. m. the burial will take place in the cemetery of the North Zion Lutheran church, on the Brownsville road.

Mrs. A. G. Barnett.

Mrs. Bessie Wrenshall Barnett, wife of A. G. Barnett, died on Saturday in Philadelphia, whither she had gone some weeks ago for medical treatment Mr. Barnett was with her when she died and will arrive home with the remains today. Mrs. Barnett was the daughter of the late John F. Wrenshall and was married in 1879 to Mr. Barnett, who is a prominent banker of Pittsburgh, and who lives in Woodville. She leaves no children. Mrs. Barnett is survived by her husband and her brothers, James Wrenshall of Baltimore, Charles of North Carolina, R. C. of Sewickley and W. E. and Miss Mary Wrenshall, both of Woodville.

Col. Samuel S. Vinson.

Col. Samuel S. Vinson died at Huntington, W. Va., last night, aged 72 years. Under the Cleveland administration he was United States marshal for the district of West Virginia and had always been active in Democratic politics. Few men were better known in the southern section of the state, and the development of the Twelve Pole and Big Sandy valleys came largely through his efforts. He was the father-in-law of Congressman James A. Hughes.

Obituary Notes.

Miss Margaret Grace Smith, daughter of Samuel Smith, died yesterday at the family residence in Garfield avenue, New Castle. She was 21 years old. She is survived by her father, a sister and a brother, Mrs. G. Lindner of this city and Charles E. Smith of Donora, Pa.

Mrs. Elizabeth Osborne, wife of Samuel E. Osborne, died late Saturday night, at her home in Oak street, New Castle. She was 45 years old and was the only sister of the Hon. John B. Brown, ex-postmaster of this city. She was an active member of the Epworth Methodist church. She was twice married, her first husband, John Trushel, dying many years ago. Her second marriage took place two years ago.

PERSONALS

Col James S. Elverson, owner of the Philadelphia Inquirer and a delegate to the Republican national convention, passed through here last night on the Pennsylvania limited for Chicago.

Col. George Rice, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, was a passenger on the limited for Chicago, to attend the Republican national convention. Col. Rice was in active duty in the Philippines until a few months ago, but refused to discuss the island question except to state that he believed the process of assimilation introduced by this government would meet with ultimate success.

A party of Japanese merchants from Tokyo, including H. Naito, S. Yamaguchi, Fa. Keda and Y. Hayolin, are registered at the Duquesne hotel. They have been on an extended tour of this country and are now on their way home.

Neighbors Visiting Pittsburgh.

Visitors from nearby towns, registered at local hotels last night, were:

Lincoln—J. P. Jarvis, New Castle; B. O. Bailey, Grove City; M. A. Hill, Erie.

TWO GREAT HEROES AS OUR IDEALS

President Roosevelt Holds Up Lincoln and Washington as Patterns for Country.

HOMAGE MEASURED BY ACTS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Press Building.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 19.

In the quiet, picturesque confines of Valley Forge, where over more than a century ago the man who afterwards was first president of the United States led a suffering and starving army through a memorable winter, President Roosevelt passed a delightful summer Sunday today as the guest of Attorney General Philander C. Knox.

In keeping with the surroundings the manner in which the day was spent was quiet. But in keeping with the man it was busy and active. The president visited the historic camp and the headquarters of the great Washington; walked and rode for miles through the fine, heavily-wooded country, which is almost as primeval now as in the days which made it famous; and, finally, before an assemblage of Valley Forge citizens and visitors from this city and nearby towns he made a patriotic address in the little Memorial church on the edge of the camp grounds.

Several hundred people had assembled at the chapel, but only a part of them could gain entrance, as its capacity is very limited. The president and party were seated near the altar, which was simply draped with a silk American flag.

The President's Address.

After the simple service of the Episcopal church had been concluded, the Rev. Herbert Burk, rector of All Saints' church at Norristown, Pa., introduced the president, who spoke as follows:

It is a great pleasure to come here this afternoon and say a word on behalf of the project to erect a memorial chapel on this great historic site. Three weeks ago I was at the field where the bloodiest and most decisive battle of the civil war was fought; and it is a noteworthy thing that this state of Pennsylvania should have within its borders the places which mark the two turning points in our history—Gettysburg, which saw the high tide of the rebellion—Valley Forge, which saw the getting beyond the danger point of the revolution.

There have been two crises in our national history, two crises where failure meant absolute disaster in the minds of the nation—one the revolutionary war, one the civil war. If the men who took to arms in '76 for national independence had failed then, not merely would there never have been a national growth on this continent, but the whole spirit of nationality for the younger lands of the world would have perished still unborn. If the men of '61 had failed in the great struggle for national unity, it would have meant that the work done by Washington and his associates might almost or quite as well have been left undone.

There would have been no point in commemorating what was done at Valley Forge if Gettysburg had not given us the national right to commemorate it. If we were now split up into a dozen wrangling little communities, if we lacked the power to keep away here on our own continent within our own lines, or to show ourselves a unit as against foreign invasion, then all the Declaration of Independence would read like empty sound and the Constitution would not be worth the paper upon which it was written save as a study for antiquarians.

Our Two Greatest Heroes.

There have been other crises than those that culminated during the war for independence and the great civil war, there have been great deeds and great men at other periods of our national history, but there has never been anything so vital to the welfare of the nation save the two—the deed of those who founded and the deed of those who saved the republic. There never has been another man whose life has been vital to the republic as Washington and Lincoln.

I am not here to say anything about Lincoln, but I do not see how any American can think of either of them without thinking of the other, too, because they represent the same work. Think how fortunate are we as a nation. Think what it means to us as a people that our young men should have as their ideals two men who conquered, not men who won glory by wrong doing, not men whose lives were spent in their own advancement, but men who lived, one of whom died, that the nation might grow steadily greater and better—the men who founded the republic and took no glory from it himself save what was freely given him by his fellow-citizens, and that only in the shape of a chance of rendering them service, and the man who afterward saved the republic saved the state without striking down liberty.

Often in history a state has been saved and liberty struck down at the same time. Lincoln saved the union and lifted the cause of liberty higher than before. Washington created the republic, was by statecraft to the highest position and used that position only for the welfare of his fellows and for so long as his fellows wished him to keep it.

It is a good thing that of these great landmarks of our history—Gettysburg and Valley Forge—one should commemorate a single tremendous effort, and the other—what we need on the whole much more commonly is what I think is on the whole, rather more difficult to do—long sustained effort. Only men with a touch of the heroic in them could have put out that three days' struggle at Gettysburg.

Washington the Greater.

Only men fit to rank with the great men of all time could have beaten back the mighty onslaught of that gallant and wonderful Army of Northern Virginia whose finest effort faded out on the stone wall on Cemetery Ridge on that July day 41 years ago.

But, after all, hard though it is to rise to the supreme height of self-sacrifice and of effort at a time of a crisis that is short, to rise to it for a single great effort—it is harder yet to rise to the level of a life when that crisis takes the form of needing constant, patient, steady work, month after month, year after year, when, too, it does not end after a terrible struggle in a glorious day—when it means months of gloom and effort steadfastly endured and triumph wrested only at the very end.

Here at Valley Forge, Washington and his continentals warred not against the foreign soldiery but against themselves, against all the appeals of our nature that are most difficult to resist, against discouragement, discontent, the mean envies and jealousies and heart burnings sure to arise when defeat and disaster have come to large bodies of men. Here the soldiers who carried our national flag had to suffer from cold, from privation, from hardship, knowing that their foes were well housed, knowing that things went easier for the others than it did for them. And they conquered because they had in them the spirit that made them steadfast, not merely on an occasional great day, but day after day in the life of daily endeavor to do duty well.

When two lessons are both indispensable, it seems hardly worth while to dwell more on one than on the other. Yet I think that, as a people, we need more to learn the lesson of Valley Forge even than that of Gettysburg. I have not the slightest anxiety but that this power, if the need should come in the future, will be able to show the heroism, the supreme effort, that was shown at Gettysburg, though it may well be that it would need similarly two years of effort checkered by disaster to lead up to it.

A Shining Example.

But the vital thing for this nation to do is steadily to cultivate the quality which Washington and those under him so preeminently showed during the winter at Valley Forge—the quality of steady adherence to duty in the teeth of difficulty, in the teeth of discouragement and even disaster, the quality that makes a man do what is straight and decent, not one day when a great crisis comes, but every day, day in and day out, until success comes at the end.

Of course, all of us are agreed that a prime national need is the need of commemorating the memories of the men who did greatly, thought highly, who fought, suffered, endured, for the nation. It is a great thing to commemorate their lives; but after all the worthy way to do so is to try to show by our lives that we have profited by them. If we show that the lives of the great men of the past have been to us incitements to do well in the present, then we have paid to them the only homage which is really worthy of them.

If we treat their great deeds as matters merely for idle boasting, not as spurring us on to effort, but as excusing us from effort, then we show that we are not worthy of the sires who bore us, of the people who went before in the history of our land. What we, as a people, need more than aught else is the steady performance of everyday duties of life, not with hope of reward, but because they are duties.

I spoke of how we felt that we had in Washington and Lincoln national ideals. I contrasted their names with the names of many others in history, names which will shine as brightly but oh, with how much less power and light. I think you will find that the fundamental difference between our two great national heroes and almost any other men of equal note in the world's history, is that, when you think of our two men, you think inevitably not of glory but of duty, not of what the man did for him self in achieving name or fame or position, but of what he did for his fellows.

Both Men Practical.

They set the right ideal and also they lived up to it in practical fashion. Had either of them possessed that fantastic quality of mind which sets an impossible and perhaps an undesirable ideal, or which declines to do the actual work of the present because, forsooth, the implements with which it is necessary to work are not to that man's choice, his fame would have been missed, his achievement would have crumbled into dust, and he would not have left one stroke on the book which tells of effort accomplished for the good of mankind.

A man to amount to anything must be practical. He must actually do things, not talk about doing them, least of all cavil at how they are accomplished by those who actually go down into the arena and actually face the dust and the blood and the sweat, who actually triumph in the struggle. The man must have the force, the power, the will to accomplish results, but he must have also the lift toward lofty things which shall make him incapable of striving for aught unless that for which he strives is something noble and high—something well worth striving for.

I congratulate you that it is your good fortune to be engaged in erecting a memorial to the great man who was equal to the great days—to the man and the men who showed by their lives that they were indeed doers of the word and not hearers only.

The Rev. Dr. Leighton Coleman, bishop of Delaware, followed the president with a speech in which he elaborated some of the points made by Mr. Roosevelt. Brief addresses were also made by former Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh and Representative Wanger.

Return to Knox's Home.

From Valley Forge the president and party returned directly to Attorney General Knox's home. He was greatly pleased with his day of recreation, for that is what it was, it was pure and simple. He greeted warmly all those whom he met in his short sojourn, and in return was saluted quietly, but enthusiastically, by everyone who saw him. Once, when a crowd met his carriage turning into Mr. Knox's driveway, an attempt was made to cheer the visitor for him, but President Roosevelt stopped this himself, raising his hand and shaking his head as though to admonish the spectators that this was Sunday. But he lifted his hat and smiled his thanks anyway.

Early tomorrow morning the president will return to Washington with Mrs. Roosevelt in their private car, reaching the capital about 11:30. He will not stop in this city, unless for a moment or two, when the train leaves the main line for the southern track.

TINY STING OF HONEY BEE SURE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Philadelphia Firm, After Long Series of Experiments, Orders 50,000 Stingers for Manufacture of Patent Serum for Injection.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—After long experiment by bacteriologists in their employ, the H. K. Mulford Company, chemists of this city, have sent agents to Texas with instructions to obtain all the beestingers they can for medicinal purposes. An order for 50,000 stingers was placed with one bee farmer in that state.

A serum for injection through the skin will be made from the potent fluid with which the tiny weapons are charged. Of its efficacy for the cure of rheumatism, Milton Campbell, the manager of the company, says their experiments have left no doubt. The pugnacity of the bee, if the tale of how scientists came upon the idea of experimenting with the sting be true, in this case led to his own undoing.

A farmer, afflicted with rheumatism, was set upon by a swarm of bees and frightfully stung. His face, neck and limbs were covered with red spots and swollen for days. When the swelling subsided, to his great delight the rheumatism was cured. A good price will be paid for the stingers and there is a ready market for the home product.

FIVE CHURCHES ARE DEDICATED

Debt Was Cleared Up at the Exercises of McKeesport Congregation.

SERMON BY BISHOP M'CABE

Dedicatory services were held in five new churches in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

The congregation of the First Baptist church, McKeesport, achieved a great success when their new edifice at Locust and Olive streets, the erection of which cost $82,000, was dedicated absolutely free from debt yesterday. Preceding the morning service $2,500, the amount needed to clear all encumbrances, was raised by subscription and the Rev. J. A. Maxwell, the pastor, was showered with congratulations.

The dedicatory address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Mabie of Boston, who took as his subject "A Christly Zeal for God's House." During the afternoon and evening special services were held at which addresses were made by Dr. Maxwell, Capt. A. B. Campbell, R. L. Riggs, Mrs. F. W. Squibb, W. H. Hamilton, C. R. Foster, the Rev. William Codville of Columbus, the Rev. A. J Gordon, the Rev. Dr. W. Miles, the Rev. Dr. H. Decker, the Rev. Dr. W. A. Caldwell, the Rev. Dr. W. S. Stanley and the Rev. T. M. Sharp. Special music was furnished by Organist Samuel M. Hemmingray, the Y. M. C. A. orchestra and a chorus of 20 voices under the direction of Prof. J. K. Spangler.

Has a Fine Organ.

The new church is a splendid structure, the main auditorium having a seating capacity of 700, while the Sabbath school, which is connected by sliding doors, seats 200 more. The furnishing includes a $4,000 pipe organ. The largest audience in the history of the church tested the seating capacity to its utmost at yesterday's services.

The officers of the church are: Deacons, R. L. Riggs, W. H. Hamilton, F. J. Phillips, Dr. W. H. Woodward and E. W. Squibbs; trustees, the Rev. J. A. Maxwell, J. L. Hammitt, W. H. Smith, R. L. Riggs and C. A. Tawney. W. H. Hamilton is superintendent of the Sabbath school and Mrs. F. W. Squibb is superintendent of the primary department. Meetings are to be held in the new building each night during the present week.

The Church of the Ascension, Termon avenue Allegheny, was dedicated yesterday with three special services all of which were largely attended. Consecration was celebrated at the morning service by the Rev. Albert C. Dieffen, pastor, while the dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Richard C. Schied of Franklin and Marshall college, who took as his subject "The Sacredness of the Church."

The afternoon services consisted of greetings to the congregation and addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. J. E. Wright, the Rev. W. H. Allen and the Rev. E. J. Glass. Dr. Schied preached the sermon at the evening service.

The Church of the Ascension was organized only 17 months ago but since then has acquired a congregation numbering 125 members and property valued at about $31,000.

This evening the Reformed Missionary alliance of the Pittsburgh district will hold a public meeting in the new edifice. The Rev. Paul S. Leinbach will preside and an address will be made by Dr. Schiedl.

The First Methodist Episcopal church, Sheraden, was dedicated yesterday and during the services $4,456 50, which almost completes the $25,000 which the structure cost, was raised by subscription. The sermon at the morning service was preached by the Rev. W. H. H. Rees, pastor of the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal church, who took for his text, "Though He was rich, yet for our sake He became poor."

In the afternoon a platform meeting was held, at which a majority of the former pastors of the church were present. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. F. Conner, the Rev. L. D. Jones, Presiding Elder T. N. Boyle, F. L. Feeman, L. S. Wilkinson, S. A. Hunter, David Flannigan and H. H. Wymer.

In the evening Epworth league rallies were held, after which the dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. C. V. Wilson, pastor of the Ames Methodist Episcopal church, Hazelwood. His subject was "Righteousness." The congregation will give a reception to the Rev. W. D. Sleese tomorrow night.

Sabbath School Celebration.

Three special services marked the dedication of the First Presbyterian church, Ninth avenue and Anne street, Homestead, yesterday. In the forenoon the dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. T. Gibson, pastor of Highland Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh. The service closed with a prayer of consecration by the Rev. N. H. Hynson, the pastor.

The Sabbath school under the direction of Superintendent J. K. Young held an anniversary celebration during the afternoon. In the evening the Christian Endeavor society held a special meeting, presided over by J. A. McMath. Following this was a service at which the Rev. R. T. Mill of Phillipsburg, a former pastor, read the history of the congregation since its organization, 30 years ago. The Rev. Dr. Gibson preached on "A Prosperous Church."

Throughout the week nightly services will be held. Tonight the congregation will receive greetings from the higher church bodies. The Rev. Herbert Hesiep, moderator of the Pittsburgh presbytery, will preside. The Rev. Edward Cowan will represent the general assembly, the Rev. R. T. Miller the synod and the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan the presbytery.

At an interdenominational meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, ministers of local churches will take part. Wednesday evening will be devoted to the Sunday school. On Thursday evening the various societies will hold a union service. A congregational meeting will be held Friday evening.

The new edifice was erected at a cost of about $10,000, and occupies the site of the old wooden structure. It is built of brownstone and of the gothic type. Dr. West Smith is chairman of the finance committee.

CATHOLICS ENTERTAINED.

Advisory Board of C. M. B. A. Heard Reports from Various Branches.

Branch No. 100, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association of Western Pennsylvania, last night entertained the advisory board of the association in St. Joseph's hall, Fulton street, Allegheny. Reports were read by delegates from the various parts of the western district which showed that harmony prevails everywhere.

An open-air meeting was held after the council adjourned and addresses were made by Prof. M. J. McMahon, D. F. Crawford, B. J. Devlin, L. Blattner and J. W. Sullivan. It was decided to hold the annual outing at Aliquippa park on July 4.

BLAME PLACED ON VAN SCHAICK

Experts Say He Should Have Beached Slocum at Stony Point.

ABOUT 1,000 DEAD OR MISSING

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—With Edwin M. Weaver, assistant pilot of the General Slocum, at her wheel, the harbor police boat patrol today went over the exact course that ended in the death of hundreds of persons, and when the little steamer reached North Brother island the experts representing the coroner's and district attorney's offices decided that the terrible catastrophe might have been avoided if Capt. Van Schaick had turned his vessel into the bank at Stony Point, East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street instead of running her while she was blazing to North Brother Island. On the Patrol was Police Inspector Albertson, Coroners O'Gorman and Berry, Capt. Gilder, chief of the pilot service of the New Haven steamship line, and Weaver.

Pilot Weaver told of an incident he noted after the Slocum caught fire. The first notification of the fire was received from Mate Flanagan through the speaking tube into the pilot house, at a point about 100 feet south of the Bronx Kills, which is in the vicinity of One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street.

Reply of Capt. Gilder.

At this statement on the part of Weaver, Capt. Gilder was asked by the coroner where, if he had been in charge of the boat, he would have beached her. Capt. Gilder replied, without hesitation, at the foot of East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, which could be made in a few moments.

Coroner Berry said that he had issued an order for the detention of the captain, pilots, engineers and crew of the steamer. "I learned," said he, "that they were trying to escape, and I asked the police to detain everybody who was employed on the boat as witnesses. Some of them have escaped and we may never be able to get them. But we are after them and will leave no stone unturned to get them within our jurisdiction."

Secretary Cortelyou, of the department of commerce and labor, visited the scene of the disaster today. He was accompanied by H. K. Smith, deputy commissioner of corporations of the same department, under whose supervision an investigation will be held; Supervising Inspector General Uhler and Inspector Rodie.

Cortelyou Visits Scene.

Secretary Cortelyou remained at North ther Island long enough to witness a number of bodies being taken out of the water. He refused to discuss the situation but Mr. Uhler gave out a statement in which it was explained that the trip was preliminary to the investigation to be made by the federal authorities, which, it was promised, would be complete and thorough in every respect.

Mr. Cortelyou left for Washington tonight and will consult with Assistant Secretary Murray, of his department, tomorrow morning. Mr. Murray will then come to this city to be present at the investigation to be made by the steamboat inspectors, which will begin probably on Wednesday.

Forty-one bodies were rescued today, bringing the total number of bodies so far recovered up to 624. Of these 559 have been identified, while 31 of the victims now lying at the morgue have not been claimed by friend or relative. While the list of missing has been cut down somewhat by the identifications made today, 11 new names were added to that roll, thus leaving the total of missing almost as it was on Saturday—something more than 300.

The funerals of nearly a hundred victims of the disaster were held today. In many instances two caskets were carried in the same hearse, and in some cases two hearses, and even three hearses, bore away the dead of a single family.

ATTACKED BY A HORSE.

Patrolman Johnson Badly Injured by a Vicious Animal He Was Breaking.

Charles Johnson, driver of the Lawrenceville patrol wagon, who for the past two weeks has been engaged in breaking in a new team of horses for the city's service, was a victim of a vicious attack by one of the animals early yesterday morning. He was locking the beast into its stall, when it seized him by the breast with its teeth and threw him against the bars of the stall.

Wagonman John B. Page sprang to his assistance and beat the animal back into the stall. Johnson received an ugly bite on the breast and was badly bruised by being thrown against the bars. A large part of his clothing was torn from his body.

AUDITOR GENERAL MAKES CHANGES

Puts Into Operation New System to Improve Work at Harrisburg.

WILL INCREASE EFFICIENCY

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, HARRISBURG, PA., June 19.

Auditor General Snyder has classified and rearranged the routine work of the department for the purpose of increasing its efficiency in the collection of state taxes and the settlement of the accounts of the various public officers doing business with the auditor general.

Gen. Snyder has established a bureau of accounts, in charge of James C. Jeffers of Philadelphia; a county bureau, in charge of Christian W. Meyers of Lancaster, and a corporation bureau, with J. N. Langham of Indiana, chief clerk of the department, as the responsible head.

The creation of these bureaus will simplify the routine work of the department and enable the auditor general to keep in close touch with all the business. The new system was carefully thought out by Mr. Snyder, who is confident it will give general satisfaction to those having business with the department and increase the state's revenues.

The most important of these bureaus is that of accounts, which is being organized by Mr. Jeffers, the present efficient warrant clerk of the department, who was selected for this responsible position because of his special qualifications for the place. Mr. Jeffers will have charge of all salaried officers of the state, consisting of the executive, judicial and legal departments, mine inspectors, Philadelphia harbor master, forestry commission and fire wardens.

He will also have charge of the accounts of all institutions receiving state aid, embracing the insane, deaf and dumb, blind, feeble minded institutions, hospitals and all kindred charities; direct the work of the three traveling expert auditors of the department, and personally accompany them where it is deemed necessary for the best interests of the service.

Mr. Meyers, chief of the county bureau, is an expert in his line, and will have charge of the settlement of all accounts between the state and the various counties. Mr. Langham will direct the work of making settlement of taxes between the state and the numerous corporations doing business in Pennsylvania.

For the purpose of ascertaining whether any foreign corporations doing business in this state are evading taxation, Gen. Snyder is having prepared a list of all corporations chartered in New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia. He believes that there are hundreds of such corporations, and if this be proven prompt measures will be taken to compel them to pay their share of the state tax.

O'CONNELL GIVES DINNER FOR CARDINAL SATOLLI

Affair at Catholic University. Prelate Receives Guest and Goes Driving.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Cardinal Satolli was entertained at dinner at the Catholic university today, as the guest of Monsignor O'Connell, the rector of the university. The occasion was informal and its purpose was to give the members of the faculty and other invited guests an opportunity to meet or renew the acquaintance of the cardinal. The dinner was given in the dining room of Caldwell hall, which was decorated with potted plants and draped in the national colors and those of the Roman pontiff. Monsignor O'Connell made an address of welcome and Dr. Pace, of the university faculty, also spoke the good wishes of his associates for the former delegate. Cardinal Satolli responded, giving voice to his interest, as well as that of the holy see, in the university and the welfare of the church in America. His talk was brief and did not relate to church policies. After dinner he received a number of callers and later in the day went driving.

Those present at the dinner, in addition to the cardinal and Monsignor O'Connell, included the cardinal's traveling companions, Monsignor Marchetti and the Rev. Dr. Stickney, of the papal legation, the Rev. Jerome Dourfey, president of Georgetown university, and other well-known Catholic clergymen.

Dedicated by a Bishop.

Bishop C. C. McCabe and other clergymen including the Rev. W. H. Kirkland, first pastor of the church, took part yesterday in the dedication of First Methodist Episcopal church, Donora. Bishop McCabe preached at the morning service and last evening formally dedicated the new edifice. The pastor is the Rev. G. W. Grannis and the trustees are: A. E. Farcer, R. Munson, J. N. Mullen, Francis Pruitt, J. R. Schooley, J. C. Kenyon, John F. Sunney and Daniel Pyle.

GUARDSMEN'S PRANKS INTERRUPTED BY MAJOR

Boys of Co. B, 10th Regiment, Take a Hand in Hazing After Practice March.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW BRIGHTON, PA., June 19.—Dusty and sleepy, the members of company B, Tenth regiment N. G. P., returned tonight from New Sheffield after a two-day's practice march in which efforts by the boys to intermix play with work met but indifferent success.

The company, consisting of 65 men under Capt. H. H. Elverson, left New Brighton yesterday on a special train that took them to Woodlawn. From that point the guardsmen marched to New Sheffield, a distance of three and a half miles. Major H. B. Cuthbertson, in command of the First brigade, accompanied the men. The ranks were also swelled by the presence of the Monaca drum corps and the Monaca cornet band.

The old academy building at New Sheffield served as a barracks, and the residence of Private William Long was opened to the officers for headquarters. At 2:30 p. m. the company was put through an extended order drill and sham battle in which 1,000 rounds of ammunition were used. The battle closed with a bayonet charge. At 6:30 dress parade was conducted, after which retreat was sounded.

In the evening there was a band concert in front of the headquarters. The guardsmen had pleaded with the officers to be permitted to hold a dance in the barracks while the band was playing. This was refused. One defiant guardsman produced a mouth organ and after the band had stopped playing he began to furnish music for a quadrille. The fun was rudely broken up by Sergeant Smith, who ordered silence.

After taps, when all were supposed to be asleep, the older members of the company quietly slipped from under their blankets, seized 10 of the guardsmen who had enlisted during the last year, and proceeded to "toss" them, using an army blanket for the purpose. Just as the eighth man was making the skyward shoot, with arms and legs outstretched, the men holding the blanket suddenly caught a glimpse of a major's uniform. There was a hasty scurry to the cover of blankets and snores soon filled the barracks.

An hour later all were really asleep save one man, whose identity has not yet been discovered, and who surreptitiously secured the company bugle and blew reveille. Roused from their slumber, the guardsmen, never suspecting the hoax, crawled from their blankets and dressed for roll call. Then the trick was discovered. None went back to sleep. After police duty at 7:15 and breakfast at 8, all marched to a special church service conducted by the Rev. J. T. Campbell of Pittsburgh.

Dress parade and guard mount were held at 9:30, after supper at 6:15 retreat was sounded and the camp was broken, the company marching to Woodlawn and there taking a train back to New Brighton.

YOUNG WOMAN DROWNED ON YACHTING EXCURSION

Philadelphia Girl Fell from Small Boat and Never Appeared on Surface.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHESTER, June 19.—Regina Dolan, a young woman who lived at Twenty-third and Federal streets, Philadelphia, was drowned in the Delaware river, off Marcus Hook, this afternoon.

She was one of a party of 12 on the yacht Helen, owned by Harry Justis and John Drinkwater, also of Philadelphia. Off Marcus Hook some of the party, including Miss Dolan, wanted to go ashore. As Miss Dolan stepped on the gunwale of the small boat which was to take them ashore, she lost her balance and fell into the river. She immediately sank and did not come to the surface.

Justis dived five times for her, but could not reach the body. The remainder of the party were brought to this city on a tug boat.

Hydetown Man Killed.

TITUSVILLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—The mangled body of Harry Wilkinson of Hydetown was picked up near the railroad track near his home this morning. The young man was last seen alive near midnight. It is supposed that he was run down by the midnight train.

FAVORS CONSERVATISM.

Plehwe Opposed to Harsh Measures Owing to Assassination of Bobrikoff.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 19.—M. Linder, vice president of the Finnish senate, in conference yesterday and today with Minister of the Interior Von Plehwe, discussed the policy of the Russian government in Finland in view of the assassination of Governor General Bobrikoff. Minister Plehwe expressed himself as averse to harsh measures in consequence of the act of one man, whose views were only held by a small minority of the people of the duchy, but will recommend that the policy of General Bobrikoff be continued.

The question as to whether or not the Finnish diet shall be convened is now under consideration. It has been pointed out that the Swedish party is opposed to the reassembling of the diet because it is certain to diminish their own influence. It is learned that M. Linder earnestly recommended that election of members to the diet be held.

Fined for Kicking His Wife.

Of 63 prisoners at Central station yesterday morning, 27 were discharged. George Flinn of Gibbon street was fined $50 on complaint of his wife who said he kicked her in the face. Harry Golden and William Foster were sent to the workhouse for 90 days as suspicious persons. Special Officer Denniston said they lived by robbing drunken men.

THREAT TO DYNAMITE RAILROAD CHIEF'S TRAIN

Letter from Wilkesbarre Declares That President Mellen Must Contribute or Die.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILKESBARRE, PA., June 19.—Chief of Police Jones of this city this evening received word that a threat had been made to dynamite the special train of President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and that the letter in which the threat was contained was dated Wilkesbarre. A similar threat was recently made against the Lehigh Valley railroad here. The police believe that both letters emanated from the same man.

The threat against President Mellen was that the train which left yesterday to carry him to Chicago would be dynamited unless a certain sum of money was left at a specified place. The threat against the Lehigh Valley railroad, which was made in the latter part of January, was that a passenger train would be blown up at midnight unless $10,000 in bills was thrown from an engine at a shanty near Lake station, on the mountain. The directions as to how it shou.d be done were given minutely, even the denominations of the bills being stated.

Except as to the money, the directions were followed, but at the same time a large number of officers surrounded the spot, and the man did not appear. William G. Dougherty, chief of the railroad detectives of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, has notified Chief Jones that he is coming here and they will work upon the case together.

CHURCH BELL BLESSED.

Ceremony at Connellsville Over Instrument Purchased by Duquesne Wreck Victim.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—The little Italian Catholic church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel was packed to the doors this afternoon and the streets about it blocked with the vast gathering that assembled to witness the blessing of the bell.

The Connellsville military band led a large procession of the different Catholic societies through the streets to the church, where the Rev. Father M. A. Lambing, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic church of Scottdale, was the celebrant of vespers. During the vesper hour the bell was blessed. Father Lambing was assisted by the Rev. John T. Burns, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church of this place; the Rev. E. E. Gelhoff, pastor of the Slavonic Catholic church of New Haven, and the Rev. L. A. Mundi, pastor of the church.

Our Lady of Mt. Carmel church was built through the efforts of Father C. Finello, who was killed in the wreck of the Duquesne limited, and who was returning from Pittsburgh at the time, after having made arrangements for the purchase of the bell that was blessed today.

JAIL BREAKERS CAUGHT.

Wholesale Delivery of Prisoners at Somerset Prevented by Discovery of Sheriff.

SOMERSET, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—The alertness of Sheriff Coleman prevented a general jail delivery this afternoon. There are about 25 prisoners, one of whom is to be taken to the penitentiary tomorrow.

The unusual quietness in the jail corridors, about 4 o'clock, attracted Sheriff Coleman's attention, and when he started to make an investigation several of the prisoners had removed the iron casing and brick and then carefully covered up their work with the intention of making a break for liberty at 6 o'clock this evening, a half hour later they are usually locked up for the night.

After the discovery, the sheriff locked the leaders of the plot in their cells, and hereafter they will be denied the freedom of the corridors.

B. & O. Employes Have Half-Holiday.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—The shop forces of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad here had their first half-holiday yesterday afternoon. Saturday afternoon will be a half-holiday throughout the summer. Freight traffic is dull on the Connellsville and Pittsburgh divisions and railroad men are on short time.

Erie Engineer Killed.

MEADVILLE, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—Arthur Karlskins, an Erie railroad fireman of this city, fell from his engine near Union City this afternoon and is in Spencer hospital with a fractured skull. He will die.

STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

BLAIRSVILLE, PA.—The annual convention of the C. Y. P. S. C. E. of the Conemaugh presbytery will be held in the United Presbyterian church here on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The first meeting will be on Tuesday evening, and E. L. Ralston of West Lebanon will preside.

UNIONTOWN, PA.—The old Seaton building on Main street, near the Pennsylvania railroad station, which is being torn down to make way for a three-story business block, is one of the oldest landmarks in Uniontown, having been built more than a century ago. It was once occupied by John Lyons, who came to Uniontown in 1790 with a company of soldiers to help quell the whisky insurrection.

CUMBERLAND, MD.—The new edifice of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, of Belington, W. Va., was dedicated yesterday. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. S. Sims of Lexington, Ky.

SHARON, PA.—The new Bannle furnace, owned by the Cherry Valley Iron Company of Pittsburgh, will be put in blast Wednesday morning at West Middlesex. The stack is 17 by 70 feet and will produce 250 tons of pig iron daily. The company will raze its stack at Leetonia and build a new and larger one.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.—Every drug store and fruit stand in Connellsville was open yesterday, and the crusade started by Mrs. George B. Brown, president of the W. C. T. U., has apparently been abandoned.

FIVE YOUNG MEN ARE ORDAINED BY BISHOP

Bishop Talbot Officiates at York. Three Took Deacons' and Two Priests' Orders.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

YORK, PA., June 19.—The Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Episcopal church, ordained five young men in the St. John's Episcopal church here this morning. The Revs. William Decker, Stanley C. Hughes and William M. Gamble took deacons' orders; the Revs. Horace W. Stoll of Waynesboro and Eugene A. Heim of La Porte, Pa., took priests' orders.

Mr. Decker, who is a graduate of Dickinson college, was a member of the football team for four years and was the champion wrestler of the college. Mr. Gamble, who is a native of Paris, was graduated from Princeton university and was in newspaper work for several years. He is a son of the late Rev. William Gamble, who had charge of the Mission Press at Shanghai, China, and who invented the mode of printing now in use in China and Japan. Mr. Hughes is the son of the Rev. I. M. Hughes, for 34 years pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Richmond, Ind.

CORNERSTONE LAID.

Big Parade at Ceremony Over New Slavonic Catholic Church at Natrona.

NATRONA, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—The cornerstone of the St. Matthews Slavonic Roman Catholic church was laid at Natrona yesterday afternoon in the presence of several thousand spectators. The cornerstone laying was preceded by a street parade including Catholic societies from Kittanning, Tarentum, Ford City, Creighton, White Rock, Leechburg and Natrona.

The priests assisting in the cornerstone laying were the Rev. Father Gillan of the English Catholic church of Natrona; the Rev. Father Riehul of the German Catholic church of Tarentum; the Rev. Rykaczeski, of the Polish Catholic church of Natrona, and the Rev. Molenschi, of St. Mary's Polish Catholic church of New Kensington. The cornerstone was laid at 2 o'clock. The pastor of the congregation is the Rev. Anton Filkoran. The church will cost $25,000 and will be built of brick and stone in Roman style.

THREE STACKS IDLE.

Lack of Orders Causes Shutdown of Big Plants in Mahoning Valley.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 19.—(Special.)—Further curtailment of the pig iron supply of the valleys will result from the banking of three more stacks in the Mahoning valley.

The furnaces which will become idle are the Lowelliville stack of the Ohio Iron and Steel Company; the stack of the Struthers Furnace Company and the stack of the Brier Hill Iron and Coal Company. All furnaces of the valley have sufficient ore to keep them running, but there are no orders.

THE STORY OF
Amalgamated Copper

A PERSONAL WORD BY THOMAS W. LAWSON AND A STATEMENT BY THE PUBLISHERS OF

Everybody's Magazine

The Personal Word by Mr. Lawson

Personally I know that one hundred millions of dollars were lost, thirty men committed suicide, and twenty previously reputable citizens went to the penitentiary, directly because of Amalgamated.

It was largely because of my efforts that the foundation of Amalgamated was successfully laid. It was created because of my work. It was because of what I stood for, because I had the public's confidence, and because my promises had been kept that the plain people invested two hundred million dollars of their savings, and it was because of trickery and broken promises that the public lost the enormous sums they did.

My motives for writing the Story of Amalgamated are manifold: I have unwittingly been made the instrument by which thousands upon thousands of investors in America and Europe have been plundered. I wish them to know my position as to the past, that they may acquit me of intentional wrong-doing; as to the present, that they may know that I am doing all in my power to right the wrongs that have been committed; and as to the future, that they may see how I propose to compel restitution.

THOMAS W. LAWSON.

A Statement by the Publishers of Everybody's Magazine

In the articles by Mr. Lawson, beginning in the July number, under the caption of "Frenzied Finance, The Story of Amalgamated," we have a narrative from Mr. Lawson's own lips, how, in the last few years he has seen millions of dollars won without right, and thousands of men ruined. It is a story of financial tragedy of today.

In the great financial happenings of recent years story tellers have given their version; political economists their theories; reformers their pictures; and historians their tablets. For the first time in the history of High Finance we have the High Priest tell it as it happened, and it is for Everybody's Magazine to publish "the cold-blooded facts," for Mr. Lawson has pledged himself to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

OFFICIAL—ALLEGHENY

Office of Controller of Allegheny County, Pittsburgh, Pa., June 20, 1904.

NOTICE is hereby given that the county commissioners of the county of Allegheny, commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will receive until 12 o'clock, noon, Saturday, July 16, 1904, sealed proposals for the permanent improvement of a certain public road or highway in said county, known as the Monroeville road, according to the surveys, plans, profiles and estimates on file in the office of the county road engineer, the said surveys, plans, profiles and estimates, together with a copy of the contract, specifications and bond to be entered into by the party or parties to whom the contract may be awarded, are on file in the office of F. W. Patterson, county road engineer, room No. 29, court house, Pittsburgh, Pa., and are open for inspection and examination of all persons interested:

The proposals or bids for proposed improvement must be filed in the office of the county controller, court house, Pittsburgh, Pa., and must be addressed to the county commissioners, who will open the same on Saturday, July 16, 1904, and the contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders in compliance with the provisions of an act of assembly approved the 20th day of June, A. D. 1895, entitled "An act providing for the permanent improvement of certain public roads and highways," etc., etc. Each proposal must be accompanied by a bond and two sureties probated before said commissioners, or some person having authority to administer oaths, or the bond of a security trust company authorized to do business in the county of Allegheny, in the sum of twenty thousand ($20,000.00) dollars.

The commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

R. J. CUNNINGHAM,
County Controller.

THE MARVEL CITY

ECONOMY

GEORGE J. GOULD SAYS

THAT THE COUNTRY IS ABOUT TO GATHER HEAVY CROPS AND HE CAN SEE NO REASON WHY THERE SHOULD NOT BE A MARKED BUSINESS REVIVAL IN EVERY LINE OF TRADE:

The moment this revival comes building activity in the grand new smokeless industrial City of Economy will increase marvelously and beyond all precedent. Houses will go up with surprising rapidity. Even now the erection of stores and dwellings is a sight that's thrilling, but nothing to what it will be then. The families of the 2,000 bridge-builders now going home from their work in trains to other points will soon find houses close to their employment. But what will become of the families of the 5,000 to 8,000 additional men who will be called to employment by the next half mile of bridge works now under construction?

There will also be houses for them. All that is needed to start the most terrific building progress ever witnessed is a feeling of confidence in an early resumption of the general prosperity of the country.

And George Gould said that it is in sight. That he could see it coming. That the stoppage of railroad activity was only temporary, and that as soon as the railroads start buying material again to complete their improvements the record of wonderful developments will be something astonishing.

Under such conditions real estate prices in Economy will multiply. The investor who buys today and gets in on this new wave of commercial resumption will be able to congratulate himself a thousand times.

Therefore, the original prices of Economy real estate are worth taking advantage of. The shrewd persons are buying at present. They see what's coming. They realize that sites in the center of this wondrous new city cannot be bought at original prices when the business revival comes.

Put $50 or $100 in your pocket and take a train for this the largest new city that ten years of time will ever again see built. Ten years of time is all it will take to bring at least 40,000 people here to live. There is no other place along the water fronts of the Pittsburgh district large enough for 40,000 people, but the level lands of Economy are sufficiently broad to contain 200,000 people and industries of ten times the magnitude of the monster that has already been established there.

Write for information concerning system that will enable you to buy by mail as easily as you could buy if you made a personal visit to the property. Many busy business men are buying by mail. They then come to look at the rising city at their convenience. The advertisements are not overdrawn and you are safe in making a payment.

LEAGUE GAMES TODAY.

Pittsburgh at St. Louis.
Brooklyn at New York.
Chicago at Cincinnati.
Philadelphia at Boston.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—Before a crowd of about 17,000 the Cardinals and Pirates each took one game of the double-header at League park this afternoon. In the first game the St. Louis team was the winner 4 to 3 with Taylor and Zearfoss doing battery work. Leever and Phelps served for the Pirates in this game. The second mill was in Pittsburgh's favor 5 to 2. Roscoe Miller and Mike O'Neill were the opposing twirlers, with Grady and Smith doing the receiving.

In the first game things looked bad for the Cardinals until the eighth inning when they obtained and held the lead. Taylor was the better of the two pitchers and held the visitors down to seven hits while his team obtained 10 off Leever. Errors on the part of the Pirates had much to do toward their downfall in this game, as five bungles were charged against them. The Cardinals, however, played an errorless game.

Jimmy Smoot and Homer Shay winners carried off the batting honors in this game. He smashed out three safe ones out of four times at the bat and scored two of the Cardinals' four runs. Clarke did the best batting for his team and secured two hits out of four times up, one being a double.

In the first inning the Pirates started out like a streak of lightning and when they had finished their term of this period they had a total of three runs opposite their names on the bulletin board. Leach popped up an easy one to Zearfoss. Beaumont singled to the same spot, following Wagner's example. Bransfield's single brought Clarke home. Ritchey's pop to center retired the side.

Things were quiet till the fourth round when the Cardinals brought in a run. Smoot beat out a bunt. Barclay did the same thing but was out at first. Burke singled to the right garden. Sebring threw the ball to home but Homer touched the plate first, scoring. Shay doubled to right, while Burke started for home. Phelps caught the ball just in time to have Jimmy called out, spoiling the Cardinals' chances for another tally. Beaumont threw to third and Leach touched Shay who was running for that sack, retiring the side.

The Cardinals made two more runs in the seventh inning. Shay singled to infield. Zearfoss rapped out to right field. Sebring threw to third and the throw was bad, and Shay scored. Taylor's out to center field scored Zearfoss. Farrell filed to left and Shannon fanned, retiring the side.

In the eighth inning the locals made one more run. Beckley was out to third, Smoot doubled, Barclay went out to third and Burke's single scored Homer. Shay was thrown out at first.

In the second game the Pittsburghs clearly outclassed the locals. In the error column things were reversed, with St. Louis having the largest number in the game. The number of hits in this game were also reversed with Leever getting seven off Miller, while Pittsburgh secured 10 off O'Neill. Mike, however, pitched a fairly good game, securing five strike-outs, while Miller was only credited with two.

The visitors swatted the ball for one double and two triples in this game. Leach, who played an all-star game for his team, was also the batting king. He knocked out three safeties out of five times up, one of which was a double. Ritchey and Bransfield hammered out triples. Manager Clarke of the Pittsburgh team also secured the first home run of the second game by Umpire O'Day after the latter had called three strikes on Clarke. His place was taken by Diehl, a recent acquisition of the Pirates. He played a good game in the field and made one sacrifice hit. Danny Shay of the Cardinals was also sent to the bench. Donohue was sent to look after the shore field. The score:

Hahn Too Much for Chicago.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—The Chicagos failed to get a man as far as third base in today's game. Timely hits were responsible for the runs scored by the locals. A heavy rain just before the game affected the attendance and made play slow. Attendance 8,157. Score:

THE GEORGETOWN SQUAD ARRIVE AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Oarsmen Are Heavier Than Last Year's Crew—Day of Rest for All the Crews.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—The only event of importance in the rowing line today was the arrival of the Georgetown squad.

Fifteen men in all came in on the evening train and went to the Morgan house. The Washington oarsmen average around 20 years of age, but are heavier than the crew of last year. Al Kinson, former stroke of the varsity eight, who has been reported as out of the game through an attack of appendicitis, showed up with the rest of the men, apparently in prime condition. He will row in the varsity boat on June 28. Four of the crew are veterans, including Capt. Brenner, Hayden, Graham and Atkinson. Seitz, a substitute on the crew last year, will row as a regular this season. The Georgetown men are bending all their efforts toward getting out a strong four and have greater expectations of showing up well with that crew than in the other race. All the men are in excellent condition and show the effect of a long spell of training. They will use the storehouse near the Vassar brewery, as they did last year.

It was a day of rest for the other crews. Most of the oarsmen went to church in the morning. In the afternoon trips on the launches and visits to members of the other crews formed the program. Coach Courtney and Cornell went up to the Columbia quarters to see Coach Goodman, whom he has known for many years. Forbes, the Cornellian, who is now in the Vassar hospital with blood poisoning, is improving slightly, but there is still considerable doubt that he will be able to row in the four on the day of the race.

LIKES THE PIRATES.

Tim Murnane Says They are Sure to be Near the Top of League.

Speaking of the Pirates Tim Murnane, the well known Boston writer, says:

"Pittsburgh put up the best game seen at the South End grounds this season. It fairly made mince meat of the locals and I enjoyed their work. Now and then it was plain to see that the Pirates had lost much of their old-time confidence and dash, but that is likely to come back as the season grows older and they see a chance to overhaul the leaders, for nothing short of bad luck can keep this team from drawing up and making life miserable for those looking up to the Smoky City aggregation. Bransfield alone of the infielders looked off color. The pitchers were as good as ever, what there was of them. They played the game, took the proper chances on the bases and gave every indication of putting up their old game before the month is out."

STRONG TEAMS WILL MEET.

P. A. C. and Homestead Teams Will Have a Busy Week.

Manor comes to Friendship park on Tuesday evening for a game at 6 o'clock. Bill Coleman will probably pitch for Manor and Ranish for P. A. C. The Manor players are requested by Manager Brinker to report at 5 o'clock. P. A. C. has won the last seven games played and would like some strong team for Saturday. Iroquois, either at Friendship park or away from home. Iroquois plays at Friendship park on Thursday evening.

The Niles (O.) team will play at Steel Works park, Homestead, today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Moren will pitch for Homestead today. Games called at 3:15. Homestead plays at Warren, O., Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Martins Defeated Fair Haven.

The A. J. Martins of Mt. Oliver defeated the strong Fair Haven team on the Martins' grounds yesterday in a well played game 7 to 2. Fair Haven secured two runs in the first inning by bunching hits. Stocker settled down to work in the second inning, and only one Fair Haven player reached third in the remaining innings. The feature of the game was a one-handed catch by Barrett at short. The first base playing of Reitz and Hahne, fielding and batting of the Martins was noteworthy. Bier pitched a creditable game for Fair Haven. Score:

HIGHBALL'S WIN MADE EVEN BREAK

Capture of American Derby by Eastern Horse Offset Ort Well's Victory at Gravesend.

FINE EVENTS THIS WEEK

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—The turf happenings of Saturday were a veritable whipsaw. An eastern owner, W. M. Schefte, took his colt, Highball, west and won the greatest prize offered for the western three-year-olds, while a western owner, J. A. Drake, brought his string east and with his colt, Ort Welles, took the pride of the eastern three-year-olds into camp and rammed a nice bit of valuable three-year-old stakes. That surely is a fair division of labor, and both owners are to be congratulated for their enterprise.

It has been blazoned forth in type that W. M. Schefte took Highball to Chicago to run for the American derby because he hated the players in the other books not to get a run for their money. No doubt there is a modicum of truth in that, but Mr. Schefte is not yearning for popularity in his racing ventures, and, if he were asked, would admit candidly that he took Highball to Chicago mainly with the idea that his colt would win the big stake.

The week's racing has shown us to be possessed of not only some exceedingly good three-year-olds, but more especially of some grand older horses among the handicap division. Such a performance as that of Hermis in the Suburban has never been equalled, and horses, such as The Picket and Irish Lad, would have been good enough to hail as champions in five years out of six. The amount of hard racing done by our two-year-olds still finds a number of good sportsmen to decry the practice of treating them severely. At the same time there is this to be said in favor of it—it means the survival of the fittest, and owners realize that it is well to make hay while the sun shines.

In the program of tomorrow Brigand is again afforded a chance to win a mile and a furlong handicap, with 90 pounds. The lighter weights are taken in preference to Major Daingerfield, Savable and Whorler, mainly for the reason that they appear to be in winning form just now.

The Rose Buds stake, for fillies, will prove Incantation to be again in the public's choice, and this time there does not appear to be any Turquoise in the field to take her measure, as there was in the Astoria. The stake is a nice little plum, worth $3,000 to the winner. Pulsus, Jacquin and Divination appear to be the pick in the three-year-old race.

The Grab selling stakes, with its array of 21 contenders, is a feature held on which to wager. Recent form points to Sheriff Bell, Flammula, Stuve, Dainty and Wild Thyme, and to Sheriff Bell more especially. The book program affords a week of grand entertainment, and Tuesday there will be two most interesting stakes decided, the Surf for two-year-olds and the Swift for three-year-olds.

MAY KILL RACING.

The No-Betting Law in Chicago Bound to Work Hardship on the Tracks.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(Special.)—Beginning tomorrow Washington park will start out with its first week of non-betting racing. What the result of the day may be will have an effect in determining the future action of the club, in all likelihood. At any rate, the day is looked forward to with misgivings and a slight bit of anxiety.

Chicago has never had racing without betting before and it is a serious question whether the Washington Park club will be able to interest the public, the turfmen, the owners and other followers of racing sufficiently to make the continuation of the meeting for 24 more days an exhibition of sound business judgment. Certain it is that a big deficit will result if the plans are carried out.

Intimations are made on all sides that the meeting will be abandoned or transferred to Harlem if the mayor continues to hold his opition and shut down betting. Every indication points to his holding out, for bookmakers have already begun to fly away to other grounds, St. Louis, Kentucky and Oklahoma points attracting them. The inference from the move on their part is they are sure they will be given no chance to do business.

BROKE THE RECORD.

Pirates' Special Train Traveled at Great Rate of Speed.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—(Special.)—The special train which brought the Pittsburgh and St. Louis baseball clubs to this city today broke the running record between the two cities. The best previous time was 15 hours, made by the special which brought President Roosevelt here for the dedication of the fair. The baseball special made the trip in exactly 13 hours and 15 minutes.

Raymond Jones of Pittsburgh had charge of the train. At Indianapolis Trainmaster Campbell of the Vandalia boarded the special and sent it over his division 20 minutes faster than the record. During the entire trip the special had the right of way.

Coshocton Beat Alliance.

ALLIANCE, O., June 19.—(Special.)—The Coshocton team defeated Alliance in a well played game at Lake park. For the third consecutive Sunday the teams were delayed under arrest for Sunday playing, and will pay minimum fines. The arrests were made by officer from Justice Hahetimer's court at Youngstown. ### Butler Has a Golf Club.

BUTLER, PA., June 19.—(Special.)—Residents of Butler have formed a golf club and have leased the F. L. Kohler farm at Lyndora on which links will be laid off. The farm house will be transformed into a club house. On Monday Harry Harvey, a well known golf enthusiast of Foxburg, will commence laying off the links for the local club, while O. D. Thompson of Allegheny will next week give instructions in the game. Among leaders in the movement are Joseph Abend, Peter Duffy, P. X. Kohler, B. Reed and Benjamin Jack.

An Even Break at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—The St. Louis and New York American league teams broke even here today in a double-header. The first game went to the New Yorks by a score of 4 to 3, and the St. Louis team took the second by a score of 1 to 0. Powell and Howell, who figured in an ante-season trade, were the opposing pitchers in the first game, the former winning by a narrow margin. Fred Glade held the visitors out in the second game, striking out 10 and allowing only four hits. Attendance 20,112. Scores:

BRADFORD WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Four Men Forced to Jump for Life from Blazing Restaurant.

HEROIC ATTEMPT AT RESCUE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BRADFORD, PA., June 19.—A disastrous fire that started in the Model restaurant, 111 Main street, at 4 o'clock this morning, cost one life and destroyed more than $30,000 worth of property. Several saved themselves from death in the flames by leaping from a second-story window.

THE DEAD:

MISS MARGARET M'CARTY, owner of the restaurant, burned to death.

ESCAPED BY JUMPING.

WILLIAM DAVIS, boarder.
SAMUEL MORRIS, boarder.
ANDREW ANDERSON, boarder.
M. A. HETTRICK, boarder.

The five named were asleep in apartments on the second floor above the restaurant when the fire started. Dense clouds of smoke, intermingled with red tongues of flame, were filling the rooms when all were aroused by the heat. They groped to the doors of their rooms, only to find the hallway and stairway a crackling furnace. Escape in that direction was effectually cut off.

The rooms of Davis, Morris, Anderson and Nettrick were so situated that they had access to outside window, but the flames were already spreading throughout the entire upper floor, and the window offered the only means of escape. The room occupied by Anderson and Hettrick was near that of Miss McCarty, who, like themselves, was searching frantically for a way of leaving the burning building. They heard the terrified woman shriek for help and instantly made a heroic effort to reach her.

So rapidly had the fire spread, however, that when they started in the direction of her room they were caught by the flames and driven back, with faces and clothing scorched. Davis and Morris, who were nearest the outside window, had already jumped to the ground below. The two men were forced to abandon all further attempts at rescuing the woman, and, almost suffocated by the smoke that rolled in on them from all sides, crept to the window and leaped from the second story just in time to save themselves.

Firemen, who had by this time responded to the alarm, were on the scene too late to even attempt a rescue. The blaze communicated to the adjoining structure, No. 113, located on the east side of the restaurant, and that building, too, was quickly destroyed. It was occupied by a barber shop and billiard room on the first floor and contained lodging rooms on the second floor.

On the west side of the Model restaurant was the Pierce house, 107-109 Main street. This was burning by the time the fire department arrived. Capt. Foust of the police department ran into the building and aroused the guests, who had no time to dress. They flocked out into the street in their night clothes and sought shelter in neighboring houses, which were promptly opened for them. Nothing of value was saved in any of the buildings owing to the swiftness with which the fire spread. By hard work the firemen kept the flames confined to the three buildings mentioned. The property loss is partially covered by insurance.

"HAM BRIGADE" FORMED.

Unique Committee to Handle One Phase of the Forthcoming Orphans' Picnic.

The organization of a "ham brigade" at the meeting of the general committee which met at the Epiphany Lyceum last night, to solicit hams for use at the annual orphans' picnic at Calhoun park July 13 and 14, created a great deal of amusement, and when Chairman P. A. Dunn appointed the wives of each chairman of the committee, it was understood that the "ham brigade," as the new organization is styled, should prepare to deliver to the committee 1,000 boiled hams ready to be carved. A resolution was also adopted to the effect that no woman should solicit supplies from any of the wholesale houses. This was in order to facilitate the work of the carriers.

Under the plan adopted, letters will be written to all the wholesale houses in the city and the firms will be asked to return the letter with an order for the drayman to call at the warehouse for the donation a day or two before the picnic opening.

It was with considerable surprise that the committee of chairmen learned that, although 27,000 tickets have been distributed so far, this number is just 3,000 behind the figures for the same date last year, and while $21,000 was the total amount raised in 1903, it is the ambition of the committee to raise $26,000 at the coming picnic. This greater amount is necessary because of the larger number of children at the orphanage, there being at present more than 900 waifs under the care of the orphanage management.

The committee upon the selection of a lot reported that the location will probably be on the Allegheny side of the river and the exact location will be announced upon Tuesday or Wednesday. The music committee have already engaged the Mozart orchestra. The St. Louis ticket contest will be arranged in detail.

Officers of Gaelic Society Elected.

At a meeting of the O'Growney Gaelic society held on Saturday evening in the Cathedral lyceum, Washington street, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Jeremiah McCarthy; vice presidents, Delia Hogan and John P. Killeen; treasurer, John Finn; recording secretary, Michael O'Meally; financial secretary, Michael Henaghan; librarian and historian, Bernard MacGillen. An executive committee consisting of the following members was also elected: Maria Malia, Mary McCarthy, Katie Coakley, Margaret Lennon, Annie Cook, Josephine Coakley, Nellie Fitzgerald, Michael Leary, Patrick Gara, Thomas J. Stanford, Thomas McVerey, Martin Noone, Michael Burke, P. J. Burns and Patrick O'Reagan.

School Principal Is Elected.

Prof. Charles H. Donnell of Punxsutawney was on Saturday evening, at a special meeting of the Turtle Creek borough school board, elected principal of the public schools to succeed Prof. H. R. Elliott, who was not a candidate because of ill health. Miss Nellie May of New Brighton was elected teacher to succeed Miss Elma Altman, who was elected to a position in the Wilkinsburg borough schools at a higher salary. Miss Pearl Dibler of Turtle Creek and Miss Cornelia P. Morrow of Mercer were elected to fill two other vacancies.

MANY VISITORS AT THE SHORE

Record for This Time of Year Beaten Sunday at Atlantic City.

PITTSBURGHERS AT HOTELS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Young's Ocean Pier.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 19.

Atlantic City was thronged today with the largest number of visitors ever known to be on the island at this season of the year. The boardwalk, the beach, the piers and in fact almost every available space was filled with a solid mass of people and the scene was like that of a hot Sunday in the middle of August. Never at this time of the year in past seasons were there near so many bathers in the surf as today and in fact all records for visitors to the city have been badly beaten. It was anticipated that, following the celebration of the golden jubilee, the resort would cool down for a short time before the crowds would come here in force, but that prediction has not and may not come true. The 18 life guards now on duty were kept busy today, also, owing to the large number of bathers. Guards Parker and Penny pulled in four men, one of whom had to be worked over nearly an hour before being resuscitated. Eight other bathers were rescued during the day by the other guards.

William M. Gardner spent yesterday and today at the Hotel Garden.

Late Pittsburgh arrivals at the Hotel Traymore include Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Cower, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Monypeny, P. S. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Ache, and Z. H. Russell.

E. R. Felton has a suite of rooms at the Windsor hotel for an indefinite stay.

Charles L. Rieling is at Green's hotel for a week's rest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davenport are sojourning at the Hotel Dunlop.

G. A. Barclay, H. F. Matson and W. T. Darr are late arrivals at the Dunlop.

Miss Anna Harker has apartments at the Boniface, where she will spend the summer.

Among the Pittsburghers noticed on the boardwalk and strand today were I. R. Pachard, Henry M. Atwood, James McClure, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Beatty, Mrs. Thomas Marshall, Mrs. A. M. Davis and Miss Davis.

Colonel and Mrs. Henry Walton are spending a few days at the New England hotel.

W. C. Pressing, of the produce firm of Pressing & Orr, has apartments at the Hotel Strand.

E. M. West, a well-known cheese manufacturer of Pittsburgh, accompanied by his son, Edward West, is located at the Strand.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery Wilson and Miss Edythe Wilson are sojourning at the Royal Palace.

Miss Bessie Ward is spending a few days at the Seaside House.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosenstein are at the Seaside House for a week's stay.

James M. Bailey is spending a short time at the Wiltshire.

Arthur L. Anstock and R. W. Feustermacher are guests at the Cedarcroft.

Miss Grace Moses is spending a few days at the Cedarcroft hotel.

Miss Isabel Manning and Mrs. Manning are staying at the Hotel Jackson.

Claude G. Fields spent Friday and Saturday at the Tred-Avon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ward, who have been staying at the Grand Atlantic, returned home yesterday.

CONCERTS IN THE PARKS.

There Were Bands, Quartets and Soloists at the Trolley Resorts.

There were many attractions at the trolley parks yesterday and last evening. Kennywood had the Homestead Library band, which gave two concerts. Calhoun had the Commonwealth Concert band. Several solos were played by members of the band. As special features with the organization the Van Brothers sang a number of songs and the Imperial quartet entertained.

The Oakwood crowds were entertained by the Berger Carnival Concert band. Jennings and Renfrew and Marie LeToy, vocalists, were among the extra attractions. Southern park had the City band of Huntingdon, Pa., consisting of 38 members. Miss May Evans, whistler and imitator, was also on the program, as were Emerson and Omega, vocalists.

Church Received 58 New Members.

Rally day was observed in the Walton M. E. church, Sarah and South Twenty-Fourth streets yesterday. A large congregation of former and present members gathered in the morning when the pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. R. Wolf received 58 new members into the congregation. The service was impressive and was followed by addresses and greetings to both the new and old members. In the evening Children's day was observed with an interesting program rendered by the little people.

Caught 75-Pound Turtle.

Captain James Donaldson of the steamer Killbuck No. 2, caught a 75-pound turtle at Herrs Island dam at 7 o'clock last evening. The turtle was seen floundering about between one of the piers and the wall of the dam and setting out in a skiff, Captain Donaldson, with the assistance of several friends armed with pikes succeeded in landing the big fellow into the boat.

Rivermen Spent Idle Day.

With a low and stationary stage of water in the local harbor, rivermen spent an idle day yesterday. Considerable coal is loaded and stands ready for shipment on the first rise with many of the local steamers tied up. The Francis J. Torrance and Mayflower took out large excursion parties, which constituted the sole traffic of the day.

JAPAN'S ATTACHE AROUSES CASSINI

Ambassador Protests Over Officer's Speech at Dinner. American Officials Present.

HE FEARS EFFECT ON PU LUN

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.

Much international importance now surrounds the brief but telling speech of Commander Isam Takeshita, naval attache of the Japanese legation, at the sixth annual dinner of the American Asiatic association at Sherry's on June 1, when Prince Pu Lun of China was the most notable guest. Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, has called this speech to the attention of Secretary Hay as one calculated to have an ill effect upon the world's opinion of the neutrality of the United States and China in the Russo-Japanese war. He has requested that the attention of Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, be called to the act of his subordinate.

Various reports of the tumult caused at this dinner by a single utterance by Commander Takeshita of the Japanese war cry "Banzai" have reached Washington. Count Cassini's early inquiries elicited the statement that government officials who attended observed nothing in violation of international amenities. The Journal of the American Asiatic association for June, however, contained this account of the incident which Count Cassini conveyed to Secretary Hay on Thursday last:

Called on Japanese Attache.

"The Toastmaster—I regret to have to announce the unavoidable absence of Rear Admiral Rodgers, who was to have responded to the toast of 'The Navy,' but in spite of the earnest desire of this association to preserve an attitude of perfect neutrality, at least around the festive board and to refrain from subjecting our guests to the hearing of any sentiments destructive to that neutrality, I cannot refrain from saying that we have with us the naval attache of the Japanese legation, Capt. Isam Takeshita, who might say a word in reference to a navy which without American influence would probably not have been the victorious navy of Japan."

"Capt. Takeshira—Your imperial highness, president, Mr. Toastmaster, gentlemen of the Asiatic association, members of the Asiatic association—We Japanese will win. Therefore I simply ask you to join me drinking 'Banzai.'

"The toast was then drunk amid great applause."

"Banzai" is the equivalent of "victory for Japan."

Will Cause Chagrin.

Count Cassini was confident that when this account of the incident reached Russia much surprise and chagrin would be felt that such enthusiasm was shown for Japanese arms at a dinner attended not only by Prince Pu Lun, a member of the imperial family of China, the preservation of whose neutrality all the powers are pledged to encourage, but also by a representative of the American state department in the person of Mr. Rockhill and of the American army in Gen. Corbin.

He pointed out to Secretary Hay that Prince Pu Lun, a young and keen-sighted man, would be struck by the cheers and hearing tumultuous applause at the conclusion of his speech would judge that despite declared neutrality the United States was enthusiastically friendly to Japan. This, he feared, might have a dangerous effect upon the preservation of Chinese neutrality. The ambassador was prompt to assure Secretary Hay that he had no doubts of the sincerity of American neutrality. He expressed his satisfaction with the manner in which it had been strictly maintained. It was the light in which the world would view the incident that he feared.

Chinese Did Not Drink Toast.

He had been informed that neither Prince Pu Lun or the Chinese minister, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, had drunk the toast, and that Mr. Rockhill, who is Secretary Hay's chief adviser on Chinese affairs, and Admiral Barker, the United States minister to Panama, had remained seated.

Count Cassini told Secretary Hay that if a member of the Russian embassy similarly placed had so far exceeded his liberties as a diplomat, he would have sent him out of the country within 24 hours. The ambassador declared that the dinner could not be regarded as affording the presence of so many representatives of the American and Chinese governments rendered it impossible to be considered of official character.

Ordinarily, as dean of the diplomatic corps, Count Cassini would consider it his duty to call the Japanese minister's attention to this speech of his subordinate as an utterance absolutely contrary to the obligation of a member of the diplomatic corps to the government to which he has the honor to be accredited. But on account of the war between the two countries the Russian ambassador must have no intercourse with the Japanese minister. That is the reason he appealed to Secretary Hay.

Mr. Hay had not previously heard this version of the dinner episode. He promised to give the matter due and immediate consideration.

FATHER GALLAGHER DIES MARTYR TO HIS DUTY

Victim of Blood Poisoning, Feet Being Frozen Superintending Erection of Church.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—Martyr to his duty, the Rev. Father Henry A. Gallagher, pastor of St. Michael's Roman Catholic church, Fourth avenue and Forty-second street, Brooklyn, died today at St. Mary's hospital from blood poisoning, directly due to having frozen his feet while superintending the erection of a new church last winter.

For 16 years Father Gallagher had been the pastor of St. Michael's parish, and he had seen it grow to one of the largest in the diocese. It had long been the dream of his pastorate that a new church, adequate for the needs of the parish, be erected, and when he started the work, more than a year ago, he put in it all the enthusiasm of his nature. Early and late he worked over the plans, and, in addition to attending to his parish duties, he looked after every detail of the work. Last winter he was particularly busy, and one of the coldest days, with the wind sweeping up from New York bay a few blocks away, his feet were frost bitten. He looked upon this as a trivial matter and did not give it much attention, and it was only a few days before he was out again, looking after the details of the building.

It was not until five weeks ago that he began to feel the ill effects of the exposure, and then when he became seriously ill with diabetes, gangrene began to attack his feet, and he was removed to St. Mary's hospital, but it was not until a few days ago that his condition became serious. The poison had permeated his system and medical aid was unavailing. Father Gallagher is survived by one brother, the Rev. Father Charles Gallagher, and two sisters, who live in the parish.

EXPORTS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Billet and Rail Shipments Over 60 Per Cent Greater Than Imports.

AMOUNT FROM PITTSBURGH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 19.

Pittsburgh mills exported upwards of 36,000 tons of steel billets, steel rails, steel bars, steel plates, steel hoops, hoop iron, iron plates and iron bars to various foreign countries last month. The billet and rail shipments abroad show an increase of more than 60 per cent, when compared with the imports. During May 23,632 tons of billets were sent abroad, as compared with 13,767 tons for the previous month. Twelve thousand five hundred and forty-four tons of last month's shipments went to Welsh ports; 9,226 tons to English ones; 2,462 tons to the continent, and 1,400 tons to Scotland.

Seven thousand three hundred and forty-five tons of rails were sent to various parts of the world in May, the principal shipment going to New Foundland. In April the rail exports were 6,050 tons. To St. Johns one lot of 4,245 tons was shipped last month. One thousand and seven hundred tons in two shipments went to Mexico. The Argentine Republic was forwarded one shipment of 1,400 tons. Eight hundred and seventy-two tons went to Japan and a small lot was shipped to Cuba.

One thousand six hundred and ten tons of steel plates, steel bars, iron plates and hoop iron were shipped abroad in May. The principal item was steel plates, of which 1,366 tons were shipped to different foreign ports. Japan was forwarded 564 tons; 525 tons went to Australia, and 109 tons were consigned to Manilla, while the balance went in about equal proportions to Havana and Honolulu. One hundred and fifteen tons of iron plates went to Japan. The hoop iron exports, aggregating in all less than 100 tons, went to Brazil and Hamburg. One hundred and two tons of iron bars were forwarded in about equal lots to Liverpool, London and Manchester. One hundred and sixty-five tons of pig iron went to British ports, 150 tons of which was forwarded to Glasgow.

TELLS WHAT PHILIPPINE COMMISSION SHOULD SEE

The Rev. Dr. J. T. McCrory Holds Visitors Should Find Examples of Righteousness.

"What We Wish the Philippine Commissioners Could See in Pittsburgh," was the subject theme of the sermon preached in the Third United Presbyterian church, Diamond street, last evening by the pastor, the Rev. J. T. McCrory. Taking for his text Psalms xxii, 28, "Because Jehovah loved Israel forever, therefore made he thee king to do justice and judgment," he said in part:

Curiosity brought the queen of Sheba to Solomon and she had her curious questions answered. But it was the great practical affairs of life that impressed her. She saw the application of the principles of righteousness to the government of every-day human affairs. These Hebrews professed to believe in certain doctrines of religion, and these she saw applied in such a way that they were the most beneficent results in all the affairs of state.

These men from the far-off Philippines are among us to learn the things that will be for the profit of the millions of their half-civilized people. The problems of the Philippines are those of the rest of the world; not how to make money, how to build railroads, how to develop resources, but how to conserve the highest interests of the whole people. Would God that Pittsburgh could show them, along with her great industrial enterprises, a government modeled after that which the queen of Sheba saw in Jerusalem. What, then, would they see?

They would see a model chief magistrate. They would meet a wise, sober, patriotic, God-fearing man as mayor who was devoted heart and soul to the highest interests of all the people and all the interests of this great Christian city. Why should not a great city like ours be governed by its very greatest citizen? Our chief ruler ought to be our ablest, noblest, truest-hearted, justest man.

The queen was impressed with the character of the public servants of the great king. Solomon had applied the rule laid down by his predecessor, the great King David, as to the character of the men who should serve under his administration. The chief ruler, the minister, the time server, the man with a high look, too high to see what is going on in criminal quarters—such men were not wanted in Solomon's service, and we want the same kind employed in any honest government. Can our king show these foreigners servants of the highest character in all departments of the city government?

Another thing that filled this woman with wonder was the patriotic policy of Solomon's administration. Absolutely unselfish—no ax to grind, no friends to enrich, no schemes of developing mines to promote, everything open and above board and in the interests of public welfare.

She saw a firm and righteous attitude of opposition toward all the forces of evil which sought the injury of society. Will our visitors see something of this kind? Will they see in the administration of opposition toward drunkenness, gambling, prostitution and shameful desecration? Of course they will not be tempted with drink at the banquet to be tendered them, but will they see that the city authorities have banished liquors from the social board. But will they see right, virtue, morality and temperance encouraged as they look into the affairs of the city and go home with the conviction that the whole body politic is sound?

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, June 19.—Alarming reports reach here from trustworthy sources of the interior conditions in Russia. In Finland, Poland, Little Russia and in some of the Asiatic provinces conditions are ripe for an insurrection and it will be not only impossible to withdraw troops from these provinces for service in the east but the garrisons there will have to be reinforced.

Not for years has there been such a flood of revolutionary literature in Russia. The leaders of the movement are at work night and day spreading the spirit of discontent and there are accumulating evidences that their work is prospering with success. The assassination of Gov. Bobrikoff of Finland is not the first bloody event of this recrudescence of nihilism, nor is it expected to be the last. The others have been of comparatively unimportant officials and news of them have been suppressed. The war with Japan is not popular save with a certain class of officials and army men who will profit by it either financially or in the way of promotion, and this fact makes the work of the revolutionary propagandist easier.

Churches Held Memorial Services.

Prayers for the suffering, the bereaved and the dead, due to the General Slocum disaster, were offered in the First Evangelical Lutheran church, Grant street, yesterday morning by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. H. Geistand, who also referred to the catastrophe in his sermon, which was followed by a short memorial service for the dead. In all churches prayers were offered, while Lutheran congregations, generally, held special services on behalf of their stricken sister church, St. Mark's of New York.

Negro Bishop to Lecture.

Bishop W. B. Derrick, D. D., presiding bishop of the third episcopal district of the African Methodist Episcopal church, in which Pittsburgh and Allegheny are included, will deliver a lecture at the Brown chapel of the A. M. E. church, Boyle and Hemlock streets, Allegheny, tonight. His subject is "The Colored Man Falsely Indicted Before the Bar of Public Opinion."

Former Councilman Arrested.

Charles J. Pfeiffer, a salesman, of 1322 Gibson street, and formerly councilman of the Sixth ward, was last night locked up in the Central police station as a suspicious person. A 4-year-old daughter of Max Welhiresky of 1320 Gibson street is the complainant.

PASTOR RUSSELL TALKS ABOUT CALAMITIES AND THEIR MEANING

People on Earth Are All Convicts Condemned to Death by His Sentence.

LESSONS ARE TO BE LEARNED

Pastor C. T. Russell of Allegheny yesterday, at 3 p. m. addressed a large audience, which gave closest attention to his presentation of the relationship of divine providence to the calamities of earth. Next Sunday he is to speak at Philadelphia. His text yesterday was from Romans viii: 28—"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God." He said:

Calamities such as occurred on Wednesday last touch a cord of human sympathy the world over. And if fallen human creatures are moved to sympathy, can we doubt that the heavenly hosts, cognizant of earthly affairs, have sympathy also? Can we doubt that the great Creator and the Lord Jesus are cognizant of the woes of earth, "touched with a feeling of our infirmities," and sympathetic with the sorrows and sufferings of mankind? Nor can we doubt the "all power in heaven and in earth" of the Father and the Son, and that all the holy angels are their messengers to accomplish their decrees on our behalf. Where were the angels at the time of the burning of the steamer General Slocum? Where was the divine pity and power to deliver? Why was so much anguish permitted not only to those who suffered in the catastrophe, but to their friends ashore who suffered almost as intensely? Why was it that while humanity put forth every effort to minimize the disaster, divine power was apparently exercised not one particle?

I am aware that in asking these questions, and in proposing to give a solution of them, I am setting myself no small task. Nevertheless, by the grace of God, I trust to answer them in a manner that will restore faith to some inclined to doubt the very existence of a God, or at least, to doubt His sympathy and love and power. As usual, I shall confine myself to scriptural evidences, and thus any who may be convinced by our presentation will be more strongly entrenched in their faith in the Bible as the word of God and will learn to look to it for the solution of all the problems of life.

Before presenting the scriptural answer to these queries, we want to look at the subject from the standpoint of others—from the unscriptural standpoint commonly accepted by Christian people—who unwittingly have accepted traditions of men, philosophies of men, errors from the dark ages, supposing them to be the teaching of the Word of God. In this manner we have propounded above are totally unanswerable from the viewpoint of the majority of those who have named the name of Christ, and who have given up to take the Bible as their standard; because they have taken human traditions, human creeds, instead of the word of God, erroneously believing them to be in accord.

The general claim of Christian people is that the world at the present time is under the Lord's domination, that He is the great King and Overseer of all the events and affairs of humanity. They are very apt to seize upon such a calamity as occurred not long ago in Chicago in a theater fire as an evidence of divine displeasure against theater-goers, but they are utterly at a loss for an explanation of such a calamity as the eruption of Mount Pelee and the awful destruction of life that occurred thereby, which, according to accounts, included hosts of worshipers at that time praying to God in the Roman Catholic churches of the island, and killed on the spot. Similarly they are unable to offer an explanation of the recent calamity, in which 1,000 adults and 600 little ones, a church picnic party, participated, nearly one-half of whom lost their lives by the horrible manner while seeking a day of innocent pleasure and recreation.

Many Erroneous Views.

Because of their lack of appreciation of the scriptural teaching on the subject, their faith in God is shaken by this last calamity and similar ones. They ask themselves, was God blind that He did not discern between these innocent pleasure-seekers and others of the same moment engaged in wickedness, that He should permit the calamity to fall upon the innocent and permit the more guilty to escape? They ask themselves again, is God just in permitting such horrible experiences to those who are at least comparatively innocent, while others, open revelers in sin, open blasphemers, are permitted to pass through life with less bitter experiences? They say to themselves, close their minds, they refuse to think lest they should lose all faith in a supreme Creator. They lack the key of knowledge which the scriptures supply, to means of which the answers to all possible questions along this line are obtainable.

Another class will probably be affected differently; these will say, "Ah, yes! Now I perceive how God, who would have nothing concern upon this great tragedy, who could hear unmoved the shrieks of the terror-stricken and pained, who could hear unmoved their agonizing appeals to him and to his saints for matures for aid, who could see them consumed in the angry flames or strangled in the pitiless waters—this God is the one whom we fear and whom we have been taught to believe in for the eternity of torture in reservation for the great mass of His creatures. Now we can believe that before He created man at all, He prepared a great place of torture, laid up fuel sufficient for the ages, and provided the fireproof demons to tend it."

Poor creatures! Their condition is more pitiable than the class first mentioned, who lose all faith in a divine providence. They retain their belief in God, but so distorted as to be worse than none; they have a God whom they could not really love nor worship in spirit and in truth, one whom they could only fear and dread, and for whom almost heartlessly in their difficulty also is a lack of knowledge! As the scriptures declare, "My people have gone into captivity because they have no knowledge." Alas, that the second class and in a doubly pitiable condition—yet all of this difficulty comes from misunderstanding the divine word, comes through the errors, the darkness, the gross darkness of the dark ages. Some of the fallacies of terrible time of superstition and blindness have been gotten rid of, some of the features of the divine plan have come to more clearly seen since the Reformation, but much darkness, gross darkness, still remains.

Views From God's Standpoint.

Let us take God's standpoint in viewing these matters—let us see what a flood of light it will throw upon the entire situation. First, however, I would have you notice that the situation is in some respects more awful than the majority of mankind seem to realize. Such calamities as we have to consider stand out prominently before the minds and hence awaken our emotions; while still greater, still more awful calamities of other kinds are all about us and are taken as a matter of course. We will not mention the killed and wounded in battles deliberately planned and arranged, but we will come to the burning fevers which are reaping all over the world and claiming thousands of times as many victims as the burning boats, burning theaters and those burned by volcanic fires. Consumption, pneumonia and typhoid fever, as well as cholera, smallpox and a hundred other diseases, are carrying off thousands of times as many of our race and with more prolonged if not more intense suffering than do the burning fires. Who can tell what shall we say of the alcoholic fires which consume many by their own choice?

But, some will perhaps remark, those are sent calamities—those are natural diseases. Wait a moment. What is a calamity? Why is not a pestilence of diphtheria or of smallpox or of typhoid fever or of consumption—why are not these as great calamities as the burning of a vessel or of the theater, especially when they involve so many more members of our race? They are calamities, though they are not sudden calamities; and the fact that they come so gradually and are so general counts to some extent our feelings respecting them.

If we are to inquire why God did not interpose His power to hinder the operation of nature in the instant these explosion and the disaster it brought to the steamer Martinique, if we are to inquire why God did not interpose His power to hinder the awful holocaust of the Iroquois theater in Chicago, if we are to inquire why He did not interpose on behalf of those who suffered in the latest horror, why should we not extend our investigation and inquire why God does not interpose to hinder the still great calamities, the pains of disease which prey upon our race and carry millions to the tomb annually?

Evils Moral and Physical.

Our question then broadens itself and compels us to inquire, Why does God permit any evil—moral or physical? Why does He not exercise His power to suppress moral evil of every kind—murder, war, sin in every form? Why does He not exercise His power to prevent His creatures from all the adverse physical conditions to which they are exposed? The Scriptural answer is that God's failure to interpose on behalf of His creatures in all these respects is in accordance with His wise and loving favor. The Scriptures tell us that the fall took place 6,000 years ago; that as man was originally created he was perfect, upright, in the image of His Creator, and provided with everything necessary for his well being, and that to all eternity; that he was placed upon trial with the alternative of either retaining his relationship with God and the divine promise of eternal life and its blessings ultimately, or by disobedience of forfeiting all this and coming under the curse or sentence of death.

The Scriptures tell us that our first parents took the course of disobedience, and that all the sin, suffering, pain, sorrow, dying there is in the world from their day until our day is because, as a race, we lost divine favor and its blessing of everlasting life and came under the divine sentence or curse of death—pain, weakness and imperfection being merely parts of the dying process. The apostle explains this in so many words, saying, By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world and death as a result of sin, and so death passed upon all men, for all are sinners. Having inherited Adam's weakness, we are all by nature sinners, and as he was condemned as unworthy of eternal life, we similarly are unworthy.—Rom. v:12.

A Race of Convicts.

From this standpoint we can readily see that the world of mankind is a race of convicts under death sentence, and merely serving out that sentence. From this standpoint we can see that our Creator, having sentenced us to death, permits our own weaknesses, imperfections, feebleness, etc., to rule over our lives, precipitating conditions favorable to accidents, calamities, diseases, etc. In the case of the Iroquois theater, apparently a part of the trouble lay in the fact that the employes were not efficient, either mentally incompetent for their positions or careless, or, through the carelessness of some superior, uninstructed respecting their duties. Incompetence or negligence of parsimony interfered with other safeguards supposed to be operative there. The results were not a divine vengeance, neither of divine imposition; the most we could say is that God did not interfere to help man over his blemishes and negligence. In the case of the boat, much the same could be said: poor judgment failed to beach the boat in time at Sunken Meadows. Doubtless defective judgment had to do with the conditions which started the fire, and selfishness evidently had to do with the failure to provide suitable life-preserving apparatus. Not divine providence, but human carelessness, weakness, selfishness, stupidity, are chargeable.

As to why God did not interfere to stop these things, to rectify human blunders, we might as well ask why should not someone interfere with the executioner when he is about to drop the convict on the scaffold. Man is a convict; the sentence against him is death. If God were to interpose generally to prevent the accomplishment of His own sentence against mankind it would be astounding, inexplicable. On the contrary, it is only in accordance with the proprieties of the situation that the great Judge, having rendered His death sentence against mankind, should permit the various agencies and channels of death to work their legitimate course—to bring death upon the world of mankind. God has permitted this policy for 6,000 years. As the apostle points out, sin and death have reigned in the world.

Sin and Death Still Reign.

From the time that God's sentence was pronounced, its execution has proceeded along the lines of natural law for now 6,000 years, until we estimate that something like 20,000,000 of humanity have gone down to the tomb. Taken all together, this would represent quite a respectable filling of the earth, as the Creator had it in mind when He said to our first parents: "Be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth." If, therefore, divine power were exercised on man's behalf—if God ceased to treat His creatures as convicts and received them back into harmony with Himself and revived them from the sleep of death, and brought the physical conditions of the earth back again to Edenic harmony and perfection, the world would be reasonable, comfortably filled, with an abundance of room for all; and if more ground were needed for their sustentation, the wastes could be reclaimed from perpetual snow and ice, as is promised through the prophets—that the earth as a whole shall blossom as the rose, as the fruitful plain of Sharon in Palestine.

Another object that will have been served by this long delay will be that the human family in general will have had an experience with sin and its wages that will be everlastingly profitable—the race as a whole will have learned a lesson of the "exceeding sinfulness of sin." As a whole, therefore, the awakened world under the new conditions of the Millennial Kingdom will be prepared to enjoy God's favors and to deprecate the sin which caused its loss originally, and they will thus be fortified against sin as respects the future.

We have spoken only of the value of the great lesson of sin and its penalty as respects mankind. The Scriptures assure us that "the angels also desire to look into these things." (1 Peter, 1:12.) We may be sure that the lesson now being taught is not for man alone, but also for all the holy angels. They are learning lessons respecting the divine character which could not have been taught them on well in any other manner. This great object lesson, which already has lasted for 6,000 years and is to last another thousand—the millennium of blessing and uplifting—the holy angels have been witnesses to man's disobedience to the divine sentence of death, to its relentless execution for now 6,000 years. We can almost imagine tears of sympathy from the holy angels as they witnessed man's degradation, mental, moral and physical—as they have witnessed the great calamities attendant upon the sentence, the curse, and have seen the whole creation, as the apostle pictures us, saying: "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together." Doubtless the angels for century after century wondered that God permitted the sin and misery to continue at all in sin, in pain, in trouble, in blasphemy against Him.

Finally the Angelic Shout.

Doubtless they wondered what good object could be served by the permission of the race to continue under the evil conditions which have prevailed for all these centuries. Their faith in God's wisdom and love began to have a reward when they noted the coming of the Son of God to be man's Redeemer. They may have said that it was a long time that God waited, but finally they saw a manifestation of His love and pity for mankind.

The angels, still through all this period of the gospel age, have watched the experiences of the little flock which the Lord is gathering to himself from every people, kindred, nation and tongue, and they behold that the Heavenly Father's plans are sublimely great and grand beyond all that they would have imagined. Surely when the due time shall have arrived—when the little flock who are to constitute the kingdom class, the royal priesthood, shall have been completed—when the very elect shall have been glorified with their Lord, the bridegroom—when the angels shall witness the rolling away of the curse, the rolling back of the sentence of death, the uplifting of mankind from the adverse conditions, we can imagine the shout of joy that will go up. Then through all the millennial age, for a thousand years, they shall witness the carrying out of the divine program for the uplift of man from the degradation of the days of slavery to sin and death, up, up, up, step by step, inch by inch, to the full perfection of perfect manhood in the image and likeness of God—the willing and willingly Incorrigible being destroyed in the second death.

With the end of the millennial age and the full establishment of God's will on earth as it is now in heaven, what a blessing it will be, lessen the holy ones will have had—lessons in patience, waiting for the Lord and for his "due time" (1 Tim. 2:6); lessons in appreciation of the divine character, in the love of God in the gift of His Son, and in the institution of all the glorious plan for man's deliverance from sin and death; lessons in the obedience of our Lord Jesus when He humbled Himself to become man and endure death, even the death of the cross; lessons in the grace of Christ which the Father gives to the obedient, as exemplified in our Lord's high exaltation in His resurrection far above angels, principalities and powers, and every name that is named, next to the Father, and partaker of the divine nature; lessons, too, in respect to the Gospel church, her justification through faith, her call to sanctification in preparation with her Lord for her trials and testings similar to His, and the great reward granted to those obedient to the divine will—the high exaltation of the church to be sharer with her Lord of the throne of glory, of the glories and divine nature—glory, honor and immortality. Lessons, too, in respect to the millennial age, as they shall witness that every step taken by the world in obedience, especially those taken knowingly and willingly, must be retraced, and that there will be no such thing as attaining to the perfection at the close of the millennial age except for the willing and obedient.

Now, dear friends, can we not take to ourselves all these great lessons and perceive that the justice, and love and wisdom and power of our loving Creator are not to be seen at short range, but only as we are able to discern the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of the glorious plan of the ages? Its ages of work to consummate all things are working together for good to them that love God, to the called ones according to His purpose. Rest your hearts upon Him, accept His promises, look for His kingdom, and for our appreciation more and more of the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of the love of God, which passeth all understanding.

WILL ERECT A CHURCH.

Stokes Takes Step Toward Providing Structure for Christian Scientists.

TRENTON, N. J., June 19.—(Special.)—Edward A. Stokes, millionaire real estate owner who a few months ago resigned from the fashionable Trinity Episcopal church, and identified himself with the Christian Scientists, has had incorporated the First Church of Christ (Scientist) of Trenton, securing a charter at the office of the secretary of state.

This step was taken, he announces, to give the Scientists of the city a legal status with a view of erecting a church in the near future.

A. W. Mellons in London.

LONDON, June 19.—(Special Cable.)—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mellon of Pittsburgh have arrived with their family in London, and are staying at the Carlton hotel. From here they will go to Datchet, in Buckinghamshire, where Mr. Mellon has taken the same country house that he had last year, for the present season.

PREACHED ON THE SLOCUM TRAGEDY

The Rev. Dr. T. J. Leak Tells of Relationship of God in Catastrophies.

LESSON IN NATURE'S LAWS

The catastrophe that befell the friends and members of the Sabbath school of St. Mark's Lutheran church of New York on the ill-fated steamer General Slocum last week was commented upon in sermon and prayer in many congregations in this city yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Leak, pastor of the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church, preached on the disaster, and, taking for his text Luke xiii. 4, "Those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwell in Jerusalem?" said in part:

We boast of our achievements, and yet are frequently reminded of our impotency in the face of great calamities. A great wave of sorrow and sympathy has spread over our land during the last few days as we have read of the terrible disaster at New York in which so many lives were lost. The sufferers represented the church of Christ, and it is not strange that minds believing in a loving God should ask why, or that the stricken pastor, in the midst of his suffering, should cry: "My God! What have we done to deserve this?"

Many theories will be advanced. Some may say: "This is a part of the fulfillment of the prophecies which point to great disturbances during the last days," but we must remember that such disasters have occurred in all ages. Some may wonder, as in the words of the pastor, whether the church has been guilty of sin, so that God took this way of punishing it, but Christ intimates in our text that calamities are not to be interpreted in that way.

The whole word teaches us that man is a sinful being, and that God is endeavoring to win him to righteousness. As a part of His purpose in this we read that He "cursed the ground for Adam's sake." Then He put him to pulling up the weeds and tilling the soil, in which exertion thought would be aroused and lessons learned that would help him in his development. He was to learn the laws of nature and govern himself by them, and thus work out his manhood. Such laws must be invariable and at least usually without interference from a higher power. For the Almighty to always correct the mistakes of man would be to make him careless, and in the long run do him an injury. One of these laws is that fire will burn, and we know that water will drown. Man's part is to prevent these laws from doing him damage, for they are intended for his good. When by accident or other cause he is in their power he must suffer. So was it with the hundreds of victims of the recent disaster. By some means they were brought under the power of fire and water and could not escape. It was not by their own will, nor do we believe it was by the will of God, nor was it a punishment for sin. Am I asked what then is the use of faith in God, or prayer for deliverance from such disasters? I answer, much. The spirit of God broods around the activities of the mind, quell the fears of the heart and give strength to overcome the difficulties around him and find a way of escape, while if death is met there the same spirit gives victory over death, and from the bosom of the destructive wave the soul of the Christian may rise to celestial bliss.

With all this there are many practical lessons that should be learned from such calamities that shall prevent their recurrence, provide sympathy and help for the sufferers and prepare the soul for the great transition that may come at any moment.

TO TAKE VACATION.

Congregation of Second Presbyterian Church to Suspend Worship Until September.

Announcement was made by Pastor Young in the Second Presbyterian church yesterday morning that the congregation would take a two months' vacation after the last service in the church on July 3, and that in September services would be begun in the Bijou theater and continued until the new church would be ready for occupancy.

Dr. Young spoke on "Needs of the Hub of Greater Pittsburgh" in the morning, and said in part:

In New York city while 200,000 people have moved in below Fourteenth street, 50 churches have moved out. In all other large cities as fast as the rich residential district recedes from the downtown section the churches follow. How great a percentage of the center-city Sunday population are transients—students, traveling salesmen, hotel and boarding house guests. What a responsibility the assembling of such a cosmopolitan congregation creates for the preacher! Can he speak a message, say a sentence adapted to every class present? Notwithstanding all disadvantages, Pittsburgh holds in its hands the opportunity of opportunities. Downtown Pittsburgh is the hub of Western Pennsylvania, and the whole wheel would collapse, commercially, morally, religiously, if the hub should fail. Our metropolis is threatened by no disease so much as by fatty degeneration of the heart.

Seven years ago the yearly collections were slightly over $9,000. The past year they have been about $20,000. Within seven years the membership was under 500. Today it is over 1,700. Five years ago you carried a heavy, long-standing debt. For four years you have worshiped in the Bijou, and you desire that God helping, with an inadequate, out-of-date plant like this old building, what can you not accomplish with a new, larger, splendidly equipped church home here amidst the new conditions?

Hereafter let a stranger coming to Pittsburgh find a sign blazing out and reading something after this manner, "Second Presbyterian church. Cordial welcome. Entering, let him find a reading room, gymnasium, swimming pool, game parlors, class rooms for such as wish to learn, these various quarters named after the former pastors, Snowden, Boggs, Hunt, Swift, Blythe, Dunlap, Howard, Sites, McKibbin, Sutherland, Talmage. Let the stranger come in from almost any motive; but that he go out a Christian. Let this be a more attractive spot than saloon or theater or dance hall or gilded dive.

World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE REASON.—There is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for purifying the blood. It carries off the poisons which contaminate the life fluid. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands and gives the body blood-making glands and gives the body an increased supply of pure, body-building blood. It builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh instead of flabby fat, promotes the appetite, feeds the nerves, and so gives to weak, nervous people vitality and vigor.

"About a year ago I had a very bad cough and feared it would run into consumption," writes Hon. Geo. W. Lynch, of 27 Mason Street, Worcester, Mass. "When a severe attack of coughing would come on vomiting would set in. Matter accumulated in nose and my tonsils were irritated. After reading of the wonderful cures resulting from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery began to use it, with some doubts as to the good it would do me, I am frank to say. But, after I had used one bottle I noticed quite a change for the better. Ordered five more bottles and before I had used them all the cure was complete. There is not now a trace of cough or cold in my system and my health is perfect."

PUBLIC VIEWS WALL STREET WITH CHILLY INDIFFERENCE

Indicated by the Decrease in Business Following the Announcement of the Southern Pacific's Financial Plan—Prices Generally Firm.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Stock prices were firm throughout the week closed, with one or two special exceptions, but the decrease in business following the announcement of the Southern Pacific's financial plan indicated the apathy and chilly indifference with which the public at large regards the stock market.

Some of the usual phenomena of the times appeared within the week. There were a continuance of the flow of unemployed capital to the reserve centers, railroad reports of earnings were not satisfactory, and bank clearances in the principal cities of the country, with the exception of St. Louis, showed further curtailment. These agencies failed to produce any effect on security prices. The fall in values some months ago discounted the phenomena which are now daily appearing. In the meantime business is by no means chaotic and a fair volume is being done. Two of the minor railroads reduced their dividend disbursements. One—the Lake Erie & Western—with its offer to pay dividend in two, and announcement was made that the decrease in earnings of the Minneapolis & St. Louis was so great that the directors decided to omit the 5 per cent dividend which has been distributed for the last two years. These decisions were characterized in some quarters as special cases and not symtomatic, but as there have been similar announcements within the recent past, and events point rather conclusively to others, the announcements of dividend curtailments must be taken at least as results of condition. On the other hand, there appeared the public offering of a block of $10,000,000 4 per cent debenture bonds of the New York Central, the success of which was proclaimed as foreshadowing a material improvement in financial conditions. There was also launched the financial plan of the Southern Pacific, by which the management of that property hopes to effect a settlement of its cumbersome and expensive floating debt. A flutter of excitement followed when the plan was announced. Did its launching mean a revival in speculation, with improvement in prices? The question was answered before the end of the week by a relapse in stock market activity and the slow recession in prices to the points from which stocks began to advance in the early part of the week.

It is evident that there has been no change in fundamental conditions. The process of relaxation in business is going on apace, evenly and fortunately, slowly. The effect of this process on the prices of commodities has only begun to tell. There is no disposition to embark in new enterprises, no matter how enticing the profits may be. The sentiment of the business world is averse to taking any risk, whether it be in stock market speculation or business enterprises. It appears natural that after four or five years of wonderful prosperity, when business was being conducted at a breakneck speed and the speculative tendencies of the public ran riot, that there should follow a period of retrenchment and a lack of enthusiasm for commercial activity.

There is one factor looming up in the future, however, which is doing more than anything else at present to maintain a stability in prices of securities and may quicken the wheels of trade. Reference is made to the crop prospects. Wheat, it must be admitted, will, at the best, be only a moderate yield, even below last year's crop. In corn, however, the present indications point to one of the largest crops ever garnered in the history of the country. While it is yet early to definitely speak of the outcome of the harvest of corn, it is a source of satisfaction to know that the acreage planted this year is believed to be the largest on record, and is in a condition at least 10 per cent better than a year ago at this time.

The official notice to the stockholders of the Southern Pacific company informing them of the plan to issue $100,000,000 of preferred stock was not distributed until after the close of business on Saturday. Unfortunately, the document does not contain anything that might win support from dissatisfied stockholders, who have already expressed disapproval of the plan.

In these days of distrust toward financial operations of any magnitude, it would seem highly advisable for a management asking its stockholders to authorize an issue of $100,000,000 in a preferred obligation to make some statement of the condition of the company and the purposes for which the stock is issued. In the Southern Pacific circular, however, the stockholders are asked to empower the directors to sell or issue $100,000,000 of preferred stock in such manner and at such times as the directors may authorize or determine. There is no statement given as to the extent of the floating debt of the company, to pay which, it is generally believed, the new plan has been launched. Neither is it definitely stated what dividends the preferred stock will pay. The giving the extent of the floating debt of the company, to pay which, it is generally believed, the new plan has been launched. # NEARLY ALL NEW WELLS ARE IN OLD TERRITORY

Operators in the lower southwest fields had little out of the ordinary to claim their attention during the past week. The number of wells completed was about the same as the preceding week, but nearly all are located in old territory and with but one exception ordinary producers. The exception noted was the South Penn Oil Company's second test on the E. Whitlatch farm, located in the Littleton district in Wetzel county, W. Va., and was the nearest approach to a gusher of any well drilled into the sand. When the Gordon pay was tapped the well started to flow at the rate of 50 barrels an hour, but held up at that gait for only a short time and then declined, making its production for the first 24 hours more than 400 barrels. By the close of the week it had dropped down to 235 barrels. The South Penn company and the Philadelphia Company have been meeting with very good success in this district. After the wells settle down to about 100 barrels a day they hold at that figure for considerable time. Within the past month there has been a marked increase in operations in this district, and with the completion of the work now under way there should be an increase in production from that quarter.

The efforts in other deep sand districts in Wetzel and Harrison counties were not attended by any strikes of special importance. Both the Folsom and Salem districts, in the last-named county, seem to have reached the limit of their capabilities for furnishing producers above the average in size. Aside from nothing better than small wells, the duster list is getting a good many of the new wells.

The Pine Grove extension in Wetzel county was well to the front nearly all of last year and supplied many good wells and a very creditable amount of new production. Of late, however, the wells have come in light and the production of the district is on the decline. There is still some activity and some of the work is of the experimental kind. The latter class of work is confined principally to the west side of the district, on Steele's run.

In the Fairview district, in Marion county, there are some important test wells past due in the sand. In the fifth sand development in this district there is some new work starting and a number of old wells, once producers in the Big Injun formation, drilling down to the fifth sand. The South Penn company's old No. 1 on the M. E. Brookover farm is still holding up at close to 200 barrels a day. This was formerly a Big Injun sand producer, drilled early in the development of the Fairview district, one of the first in West Virginia. It had declined to about two barrels a day, but when drilled down a few weeks ago started at better than 50 barrels an hour. The producing formation is not regular as might be desired, but when a strike such as the Brookover is made the incentive for keeping up the search for others is very great.

In the Big Lime district, near Milton, Cabell county, no new discoveries were made during the week. The Harshbarger Oil Company's No. 2 on the Harshbarger farm, which was drilled in a week ago and had an initial production of 15 barrels an hour, is now producing 140 barrels a day. The total production of the pool does not exceed 400 a day. The producing area of the development is confined to a very small space, not exceeding 200 acres.

Northwest of Woodsfield, on the Ohio side in Monroe county, the new Keener sand development opened by the Southern Oil Company when it drilled in its gusher on the George Wahl farm, has the talent guessing. During the past week the Southern company drilled in a second test on the Wahl farm and got a duster. The preceding week the same company completed a second test on the George Wahl farm and did not get better than a 15-barrel pumper. Last Thursday J. M. Patterson & Co. drilled in a test on the McFadden heirs' farm, located northwest of the Southern company's gusher, and secured a 50-barrel producer in the Keener.

If one is to judge from the results of the development work that has been completed, it is convincing that the big producer on the George Wahl farm is a freak. There is still a chance for extending the producing limits, but it is quite certain that the south and southeast are not the right directions to look for it.

No other part of southeastern Ohio has any territory that is attracting attention. The old districts are fairly active, but the work is confined to the development of the interior.

The local territory has a prospective new pool. It is located a mile west of Bakerstown station on the Pittsburg railroad. The new well is located on the Charles Crawford farm and is the Bakerstown Oil Company's venture on this farm. The oil was developed in the third sand and the well is thought to be good for 40 or 50 barrels a day. About a year ago the same company drilled a test on this farm and secured a 5-barrel pumper. Since that time two other small producers and a gasser have been completed in that locality.

In the Nineveh district, in Greene county, the Manufacturers Heat and Light Company has drilled ir its No. 3 on the Dr. W. S. Throckmorton farm and will have a paying producer. In the Artaxata district, the South Penn Oil Company completed two paying producers.

Down in Beaver county M. Finnegan has completed a second test on the Swearinger farm that show for 50 barrels a day or better.

PERFECT WEATHER PUTS DRAG ON GRAIN MARKET

Weakness Shown on Chicago Board Though Yesterday's Close Was Duplicated.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, June 18.—Practically perfect weather conditions for the maturing and harvesting of wheat caused weakness in the market for that cereal today, but covering by shorts resulted in a recovery. Final figures for July were unchanged from yesterday's closing quotations. Corn is down ¼c. Oats are off ⅝@¾c. Provisions show no material variations.

One of the most striking overnight changes affecting the wheat market was the decided advance in prices at Liverpool. Under the influence of firm cables the market here opened strong, July being up ½@⅝c to ⅝c at 84⅜@84½c. Another factor that helped to strengthen the situation was a sharp falling off in shipments from Australia. There also were rumors of foreign orders here for immediate shipment at about a working basis. The possibility of domestic millers and foreigners competing for the small stock of old wheat was enough to give short sellers of July a feeling of uneasiness. There was, however, much realizing by local longs at the advance. As a result July eased off to 84¼@84⅝c, later working up above to 84½c, the price started on a gradual decline occasioned largely by selling on fears of bearish statistics Monday.

Weather conditions, which were almost perfect, tended to weaken values. Northwestern houses were consistent sellers throughout the day. Reports from the northwest were suggestive of an increased movement in the near future. Just before there was renewed covering by shorts and practically all the loss was regained. The low point on July was reached at 83⅜c. The close was at 84@84½c. September ranged between 79⅝@79¾c and 79½c, and closed at 79½@79¾c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 165,100 bushels. Primary receipts were 296,800 bushels, compared with 321,700 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 301 cars, against 216 cars last week and 264 cars a year ago.

The initial strength of wheat exerted a supporting influence on the corn market at the start, holding prices the first hour a trifle above yesterday's closing figures. Weather conditions, however, were too favorable and receipts too liberal to allow of any considerable bullish enthusiasm. The volume of trading was small, business confined mainly to local traders. On the decline in wheat the selling of corn caused a weak undertone. The market closed near the low point. July opened a shade lower to ⅛c higher at 48⅝@48½c, sold between 47⅝c and 45½c, closing at 47⅜c. Local receipts were 364 cars, with 36 of contract grade.

Selling of oats had followed the weakness of other grains, liquidation of July holdings being a feature of trading. There was very little demand and as a result, prices gradually worked toward a low level. After opening a shade higher at 38⅞c, July sold off to 38⅛c, and closed at 38⅜c. Local receipts were 94 cars.

Trading in provisions was about at a standstill, there being an almost total absence of demand. Prices were barely steady notwithstanding small receipts of hogs and a firm market at the yards. September pork closed 12½c lower at $12.85. Lard was unchanged at $6.97½. Ribs were up 2½c at $7.45.

Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 25 cars; corn, 440 cars; oats, 94 cars; hogs, 40,000 head.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Dried Fruits Are Getting Scarce. Produce Active—Grain Trade Slow.

Only slight changes were made in the grocery market. The improved condition of the growing crops of winter and spring wheat had a slightly depressing effect on the wheat market. This enabled local jobbers to shade flour prices. The demand for flour was good. It was apparent that apricots and canned peaches are getting very scarce and that both will be cleaned up before the new stock comes in. Prunes are in ample supply and are offering at low prices. The jobbers reported a steadily growing demand for "ready-to-eat" cereals; also that cheese sold at lower prices than for several years, especially the cream makes. Beverages of all kinds are moving more freely and will continue so during the next few weeks, as will canned meats of all kinds.

The break in new potatoes was the feature of the produce market. Arrivals were heavy and prices hit the $4 mark in the yards; some sales were reported much lower on Saturday. There was a break early in the week but the market recovered and broke the second time. Old stock is closing out firm, with little offering. The arrival of tomatoes last week amounted to more than 50 carloads, and prices tumbled accordingly. Both Texas and Mississippi stock sold the lowest of any time this season, and no small amount of green stock came in from California. Green peas were wanted more than usual, and prices went up. The stock was very scarce. Both kale and squash went out of the market for this season and the supply of silverskin onions was about exhausted. Onions were rather draggy but the outlook for improvement is reported fair. Strawberries were in the demand; both Delaware and Maryland stock were pretty well cleaned up. Home raised and Ohio strawberries will be on the market from this time to the close of the season. Other new crop berries arrived in limited quantities and were wanted. Bananas were in the same brisk request, and oranges sold higher all week owing to the fact that it is now the season. New cherries came in abundance, as did new peaches near the close of the week. Poultry was slow and provisions were active; eggs were steady to firm and the butter supply continued light, with fair demand.

The hay and grain market was dull; arrivals were comparatively light, but there was noticeable falling off in demand for hay and straw; corn was very hard to dispose of and prices went away down. Oats showed pretty steady and millfeed was about the same as the previous week. No changes were made in millfeed. According to the dealers the new hay crop will be late coming in this year, and this will give ample time to clean up the old stock. New hay generally arrives here about July 15, but the crop is not expected before August this year.

HAY, GRAIN AND FEED.

Receipts bulletined Saturday: Pennsylvania, 9 cars hay, 5 cars oats; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 4 cars hay; Baltimore & Ohio, 11 cars hay, 4 cars corn.

Dealers charge an advance of 5c a bushel on grain and $3 00 a ton on hay and millfeed from warehouses in less than carload lots.

OPENING OF RESERVATION

Government Rules for Settlement of the Rosebud Indian Land.

WHAT APPLICANTS MUST DO

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Room 10, Postal Building. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.

Railway officials and the United States land offices are receiving thousands of inquiries concerning the requirements as to time, place and manner of allotment, and other information regarding the opening of the lands of the Rosebud Indian reservation.

The land in question comprises 382,000 acres, situated in Gregory county, South Dakota, between the Missouri, Niobrara and White rivers, in the southeastern part of the state and in the great corn belt of the Missouri valley.

The process of securing a quarter section of these Rosebud lands consists, first, of registration, July 5 to July 23, inclusive; second, the drawing for allotment, July 28; third, final entry of the land, beginning August 8.

Location of Land Offices.

United States Land registry offices are located at Bonesteel, Fairfax, Yankton and Chamberlain, S. D. In order to register for these lands it is necessary to appear in person at one of these offices for registration sometime between July 5 and July 23.

Registration cannot be effected through the mails, or by the employment of agents (except in the case of ex-soldiers and sailors). No person will be permitted to register more than once, or in any other than his true name. None but persons qualified to make homestead entry will be permitted to register.

These qualifications are that the applicant does not own more than 160 acres of land in any state of territory; is a citizen of the United States (either male or female) over the age of 21 years, or the head of a family, and intends to make entry and comply with the homestead laws, the land to be for his own use and benefit and not directly or indirectly for any other person.

Another Requirement.

It is also required that the applicant has not since August 30, 1890, entered under the public land laws of the United States land which, with a regular homestead, would make more than 320 acres, and has not heretofore perfected or abandoned an entry under the homestead laws.

To the above, the following exceptions are permissible: Those who, prior to May 17, 1900, made final five-year proof of a claim in certain Indian reservations opened by act of May 2, 1900; those who have not forfeited a homestead entry prior to June 5, 1900, or who have commuted a homestead entry and paid the government price for the land prior to that date; those who have relinquished or lost a homestead claim prior to April 28, 1904, receiving no payment or compensation for such relinquishment or loss.

Must Describe Former Entry.

Persons desiring to make a second entry, as above, should, before registering, provide themselves with a memorandum, giving number and date of former entry, description of the land, date and manner of its disposition or loss.

As soon as registered, each person will be given a certificate which will entitle him to go upon and examine the lands to be opened for settlement, to enable him later to understandingly select the land he desires to enter.

Homesteaders who have commuted once may enter second homestead, but cannot commute the second.

The transfer of a registration certificate to another person forfeits all rights therein.

Honorably discharged soldiers or sailors of the civil war, Spanish-American war, or their widows, may appoint an agent to register in their stead, furnishing them with copy of honorable discharge, or other competent evidence of military service. Such agent can act only for himself and for one such client.

For Soldiers or Sailors.

Honorably discharged soldiers or sailors, or their widows, may make declaratory statements through an agent holding power-of-attorney, and must, within six months after so doing, make homestead entry, establish residence upon and cultivate the land for the period of time, which added to their military service will equal five years (such residence in no case being for not less than twelve months).

The drawing to determine the order in which those registered will be permitted to enter the lands, will be so conducted that no applicant will gain or lose any advantage whatever by reason of the time, place or order of his registration. This drawing will take place at Chamberlain, S. D., on July 28, continuing until the names of all persons registered have been drawn.

Each applicant will be notified by postal card at the address given by him when he registers, of the drawing of his name, and of the date on which he must present himself for final entry of land, at the land office at Bonesteel, S. D., selection of land and homestead entry therefor being made in the order of drawing, beginning with the applicant who draws number one.

Will Be Given Notice.

Notice will be sent to those drawing numbers one to one hundred to appear in person at the land office at Bonesteel, S. D., at 9 a. m., Monday, August 8, 1904, to make final entry. Similar notice will be sent to those drawing numbers one hundred and one to two hundred, inclusive, to appear in person at Bonesteel, Tuesday, August 9, and so on at the rate of 100 per day until all the lands are allotted.

On the date of entry, each applicant must personally present certificate of registration and must make the final payment of $1 per acre. This can be done only in person at the United States office at Bonesteel, S. D.

Subsequent payments of 75 cents per acre must be made at the end of the second, third and fourth years and within six months after the expiration of the fifth year. Default of any of these payments forfeits all right to the land, and entry will be canceled. In addition to this total of $1 per acre the usual land office fees must be paid, amounting to $14.

No Fee Required.

No fee whatever is required at the time of registration, which is made upon blanks furnished by the United States land office, and for the proper execution of which notaries and other proper officers will be permitted to make a charge of 25 cents for each person.

Within six months after making entry the claimant "must establish a residence, in a house on his claim, and thereafter reside continuously upon the land and cultivate the same for the period of five years." At any time after 14 months of such residence, the entryman may make commutation proof upon such entry upon payment of the balance of the purchase price remaining unpaid, together with land office fees and commission, and in addition thereto $1.25 per acre, for the privilege of such commutation.

SET FIRE TO HOUSE AND BURNED BLIND SON

Awful Crime of New York Man Revealed by Wife Who Escaped.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 19.—Chauncey Hotailing, aged 40 years, was placed in jail here today, charged with the brutal murder of his 3-year-old blind son, whom it is said he abhorred because of the child's infirmities, and for the attempted murder of his wife.

Hotailing lived in the town of Vestal, about five miles from this city. Early this morning he burned down the house in which the child was. His wife escaped by climbing from the upper window and down a ladder. He had shot at her before she escaped and he thought she, too, had been burned. Hotailing went to a neighbor's and said that his house was burned down and that his wife and child had been burned to death.

Mrs. Hotailing says her husband had at times misused the child and had made the mother keep the boy out of his sight.

COSSACKS SAY JAPANESE ARE NOW TOO CONFIDENT

Weakening Forces on the Yalu. Being Aided by the Koreans.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

MUKDEN, June 19.—A raiding party of Cossacks just returned from two months in Korea, brings valuable news regarding the Japanese position, according to which the Japanese forces on the Yalu River have become decidedly weak, owing to the confidence of the Japanese commanders, based upon the results of the first fights. The Cossacks say that the inhabitants were well disposed toward the Russians and sold them food and forage readily and that they preferred the Russian coin to the Chinese notes in circulation there. Many Koreans armed and led by Japanese officers constitute the rear guard of the army. The raiding party came in contact with the Koreans frequently and sometimes there were five skirmishes daily. There was some heavy fighting and one battle lasted all day long, as the result of which the Koreans and Japanese lost 50 killed.

The Cossacks were eventually repulsed by a superior force of Japanese cavalry, which was able to cut them off at the Yalu and which outmarched and outmaneuvered them. The raiders crossed safely. They destroyed two important bridges, cut the telegraph wherever they could and seriously interrupted communication north, south and west of Anju. The crops in Korea, the Cossacks say, are in splendid condition and the country is prosperous, owing to the large circulation of Russian money. The Koreans complain much of the cruelty of the Japanese army. Manchurian Chinese report that a number of Chinese runners were killed, while trying to pass the Japanese lines, and that all the letters which they carried fell into the hands of the Japanese.

RECEIVED DOUBLE FINE.

Harry Golden Gets Heavy Penalty for Striking Officer at Hearing.

Harry Golden of 121 Erin street received a double fine yesterday for striking Special Officer John Callen, when arraigned for a hearing at the Central police station. Callen was arrested on suspicion of being one of the men who have been making a practice of robbing drunken men in Water street and along the Monongahela river. After the officer made this statement Golden was fine $25 and costs. He became enraged at being fined and struck Officer Callen in the face.

A regular rough-and-tumble fray resulted. Officers interposed. After the men were separated Magistrate Stewart withdrew the former fine and imposed another fine of $50 and costs or six months to the workhouse.

Acting Superintendent of Police Wallace issued an order last night to arrest all young men seen loafing about corners in the downtown streets after 10 o'clock each night. Frank Cunningham and John Golden were arrested last night in Water street for corner loafing. Golden is a brother of the youth who struck Officer Callen.

WALBRIDGE RETURNS.

Yale Student Missing for a Week Is Now Back in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 19.—(Special.)—Leonard K. Walbridge, a Yale junior and son of T. Chester Walbridge of Germantown, Pa., who has been missing since a week ago yesterday, and for whom search was being made, returned to college late tonight, joyfully surprising his father, who is here.

The young man had overworked himself at his studies preparing for examinations and skipped away without telling anyone in order to get a rest. He fell ill in New York. Neither he nor his father will make any more detailed statement nor say where in New York he was ill. Early tonight the father offered a reward of $200 for information of his son's whereabouts.

JOKE WAS NO TFUNNY.

One Man Was Knocked Down and the Other Was Cut.

A practical joke led to a cutting scrape in the Murti hotel, West Etna, late Saturday night, when W. C. Reese, an advertising man, gashed Frank Christy, a glass blower of West Etna, twice in the stomach.

The fight started by Christy striking Reese a hit. Words followed, and Christy is said to have knocked Reese down. Friends tried to part the men, but Reese is said to have drawn a small pocket knife and slashed Christy. Reese was held until Constable W. C. Armstrong and Officer Louis Cubbage arrested him. He was later released on $500 bail, the hearing being set for Wednesday before Justice Hughes of West Etna.

Reese lives on the Schopfer farm, Shaler township, where Jacob Schopfer is said to have been either killed or committed suicide a year ago.

Matron Leaves G. A. R. Home.

The 70 inmates of the Ladies of the G. A. R. home at Hawkins station enjoyed a service yesterday afternoon, given as a farewell to Mrs. Mary Sherwin, matron of the home, who this week will go to Philadelphia to take the position of matron of the G. A. R. Home for Aged Couples. The Rev. Isaac Cramer of the Methodist Episcopal church, North Braddock, had charge of the service. Several short addresses were made and a fine musical program was given.

Cut at a Christening.

Oliver Hunver, a Slav, was badly cut up at a christening at Scullys Springs, on Chartiers creek, Saturday night in a row following the christening. He made information against John and Mike Pivick, Mike Maksym and "John Doe," charging them with aggravated assault and battery and felonious cutting. His assailants have not been captured.

The First of the Season.

On Thursday, 23d inst., the Pennsylvania railroad will have their first seashore excursion, leaving Union station, Pittsburgh, at 8:55 a. m., with Pullman parlor cars and day coaches, reaching Atlantic City at 6:35 p. m. # HEARSES CROWD NARROW STREETS

Funerals of Many Slocum Disaster Victims—Sad Services by Stricken Congregation.

BANDAGED PASTOR PRESENT

NEW YORK, June 19.—All the lanes in St. Mark's parish led to the cemetery today. There were 55 funerals, bearing 150 victims of the General Slocum disaster to their last resting place in the little Lutheran burial yard at Middle Village, L. I. The narrow streets on the East Side were congested with hearses from early in the morning until night. Supt. Avenues of the cemetery said that 150 persons in all were buried there today. All were Slocum victims.

Professional funeralgoers, shorn of sentiment for the dead or sympathy for the stricken living, invaded St. Mark's parish. Women were the greatest offenders. Seeker a "free ride" they forced their way into the carriages halted before the houses of the dead and defied the mourners to dislodge them. Only when the police charged them were they routed.

Blocking the sidewalks before the houses from which the dead were being borne, these women brushed the mourners aside, taking their places in the waiting carriages. At several funerals the police surrounded the carriages, driving the crowd back with drawn clubs, and thus made way for those who were entitled by relationship to occupy the seats.

Nearly 50,000 persons jammed the cemetery roads, overflowing on to the lawns and mounds, fighting for vantage points. One woman fainted in the crush and was trampled. Her arm was broken. The exterior signs of mourning in the parish began to disappear today. A few flags floated, but the crepe that gave the district a cloak of black following the disaster, was noticeably absent. Little children played half-heartedly in the streets. Their elders seemed to be endeavoring to lay aside the sorrows of the present to better meet the hopes of the future. On every hand were evidences that the cloud of gloom was lifting.

This was emphasized by the impressiveness of the Sunday morning service in St. Mark's. It was the first since the disaster. A remnant of the congregation gathered to pray for those who had been taken to their Maker. There were 200 in the church this morning. The flock had been decimated by death. Every person there came from stricken homes. Some pews were empty. In the families the disaster had exterminated. There were no greetings at the door, no gossip in the aisles, not even a sob or a sigh. The Rev. Dr. John H. Holstein, former pastor of St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran church in Brooklyn mounted the pulpit.

As the service was about to begin the vestry door opened. The congregation stood up. Suppressed sorrow was released and a pitiful sob came in unison from the lips of all as the bowed figure of the pastor, the Rev. George C. F. Haas, supported by his brother and son, filled the frame of the door. Trembling with sobs, his hands and face in bandages, he was led to a seat. As he stood in silent prayer for the wife and daughter who had been torn from him and the hundreds of his flock who had gone to death, the remnant of his people remained standing. It was the first time the pastor had entered the church since the disaster.

There was no sermon; no music. Dr. Holstein read a poem, "Who Knows How Near is My End?" then he read in succession the fourteenth chapter of John, the thirty-ninth Psalm, the first Epistle of St. Peter, chapter five, verses six to 11, the seventh chapter of Revelations, from the ninth verse to the end. Prayers for the dead were said and the service recited and the congregation silently filed out after the pathetic figure of the pastor had been led back to his home through the vestry door.

The first funeral did not leave the Manhattan end of the bridge until dusk.

There will be more funerals tomorrow. Perhaps as many as today. The police have made special arrangements to handle them, as the traffic of the week days will have to be contended with.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR SLOCUM DISASTER DEAD

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 19.—"Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God," was the text of the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur at the Calvary Baptist church this morning. The entire service, music, sermon and prayers was a memorial for the dead of the St. Mark's Lutheran church Sunday school excursion.

"There has been no calamity so great in the history of this city," said Dr. MacArthur, "and the sorrow is not peculiar to any race, church or section of New York. The disaster abounds in practical and spiritual lessons. In the first place it belongs to the great mystery in human existence. This was not, however, what is known in a legal sense as an 'act of God.' We err if we blame God for the neglect of man. God is not responsible for our violation of nature's laws. The problem in the steamboat is the same as that in the creation of Adam. Men who built the boat were under obligation to obey the law and under temptation to disobey. They yielded to temptation."

Reference was made to the General Slocum disaster at the service in Plymouth church in this morning's prayers by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, the hymns sung by the congregation and indirectly in the subject of the sermon, "The Economy of Suffering in the Development of Society as Well as the Individual." Just before the sermon Dr. Hillis gave out the hymn, "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," and asked that it be sung with the remembrance of another Christian church that today was engaged in the sad task of burying its dead. The hymn was sung with deep feeling by a large congregation.

IRWIN, PA., June 19.—Memorial services were held this evening in Trinity Lutheran church on account of the calamity among the Lutherans in New York, due to the disaster to the steamer General Slocum. Rev. S. K. Herbster preached a sermon on the disaster. Mr. Herbster was a classmate of Rev. George C. F. Haas, pastor of St. Mark's church, the Sunday school of which gave the fatal excursion.

NEW CASTLE, PA., June 19.—St. John's Lutheran church of this city was densely crowded today on account of the memorial services for the victims of the General Slocum horror. Rev. Dr. J. H. Miller delivered a special sermon from the text "Thou Knowest Not What a Day May Bring Forth."

TO REVISE RULES FOR STEAMBOAT INSPECTION

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Complete revision of the regulations on steamboat inspections and penalties is likely to be the outcome of the investigation into the General Slocum disaster. Each day government officials become more impatient under the criticism which is being directed at them and declare that, laboring under faulty and cumbersome rules and regulations, as they are, it is manifestly unjust.

"It is true that many fines which have been imposed by inspectors on the owners of steamboats in the last several years have been greatly reduced by the heads of departments," said Thomas B. Sanders, deputy commissioner of the bureau of navigation. "If this list were to be published, giving in each case the initial fine and the amount paid, without any further explanation, it would look very strange. There are dozens of cases where the fines imposed by inspectors have been almost entirely remitted by someone higher in authority."

It is declared that a large majority of the fines that have been imposed on steamboats by inspectors of late have been reduced by the heads of the departments on appeal, and the department of commerce and labor has steadfastly refused to make these records public, declaring that it would unjustly place the department in a very bad light.

"The rules for inspection of steamboats and the regulations imposing fines for infractions of the law are exceedingly faulty," said a prominent official in the treasury department today. "They should be thoroughly revised. As they stand today, it is almost impossible to strictly enforce them."

WISCONSIN SHERIFF KILLED BY DESPERADO

Shot by Prisoner on Train—Murderer Jumped from Platform and Escaped.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PAUL, June 19.—Sheriff G. D. Harris of St. Croix county, Wisconsin, was shot and killed last night while attempting to make an arrest on a train near Fall Creek, Wis. The man who did the shooting and whose name is unknown, jumped from the moving train and escaped.

Sheriff Harris had gone to Eau Claire on business and when about to board the train for Hudson was informed that a man suspected of burglary was aboard the train. The sheriff searched the train and finally located his man in the smoking car. He placed him under arrest and was about to handcuff him when the desperado drew a revolver and fired three times, shooting the sheriff through the head and killing him instantly.

In the excitement which followed the shooting, the murderer ran the entire length of the train, jumping from the rear coach while the train was going at a high rate of speed. He then stole a horse and buggy and escaped.

SUNDAY GAZETTE HAD RECORD OF ALL NEWS

Everything of Importance, Both Domestic and Foreign, Was Noted by Correspondents.

As the national convention of the Republican party meets this week in Chicago, the Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette had a corps of correspondents there as early as the first arrivals. Yesterday these writers handled every phase of the situation so that the reader might as well have been on the spot. Fairbanks for vice president, Cortelyou as national chairman, and victory in the air for Roosevelt and the party, told the entire story. Besides, there was a routine of program of the convention, so that any reader might know when the crucial moment was to arrive.

E. M. Ferguson, one of Pittsburgh's most prominent bankers and business men, died on Saturday. Lawrence C. Phipps, who has figured largely in the news lately on account of his domestic troubles, went to New York from Denver to make a settlement with his wife, and his hasty departure from the far west was chronicled. The General Slocum disaster had been the feature of the week, and the story of the burial of many of the victims was told, with peculiar side lights on the story of life, death and fire which are still cropping up.

The Philadelphia delegation to the Chicago convention passed through Pittsburgh on Saturday evening and their views were caught as they halted for a few minutes at the Union station and faithfully reported. Manager George R. Wilson of the Pittsburgh orchestra will go to Vienna to talk matters over with the new conductor, Emil Paur, and the details of his trip were given. Director Bigelow began a fight with the viewers on the opening of Hamilton avenue. A correspondent at Nuchwang had an interview with the Russian military agent of Russia in Manchuria, and this official told how the Russians look on the recent reverses and tried to pry into the future. There was a photograph showing several of the principal members of the Filipino commission which will visit Pittsburgh next week. The Pittsburgh Coal Company has been making quite a record with shipments to the lakes and details were given. A party of socialists held a meeting on the wharf of the Monongahela river and made some very strenuous speeches, which were outlined. Congressman Littlefield in a special dispatch reviewed the Wisconsin controversy. A gigantic struggle between Kuropatkin and Kuroki is imminent in Southern Manchuria. The Russian losses at the battle of Vafangow were over 2,000 men. The Portland Gold Mining Company will drop suits brought against the governor of Colorado. Two men are dying and a third cannot recover, as the result of a gas explosion near Dayton, Pa. Mrs. Ephemia Thompson and daughters denied using undue influence or restraint on the late John Long. Harriett Johnson cried when asked to give testimony in suit of mother against father. Court of common pleas No. 3 decides 35 cases before closing for the summer.

Mayor Wyman inspected shows at Berger carnival, finding 15 gambling games, and ordered them closed. Water main in Woodbridge street burst, flooding Grace Reformed church and doing much damage.

Poor judgment on the part of the manager and poor play by the Pirates enabled the Cardinals to win, 10 to 5. Highball, the wonder horse, won the American Derby, which was witnessed by 50,000 persons at Chicago. Princeton defeated Yale in their final and decisive game of the season, 10 to 4. The Jeffries-Munroe fight has been postponed until the last week in August. The matinee horses showed some fine speed on the Brunots Island track at the weekly matinee. The Yale and Harvard crews are in fine shape for their annual race on the Thames. There were a number of close and exciting games on the local amateur diamonds.

New York bank reserves increased $6,500,000. Stock market dull but firm. Really in Pittsburgh Coal preferred. Perfect weather conditions again weakened the wheat market.

FUNDS TO REMAIN.

State Depositories in Western Pennsylvania Will Not Be Changed.

HARRISBURG, June 19.—State Treasurer Mathues has decided to withhold payment of the school appropriation for the fiscal year beginning June 1 until after the summer vacation, except where districts are hard pressed for money. This is in line with the policy of former state treasurers and will enable Mr. Mathues to keep intact the state deposits in the various banks and trust companies throughout the state. It is not unlikely that a call will be made up them about September 1.

Mr. Mathues has made no material change in the state depositories and it is now thought that he will not transfer the bulk of the state funds from the banks and trust companies in Pittsburgh and its vicinity, to those in and about Philadelphia.

For many years the western institutions have been the depositories for the greater part of the state funds, by reason of the fact that the state treasurers have come from that locality and naturally favored the banks there. Being a resident of the eastern section of the state, it was thought when Mr. Mathues became state treasurer he would shift the deposits, but he has not done so and those in his confidence say he has no thought of doing so.

Avalon Graduates Listen to Sermon.

The graduating class of Avalon High school attended the Avalon Presbyterian church last night. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by the pastor, the Rev. C. H. Dunlap, and his subject was "A Good Name."

Nervous?

Easily discouraged? Things look dark? Can't sleep well? Restless and worn out? "Nervous exhaustion," your doctor says. Ask him if he knows of a better nerve-tonic than Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Sixty years of success. $1.00. All druggists.

One great cause of nervousness is constipation. Impurities that should be removed from the system are absorbed into it. One of Ayer's Pills each night, just one, will keep the liver and bowels in a healthy condition. 25 cents. J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

RAISULI WRITES TO AMERICANS

Declares He Did Not Seek Perdicaris, but Any Foreigner to Secure Justice.

TANGIER GOVERNOR BLAMED

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

(Copyright, 1904, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, June 20.—"From the slave of God, Ahmed Ben Abdulla Sherief Raisuli, to the editor of the Daily Mail," is the exordium of a letter which the Tangier correspondent of that paper telegraphs that he has received from the Moorish brigand who kidnaped Perdicaris.

"It is well," continues the writer, "that Englishmen and Americans should know the truth of my doings and wherefor I have taken Perdicaris. All that has been said in Tangier about me, that I hate Christian Europeans and want to drive them from Morocco, is wrong. Such speaking is lies. Between Morocco and Europe, Mussulman and Christian, there is nothing but peace and we desire no wrong to any Christian. Should trouble come it will come from Europe, for if troops land we will fight.

"The cause of the present trouble between me and the government is the house of Abdsadek, governor of Tang who is now deposed, and his uncle and relations, who have held the governorship of Tangier for generations.

Persecuted by Abdsadek.

"Abdsadek and his people have for years persecuted by fire and sword my tribe with his soldiers. He killed our young boys, mutilated our children and robbed us. Abdsadek disregarded all principles of our religion in his persecution. You may wonder why I took Perdicaris. Well, for a long time I considered the advisability of raiding Tangier and retaliating on the governor, but I saw the difficulty, owing to the presence of the large number of foreigners of all nations assembled at Tangier.

"Not wishing to offend the powers, I decided to come to Tangier and carry away some European of standing. When I came I had no intention of taking Perdicaris more than another person, and I am glad I took an American, for America has forced the sultan to overthrow the governor and release from prison a large number of men innocently suffering. I expect the new pasha to stand between me and the people. He must be a just man, for if there is no justice with the new governor, the warm government that this present trouble is in danger of renewal. I do not wish to see Morocco occupied by any nation nor troops landed, because that will mean trouble also.

Perdicaris Well and Safe.

"Perdicaris is well and safe and wants for nothing except to see his wife. I hope I have made my position clear to the English and American people."

The courier who brought the letter, the Daily Mail's correspondent adds, states that Mr. Perdicaris is very well, but Mr. Varley looks ill. The prisoners' tent is pitched at the door of Raisuli's house, and they are allowed much latitude. Raisuli has 30 personal followers armed with Mauser rifles, one man being a soldier in the pretender's army.

The sultan promptly acceded to the new demands of Raisuli regarding the governorship over Eastern Morocco, and the government troops will be withdrawn to Tangier. A special messenger from the brigand arrived at the British legation yesterday morning. There is a sinister rumor that Raisuli has formulated other demands and desires his immunity guaranteed by England and America.

A dispatch dated Tangier, Sunday evening, says the legation there confidently anticipates the arrival of Perdicaris and Varley within two days.
